SENATE, 40 TO 30, CONDEMNS LEASING OF NAVY OIL FIELDS

SPENCER DEFENDS THEM

DEMOCRATIC IRE IS ROUSED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—By a vote of 40 to 30 the Senate this afternoon disposed of the Teapot Dome scandal, so far as the Senate's investigation of it is concerned, by adopting the majority report of the Senate investigating committee, scoring the granting of leases of the naval oil reserve lands to E. L. Doheny and Harry F. Sinclair. Prior to taking that action the Senate rejected, by a vote of 42 to 28, the minority report, signed by five Republican members, which defended the granting of the oil lease.

No Democrat voted for the minority report. A few Republicans and others classified politically as Republicans who supported Senator La Follette in last year's election joined in defeating the minority report and adopting the majority report. Senator La Follette himself was absent.

Walsh Wrote Majority Report.

The reports were presented by the Committee on Public Lands and Surveys which conducted the oil lease investigation. Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, "chief prosecutor" of the committee, wrote the majority report, which is mainly a review of the testimony taken by the committee, with condemnatory references to Albert B. Fall's part in the leasing arrangements and criticism of the secret manner in which the leases were awarded and of the policy involved in leasing Government oil reserves to private interests. The majority promises to make recommendations for legislation affecting naval oil lands as soon as the courts have finished with the Sinclair and Doheny cases.

A feature of the debate which preceded the adoption of the majority report was the severe criticism of Senator Spencer, Republican, of Missouri, who was sponsor for the minority report, signed by him and four other Republican members of the investigating committee, Senators Smoot of Utah, Stanfield of Oregon, Cameron of Arizona and Bursum of New Mexico. Mr. Spencer was attacked in a satirical speech by his colleague from Missouri, Senator Reed, who found sympathetic assistance from other Democrats in the brief comments they contributed.

Senator Walsh characterized the Spencer report as a "tissue of half truths," and Senator Reed declared of Senator Spencer that "with unblushing countenance he can defend any infamy."

The Votes on the Reports.

The record vote by which the Spencer report was rejected follows:

When Senator Spencer, in addressing the Senate in behalf of the adoption of the minority report, contended that the leasing of Government oil fields to private interests was legal and predicted that the courts would so determine, and justified them on the ground that they would double the strength of the navy though providing reserve oil for storage at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, he was questioned ironically by Senators Johnson of California and Caraway of Arkansas as

First of Big Supply Bills Is Signed by the President

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The Emergency Deficiency bill, carrying $159,000,000, was signed today by President Coolidge. It is the first big supply bill to be approved by the President since the convening of Congress.

The measure provides, among other items, $150,000,000 for tax refunds; $50,000 for expenses of the President's Agricultural Commission; $50,000 for the Oil Conservation Board, and $3,501,200 for completion of work on Dam No. 2 at Muscle Shoals.

COOLIDGE SUPPORTS HUGHES ON ACCORD

Denies That America Is Entangled in Europe and Believes That the Incident Is Closed.

BUT SENATORS ACT TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—President Coolidge, informally but nevertheless emphatically, took cognizance today of Senatorial attacks on the Paris agreement for our participation in the Dawes plan annuities in settlement of our Rhine army and damage claim bills against Germany.

The allegations that this country has, through the agreement, permitted itself to become entangled in European affairs and has assumed undesirable commitments are far from pleasing to the President and he made it quite plain at the White House today that he does not believe that there is any justification for such criticisms.

Through an authorized White House spokesman the President declared that no commitments whatever were undertaken by the United States Government in the Paris agreement, that we have agreed to do nothing except accept payment and that Secretary Hughes, whose statement yesterday was seen and approved by the President before being issued, has made clear the whole question. The President, it was stated, holds that the Hughes statement is quite sufficient to cover the issue raised and that he now regards the matter as a closed issue.

In Accord With Hughes.

While the President saw no necessity for elaboration of the Hughes statement, he did let callers at the White House know that he is in thorough accord with the Secretary's statement and that he does not believe the United States is committed legally or morally to any course of action in Europe by reason of the Paris agreement.

The Paris agreement, it has been explained by the State Department, merely provides for the receipt of payments by the United States from Dawes plan proceeds in settlement of valid American claims, without committing this Government beyond acceptance of such payments, this country having undertaken no sanctions, or other endorsements.

The Johnson resolution calling for a copy of the agreement will be considered by the Foreign Relations Committee tomorrow, the strong probability being that it will be reported out as the Democrats are expected to join Republican irreconcilables such as Senator Borah, Johnson, and McCormick in demanding this action. Before the resolution is sent to the Senate, however, there will be a move to amend it by asking specifically for information on just why Ambassador Kellogg found it necessary to try to attach a reservation to the effect that this country's freedom of action must be assured.

The Hughes statement has by no means satisfied the irreconcilables, they being still very skeptical over the matter. They said this afternoon that the presentation of the resolution would afford opportunity for some very pertinent debate in the Senate.

OPIUM CONFERENCE NEAR A BREAKDOWN AFTER HECTIC DAY

LATTER WITHDRAWS IT

But Is So Affected by Charge That He Is Barely Persuaded Not to Leave.

IRELAND JOINS OUR SIDE

GENEVA, Jan. 20 (Associated Press).—So serious a situation developed today at the International Opium Conference that many of the delegates walked back to their hotels tonight after adjournment frankly voicing the opinion that a complete breakdown tomorrow was a regrettable possibility.

Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, the chief British representative, who is leading the fight against the American proposals, said tersely: "Things are critical." He added dryly that he expected to be the first speaker at tomorrow morning's session and that he would oppose the new American suggestion for the suppression of opium smoking in the Far East within fifteen years because he was convinced the adoption of any such plan would mean only deceiving the world.

Viscount Cecil declared it was his judgment that it was impossible to inaugurate now any fixed time limit for the abolition of opium smoking because of the heavy smuggling in the Far East. He added in a mysterious vein that he would present other observations tomorrow which courtesy to the conference forbade him to disclose tonight. He insisted that all parliamentary procedure forbade any extension of the conference's scope, and hence the present conference was not authorized to take up the question of opium smoking, which belonged in the agenda of the earlier conference, which was confined to countries having Far Eastern possessions.

Asked what he would do if the conference by a majority vote approved the American motion to review the work of the first opium conference, Viscount Cecil answered that international practice required unanimity in conferences of this kind. Certainly, he added, any powers placed in the minority could not be forced to continue their participation in a conference. He declined to say, however, whether he would withdraw if Great Britain found herself in the minority camp when a vote was taken.

Irish Free State Supports American View.

Geneva was treated to so much drama and sensation today that it has scarcely recovered tonight from the experiences. A clash at the forenoon session of the conference between Stephen G. Porter, head of the American delegation, and Viscount Cecil was followed in the afternoon by Ireland breaking away from the British lead and striking a blow at British hegemony over her dominions and commonwealths. Michael MacWhite, the Irish Free State envoy at Geneva, came out flatly for the American project and flayed the convention drawn up by the first opium conference, saying it neither laid any floral tribute on the altar of ideals nor adversely affected the material advantages which many of the interested powers derive from opium traffic. That was why, Mr. MacWhite declared, he deemed it his duty to support the American proposal for practical measures gradually to suppress opium traffic.

After praising the example set by Japan for the abolition of opium smoking, Mr. MacWhite said Japan had given a lead to some of the Occidental powers which he trusted they would follow. He demanded that the doors be thrown wide open for discussion of all aspects of the opium evil and insisted that some of the delegates were under the impression that something was being kept in the dark and that efforts were being made to thwart free and wholesome discussion.

If legal quibbles were to prevent free discussion, Mr. MacWhite declared, the

ALBANY, Jan. 20.—What is declared to be the most drastic blue law Sunday measure since the days of Puritanism is being drafted by reformers for introduction in the Legislature. It is asserted that the bill, if enacted, would mean virtually a complete cessation of all activities on Sunday except church services.

Canon William Sheafe Chase of Brooklyn, head of the New York State Civic League, and the Rev. O. R. Miller of Albany, who edits the league's Bulletin, are said to be the prime movers behind the proposed measure. Representatives of the Lord's Day Alliance also have taken part in framing the bill, it is understood. Several members of the Assembly, it is said, have been asked by the blue law advocates to sponsor the proposed measure, but so far all have declined.

It is understood that the bill would prohibit all commerce on Sunday, including the sale of gasoline, the sale of ice cream and candy, movies, baseball and all similar activities, but drug stores would be permitted to keep open at certain hours on Sunday for the sale of medical supplies.

It was reported that the bill would prohibit any one from driving an automobile on Sunday unless that person first attended church service, but this was denied by those at the Capitol who claim to know.

At past sessions of the Legislature the blue law advocates have been content to have measures introduced which sought to regulate dancing and prohibit baseball and movies on Sunday. The proposed new measure marks the first attempt to bring about a complete standstill of other activities on Sunday.

Assemblyman Esmond of Saratoga, Chairman of the Codes Committee in the House, said today he understood a new blue law bill would be introduced next week.

While the blue law advocates were working on their measure to stop all sorts of Sunday amusements, Assemblyman William F. Brunner of Queens introduced today a bill to amend the penal law permitting Sunday football and basketball games. This is the second measure of its kind offered at the present session.

GIFFORD, 40, HEADS BIGGEST UTILITY CO.

BEGAN AS CLERK IN 1904

Walter S. Gifford, 40 years old, Executive Vice President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for the last two years, was elected President of this company yesterday to succeed Harry B. Thayer, who becomes Chairman. The office of Chairman is a new one and the action of the directors elevates both men. The position of Executive Vice President, which had been created for Mr. Gifford, will not be filled.

In his new capacity Mr. Gifford will be the executive head of what is classed as the largest public utility corporation in the world. It has more than two billion dollars of assets and serves approximately 16,000,000 telephone subscribers. It is larger than the United States Steel Corporation in capitalization and number of shareholders, having 350,000 of the latter and employing nearly the same number of workers.

Mr. Gifford is probably the youngest man ever picked for such a job and his salary will rank with those of the highest paid industrial executives in the country.

Commenting on the board's action, Mr. Thayer, who succeeded to the Presidency left vacant by the retirement of Theodore N. Vail in 1919 and who will be 67 next Aug. 17, said:

"Mr. Gifford has been connected with the Bell Telephone system during practically his whole business life and in active service in it except for a period of two years during the war. There is no one to whom I could look with greater confidence to carry on, with vision for the future, along the general lines we are following."

The energy and ability to apply himself to the task in hand that enabled Mr. Gifford to complete his course at Harvard when only 19 years of age, in 1904, were pointed to by friends and associates as having been responsible for his rapid rise in business.

He was born in Salem, Mass., Jan. 10, 1885. He attended the public schools there and after completing his course at Harvard went to work with the Western Electric Company at Chicago as a clerk. According to a story told by his friends, young Gifford, while at college, considered the General Electric or the Western Electric as his possible future employer. He wrote to the General Electric Company, but addressed the envelope to the Western Electric Company by mistake.

From clerk he rose to assistant secretary and assistant treasurer of the company at New York. In 1909 Mr. Vail brought him into the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the parent of the manufacturing company, as chief statistician.

When it appeared that the United States might have to enter the war and a committee of citizens undertook to take account of the industrial resources of the country so that they might be utilized to the best advantage, Mr. Gifford was put in charge of this work. When the war came he was selected by President Wilson to become Director of the Council of National Defense. In the Summer of 1918 he accompanied Edward R. Stettinius, then Assistant Secretary of War and the United States Representative on the Interallied Munitions Board, to France. He helped organize the work of Mr. Woody, acting as secretary of the American section.

At the end of 1918 Mr. Gifford was called back to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and was appointed controller. A year later he was made Vice President in charge of finance. He gradually established a relationship to the general administration of the business which was formally recognized by his being made Executive Vice President in 1922.

He was elected a director of the A. T. & T. in February, 1922, and is a director also of various associated telephone companies. He is the youngest director of the First National Bank of New York and a trustee of the American Surety Company.

Mr. Thayer in his new position will be able to assume more of the administrative functions of the office and at the same time share the responsibilities held as President.

He was born Aug. 17, 1858, at Northfield, Vt. He began business life in a savings bank in Northfield in 1878, and two years later entered the employ of the Western Electric Company at Chicago. Within three years thereafter he was made manager of the company's business in New York, which he was in charge of when he was elected Vice President of the A. T. & T. and in 1919 became its President.

CRASH ON ELEVATED IN STORM; 25 HURT

THREE SERIOUSLY INJURED

Twenty-five persons were injured, three of them seriously enough to warrant hospital care, when a seven-car Sixth Avenue local crashed into the rear of a similar train halted yesterday at the West 116th Street station of the elevated system. For nearly two hours the first car of the colliding train tilted perilously toward the railing of the structure, which is level with five-story-building roofs at that point, the second highest on the line.

The blinding curtain of heavy snow which was falling shortly after 3 o'clock, a slight curve in the tracks which cut off the view ahead and ice-sheathed rails which defied brakes were the causes of the accident as developed at a preliminary investigation by officials of the road, the police and members of the Transit Commission and the Board of Transportation.

Northbound traffic over the local tracks, after the delay caused by the arrival of emergency crews, was shunted south of the 110th Street station to the express tracks and continued beyond the point of the collision with little delay to the homegoing crowds. An hour and forty minutes after the crash the train which was hit was moved to the barns, and three hours and twenty minutes later the tracks were cleared for the resumption of northbound local traffic.

Reserves Handle Crowds.

The reserves from two precincts were called to handle the passengers and the crowd that gathered below the structure on the false report that many had been killed. The police cleared the crowd from beneath the interlocked trains, when acetylene blowpipes, used to cut the locked trains, began sending molten metal to the street.

Only the fact that the motorman of the colliding train, Arthur Ferguson, twenty-five years an elevated motorman without a blemish on his service record, was proceeding at a pace he called "snailing," prevented the accident from attaining serious proportions, with the chance of one or more cars, telescoping under the impact of greater speed, toppling to the street below.

The three persons who went to hospitals and those who were treated at a first aid station established on the platform were as follows:

HAIL 'MA' FERGUSON, GOVERNOR OF TEXAS, IN THRILLING SCENE

SAM HOUSTON BIBLE USED

SHE ASKS WOMEN TO PRAY

In 7-Minute Inaugural Speech the State's First Woman Chief Asks Loyalty to Pioneer Ideals.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 20.—While the Old Gray Mare Band of Brownwood played "The Eyes of Texas Are On You," and while all the Texas men and women who could be crowded into the hall of the House of Representatives cheered her in true Western fashion, Mrs. Miriam Amanda Ferguson took the oath of office as Governor at 12:25 o'clock this afternoon.

Just one word can properly describe the occasion and that word is "Texas." From beginning to end the ceremony, which lasted exactly one hour, typified the biggest of the States. It was a blending of the old and the new Texas. Here and there were the cowboys, the oil diggers, the cattlemen from the Big Bend, where the Rio Grande makes its turn on its way to the Gulf; the bankers, lawyers, preachers, merchants; the men and women of the great cattle ranges of the west, the cotton lands to the east, and the cities big and little.

Mrs. Ferguson's inaugural address required less than seven minutes to read. It was an old-fashioned expression of thanks for the honor conferred on her by the voters, a pledge with divine help, to give Texas the very best administration she can, and few brief references to law and order and the Constitution, which everybody knew was a gentle but firm hint to the Ku Klux Klan that masked rule is now a thing of the past in Texas.

Signs Bill Inviting Coolidge.

Mrs. Ferguson's first official act as Governor will be to sign a joint resolution passed this morning by the Legislature inviting President and Mrs. Coolidge to visit Texas, as guests of the State, next May, on the occasion of the convention of the Chambers of Commerce of West Texas. The resolution, which was passed with a whoop, promises the President and his wife a "real Texas welcome," and there is a feeling here that the President will accept. If he does he will get a welcome he will long remember.

There was just one person in all the great assemblage who appeared to be a bit shy and that was the woman Governor of Texas. When she repeated the oath, sentence by sentence, as read by Chief Justice Cureton of the Texas Supreme Court, she was the only person in the hall who did not smile when the Chief Justice asked her to swear that she had never fought a duel with "deadly weapons" and that as long as she lives she never will. The oath was written in the days when gunplay was the habit in Texas and when duels with deadly weapons were of paragraphical also in the news.

When the doors of the chamber of the House of Representatives were closed at 9 o'clock there was not an inch of spare space on the floor or in the galleries. The doorkeepers said the crowd began to assemble at dawn. At 10 o'clock a crowd bigger than the one within the hall was outside pleading to get in.

Sounds of Cheers Guess Entry.

Mrs. Ferguson entered the chamber one minute before noon, while the Texas Artillery, in Capitol Park, was booming the farewell salute of seventeen guns in honor of the retiring Governor. She came in on the arm of Governor Neff. She wore a black satin dress of plain but stylish design. She carried no bouquet. In her hand were three sheets of paper on which had been typed her inaugural address.

Behind her walked her husband, former Governor James E. Ferguson, who six years ago was impeached from the office and was about to assume it for two daughters, Mrs. Nalle and Miss Dorrace Ferguson; Mr. Nalle and Ernest Nalle, the little grandson of the Governor.

The crowd stood as the retiring and incoming Governors slowly made their

Finland's Athletes Worth $10,000,000 to Her; Prowess Raises Nation's Financial Credit

The value in dollars and cents of the victories won in the Olympic Games at Paris and in later meets in New York and Chicago by a small group of Finnish athletes captained by Paavo Nurmi has been appraised by the Government of Finland and by American bankers interested in Finland's standing in the world's financial markets. The minimum value to Finland of these athletic accomplishments is not less than $10,000,000.

The story of Nurmi's great donation to Finland's "good-will" item in the Government's balance sheet was told yesterday in Wall Street. It carried back to last Summer's Olympic meet in Paris and then moved upward in the present conquest of American athletes by the great Finnish runner and his associates. It has been attested also by the thousands of inquiries coming daily to Finnish consular offices in New York, Chicago and other large American cities and to the Minister of Finland in Washington.

At a dinner in the home of Charles R. Mitchell, President of the National City Bank, sponsor of the present Finnish loan—the name of Nurmi was brought into the conversation. Leonard Astrom, Minister of the Republic of Finland, had come to New York to pin upon Mr. Mitchell the Order of the White Rose, Finland's highest decoration, which has been conferred on less than a half-dozen Americans. But after the speech of presentation and Mr. Mitchell's acceptance, Mr. Mitchell and Minister Astrom leaped lightly to the topic of Nurmi's amazing races and vitality.

Mr. Astrom said Nurmi's feats and those of Ritola, Stenroos and others had given Finland more advertising than anything else in a century. It surpassed in this respect even the Declaration of Independence by Finland. Mr. Mitchell said his observations had been similar; that Americans were electrified by the accomplishments of this handful of athletes, and men who had never devoted much thought to Finland had begun questioning one another about the country and how it was able to produce as hardy a group of field and track athletes. Results of this inquiry were such, he said, as immensely to enhance the credit rating of Finland. Purchasers of bonds of Finish extraction were satisfied that a stalwart race, such as the Finns appeared to be from the victories of their athletes, was sufficiently strong to work its way to a settlement of all debts.

FIRE RUINS RICH ART IN H. C. DRAYTON HOME

POLICEMAN SAVES A BOY

Firemen battled for almost an hour last night against a blaze in the cellar of the five-story home of Henry Coleman Drayton, grandson of the late Mrs. William Astor, at 7 East Ninety-fourth Street. Before the flames were quenched it was said that the dense smoke which penetrated the upper part of the house had damaged thousands of dollars' worth of paintings, rugs and other furnishings in the dwelling.

The fire was discovered by a maid shortly after 9 o'clock. Her cries were heard by a woman who was waiting on the stoop of a near-by residence for her automobile. The woman, who did not reveal her identity to the police, ran east to Madison Avenue and north to Ninety-fifth Street, where she turned in an alarm.

Policeman John Imperial of the East 104th Street Station heard the bell on the alarm box ring. He ran up to the woman and found that the fire was in the Drayton home. The woman apparently knew that Mr. and Mrs. Drayton, who was Mrs. Samuel N. Hinckley, a divorcee, when she was married to Mr. Drayton in Palm Beach in February, 1922, had left the house at about 7 o'clock in the evening to dine with friends and later attend a performance at a theatre with them.

The policeman hurried to the Drayton home, in the belief that the woman was following him. When a few minutes later the policeman appeared with 10-year-old Samuel Hinckley under his arm and took him and a governess and several maids into the dwelling next door, which is the home of Henry Hill Pierce, a member of the law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, the woman had disappeared.

Maid Knocked Down by Smoke.

Delia Milton was the maid who discovered the blaze. She later told Deputy Chief Dougherty that she smelled smoke when she was on one of the upper floors and that she traced it to the cellar. As she opened the door of the stairway in the rear of the main floor, which is on a level with the sidewalk, she was knocked down by the cloud of smoke. The girl slammed the door and ran to the street, where her cries attracted most of the families on the block, including that of Mr. Pierce and Herbert C. Pell, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, who lives diagonally across the street at No. 20.

She then ran to the upper part of the house to aid in the rescue of young Hinckley, his governess and some of the other servants, who had started half an hour before for their rooms on the top floor. She had made her way to the second floor when the policeman came dashing up the stairs, shouting for the boy's room. The other servants came tumbling down the stairs at this moment, and Imperial told them all to hurry to the street.

The smoke in the hallways of the house had become very thick by that time, but Imperial managed to reach the boy's room and found the governess dressing him.

The policemen ordered the governess

Senator Edwards Declines Any Statement on Testimony

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Senator Edward I. Edwards declined tonight to make any statement concerning the testimony given at Jersey City today by Lionel Wilson, a general agent of the Treasury Department, that Senator Edwards had arranged to sell liquor to him and another person and that Wilson had seen a payment of $3,800 made to Mr. Edwards for 100 cases of Scotch whisky.

The Senator said he had not authorized any statement and did not intend to make any. When he was asked if he intended to go to Jersey City to testify at the trial he said that, of course, if he were subpoenaed he would appear as a witness. Beyond that he would not comment.

He denied a report that he would leave Washington for Jersey City tonight. "I have no such intention at this time," he remarked.

United States Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey was accused today by order of being a bootlegger and of having accepted $3,800 in a deal for whisky and the delivery of 100 cases of Scotch whisky.

The charge was made at the trial in Jersey City of ten policemen and two civilians indicted in the Weehawken smuggling disclosures. Senator Edwards, when told of the charge in Washington, would make no comment except that he would take the stand if subpoenaed.

According to the testimony given at the trial yesterday, Senator Edwards fell into a trap laid by prohibition agents who were seeking evidence against William Griffin, one of the defendants in the case, and mentioned as the "manager" of the bootleg ring. Approaching Griffin, Agents Lionel Wilson and Charles Hurlbut negotiated, they said, for 100 cases of whisky at $38 a case. Griffin, they testified, demanded the money in advance. The agents demurred. They wanted some guarantee, they asserted, that delivery would be made and that it would be "O. K. stuff." Griffin then admitted to them, they declared, that Senator Edwards was his backer.

Swear Senator Took the Money.

The prohibition agents then testified that they saw the Senator, first at his home and then at the office of the First National Bank in Jersey City, of which he is President, and where Griffin also has an office. Senator Edwards said, they testified, that Griffin was "all right" and "a straight shooter." Then, they said, they handed over $3,800, which, they swore, Senator Edwards accepted.

"Senator Edwards took it," Wilson testified, saying, "'Well, boys, I am going to play safe. I am going to take this money.' He called an assistant cashier, I think it was, in the bank, and told him to bring him back $3,800 in different bills. He brought them back, put them in an envelope, sealed it up, and Hurlbut put his name on the back of it. Senator Edwards told he that we would have to be present after Griffin delivered us the stuff, and that he knew it was O. K. and that he would then give Griffin the money."

In this Wilson was corroborated by Hurlbut, who said he paid the money. A third agent, Arthur Van Tassell, testified that he watched the envelope pass hands.

Although the money was alleged to have been paid it was admitted that no liquor was delivered. According to the agents, Griffin was "not sure" of Hurlbut and they said the upshot of it all was that their money was returned and the deal fell through.

Defense Charged "Frame-Up."

As against all this George E. Cutley, counsel for eleven of the twelve defendants, who are being tried jointly, sought to show that the transaction was a "frame-up" and that it was prearranged on the face of it. Only two weeks before the alleged transaction, Mr. Cutley brought out in cross-examination of the agents, Senator Edwards's former secretary, J. Harry Foley, had been arrested and charged with a liquor conspiracy. It was ridiculous to suppose that in any event and particularly because of Foley's arrest that Senator Edwards, he said, would enter into a bootlegging deal with two comparative strangers.

The State's case was completed at noon, and Colonel George T. Vickers, the Special Prosecutor, rested. Then Mr. Cutley announced that he would not call all the defendants to deny the charges. Of the twelve accused, only six testified. One of these was Griffin, who admitted that there had been some payment to Senator Edwards's backer.

next day and spoke about whisky. I said I didn't sell whisky, I'm an insurance man. I went down and told the Senator what they had left the money for. He was greatly surprised, and from what he tells me, when they next met to him he told them he learned they were trying to make a liquor deal with him and that they had better take their money back and get out or he'd have them thrown into jail."

Griffin denies that he had ever made any liquor deals or has accepted any money for the delivery of liquor or had entered into any conspiracy for its delivery.

"You didn't ask Wilson and Hurlbut what the business was they wanted to do with you, did you?" asked Colonel Vickers on cross-examination.

"No," replied the witness.

"And you didn't tell them how much money they left with him?"

"No."

"No."

That stated Griffin's testimony. A doctor, a lawyer and a clergyman followed to testify as character witnesses for him, and then Mr. Cutley rested, with the understanding that should Senator Edwards wish it he would have an opportunity to be heard today. After that both sides will sum up, and it is expected the case will go to the jury in the afternoon.

The courtroom was crowded when the case opened with Judge Charles M. Egan presiding. Nine of the accused policemen were in uniform. The tenth, a Weehawken Police Captain, was in plain clothes. Wilson was called as the first witness.

Questions by Colonel Vickers.

Q.—When did you first meet Mr. Griffin? A.—At different periods between July and the ending of November in 1924.

Q.—Where did you first meet Mr. Griffin? A.—In his office in the First National Bank Building.

Q.—What conversation or transaction of business or attempted transaction of business did you have with Mr. Griffin there? A.—Went into his office after being O. K'd. by members of his—what I call gang.

Mr. Cutley—I move that that be stricken out.

The Court—It will be.

Go ahead. A.—On my visit there to Griffin I asked him what liquor I could buy from him, whether it was rye or Scotch, and I made a deal to buy a hundred cases.

Q.—Now, I ask you your conversation with Mr. Griffin and Mr. Griffin's conversation with you relative to this transaction? A.—After Mr. Griffin answered to me that he could supply me Scotch or rye, I wanted some kind of a guarantee of the delivery of the goods, that the goods would be first-class goods, that they would be sent to me—tried to assure me—that he was a straight-shooter, that he absolutely would deliver the goods that I had bought and had bought any Mr. Griffin in the presence of another agent, a price of $38 a case for a hundred cases of Scotch whisky. Of course, I told him that we were going to—that we were to be guaranteed the delivery, that we would get it done out of our money. He said, I will go to tell you my backer and the people behind me, you would see me, you would have any doubt at all," he said. "Griffin, before I give you $3,800 you will have to see me, if it is all right, and so, until I finally said, "Well, don't mind telling me," he said, "Senator Edwards is my backer," I said, "You will have to show me further than that. I talk over the matter with Griffin sit down and talk to Senator Edwards regarding our transaction and talk up here." He said: "Absolutely. Go ahead." I said, "I suppose you will be satisfied then," I said. "Yes, if the Senator O. K.'s you as delivering as first-class stuff I will buy the goods." In November I made a visit to Senator Edwards's home in Cardwell by appointment. I meant the Senator there. I was with him for around two hours. I said the Senator——

Q.—In the course of that visit was Griffin and the subject matter of your previous visit to Griffin discussed? A.—Yes.

"Did you report back to Griffin or have any further transaction with Griffin after seeing Senator Edwards at his home in Caldwell?" "Yes," said the witness.

Saw Griffin Again.

Q.—What further conversation or transaction did you have with Griffin? A.—I went up and made final arrangements to the 100 cases delivered to me. Was it all right, did Griffin have the stuff on hand and how were we to get it—with our trucks or with his? He absolutely refused our trucks anywhere and when he would get them. I think I am dumb enough to let you know where I keep my stuff? My trucks will drive to you. Arrangements were closed that I was to deposit—at least I did—at the First National Bank Building.

Q.—Who paid over this money for this case, Senator Edwards? A.—Mr. Charles Hurlbut.

Q.—He is the man you spoke of who was your partner? A.—He was present with me, and I think that was done with respect to that money paid over? Just describe what happened? A.—After we paid the money over, we went up and saw Griffin.

Q.—Was Van Tassel present at the time of paying over the money? You say Hurlbut paid it over? What was done with the money? A.—Mr. Hurlbut answered with three $1,000 bills and $800 and one five thousand dollar bills. Senator Edwards took it.

Q.—Well, bore I am going to stay safe? I ask you is the said money, which I did if he called an assistant district attorney, I think it was, in the bank and told him to bring him back $3,800 in different bills. He brought them back to him in an envelope, sealed it up and Hurlbut put his name on the envelope. Senator Edwards told us that we had to present Peter Griffin delivered us the stuff and that he knew it was O. K. and that he would then give Griffin a slip of paper.

He told us we need not be a bit afraid: "Griffin will deliver us the O. K. stuff, and I can tell you right now it won't be out."

Q.—Having done that, what did you do, if anything, with respect to Griffin? A.—We went up to Griffin's office.

Q.—Did you see Griffin that we were ready for the stuff any time that his truck wanted to deliver it, the money was put up in Senator Edwards's hands.

Q.—What, if anything, was said by Griffin in regard to that? A.—He said, "Well, all right. Now it will be all right. You come back tomorrow. The Senator and I will get together in the meantime and I will decide now just the time we will deliver the stuff."

Q.—On the following day what was done? A.—We went back to Griffin's office and he said, "I have had a talk with the Senator. He says you are all right. He said he knows you, he said he does not know this Hurlbut."

Q.—I am asking you if Hurlbut was present during this conversation that took place? A.—Yes.

"Go ahead," said the Prosecutor. "What was said about not knowing Hurlbut and what happened?"

"He said," replied the witness, "Willson, you are all right, but how do you know, how do I know that Hurlbut is not putting something over on you; he might be an agent, he might be somebody, don't know him." He said, "Do you realize the situation you are putting me into?" He said, "If I go and deliver this stuff to you and Hurlbut, and Hurlbut is the money man, and we go in and take your money off Senator Edwards, I would be the one in Hudson County that would be responsible for practically breaking the President of the First National Bank and a United States Senator. Now, you go down to Edwards, take the money from him—I have talked to him, he will guarantee you it is O. K.—bring it up to my office and I will deliver you the stuff any minute you say."

Q.—Following that did you act on that suggestion of Griffin? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What did you do? A.—I went down and told Edwards what Griffin had told me.

Q.—Did the money from him? A.—He said, "Well, I will tell you." He said, "Griffin is a pretty wise boy. He would not be doing what he is doing if he was not the wisest boy in the country." He said, "You can take your money from me, take it back to him and I will guarantee you that you will get the stuff that Griffin says he will sell and that you will buy." We took the money from Senator Edwards and went back to the office.

Q.—When you refer to "we." Was Hurlbut with you? A.—When we took the money from Senator Edwards, Agent Hurlbut was with me, and Agent Van Tassel.

Q.—Was Van Tassel present at the same place in the immediate presence of you, Senator Edwards and Hurlbut, or in the vicinity where Hurlbut and you were sitting in chairs beside Senator Edwards, inside the rail of the bank where Senator Edwards has his desk. Van Tassel was standing on the outside of the rail.

Cross-Examination by Mr. Cutley.

Q.—What date was the first visit you made to Griffin? A.—The dates run from July to November.

Q.—That was just during the period when the investigation was going on in regard to J. Harry Foley, the secretary to Senator Edwards, wasn't it? A.—I think it was sometime around that time.

Q.—You knew well because you were in an intimate relationship? A.—In on the Foley investigation?

A.—Yes.

Q.—You did? A.—I was not.

Q.—You never went with Foley when you went out to see Griffin? A.—I was not in the Foley investigation. That is Judicial matter. The investigation for the Senate.

Q.—And you were not in the Foley investigation? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Don't you know you went over to Griffin, and you did go to Edwards and the money was paid up to Griffin, some of your actual—but you don't know you never got any money from Griffin, as smart as you thought you were? A.—I never knew the papers had any hands in it at any time.

Q.—Didn't you read the papers the agent who was trying to frame up Governor Edwards immediately after the Foley expose, Oct. 15, of thereabouts, last year? A.—No, sir.

Q.—You never heard of that? A.—No, sir.

Q.—On what date did you deposit that money with Edwards? A.—Now.

Q.—Foley was arrested on Oct. 22, wasn't he? A.—I could not tell you the date.

Colonel Vickers interjected: "I don't think that counsel ought to be——"

"I am asking you if Edwards, United States Senator, First National Bank President, Foley case, and the alleged frame-up in it, started in to guarantee to two unknown men the delivery of liquor?

Colonel Vickers said at this point: "That is objected to on the ground it pre-supposes that those men were unknown to Senator Edwards. It is not the fact. It does not appear so in evidence. Therefore, it is unwarranted, and I object to it."

Never Met Edwards Before.

Q.—Have you ever known Edwards before? A.—No, sir.

Q.—That was the first time you ever saw him? A.—Yes.

Q.—On first meeting you he started in and told you he would guarantee the delivery of the liquor? A.—I was introduced to him by Agent Wilson.

Q.—And nevertheless on this first interview with the Foley pedding, Edwards guaranteed the delivery of liquor by Griffin? That is your story, isn't it? A.—Yes.

Van Tassel testified he saw the envelope passed. Willson and Hurlbut, he said, entered the bank a few minutes before he did.

"When I came in," he said, "they were sitting down at a desk talking to some man who, I found out afterward from them, was Senator Edwards."

"And what, if anything, did you see take place there during that time?" Colonel Vickers asked.

"During my time in there I saw this man at the desk pass an envelope to Agent Hurlbut."

"You do not know what the envelope contained, you did not know where it had come from or anything else?" he was asked.

"I do not," replied the witness.

"You were there as a Government agent for the purpose of witnessing this interview?" was the next question.

"Yes," replied Van Tassel.

Mr. Cutley's cross-examination follows.

Q.—You were there for the purpose of framing up Senator Edwards? A.—I was not there to frame anybody.

Q.—You were there to frame either Edwards or Griffin? A.—No, sir.

Q.—And you did not frame them as you did part of the goods? A.—I was there to do my duty.

Q.—And that was framing up? A.—We do not frame anybody.

Q.—You had no talk in Caldwell with Senator Edwards? A.—No.

Q.—You did not try to buy any of this booze? A.—Never.

Q.—All you saw was the President of the bank handing an envelope to this man? A.—I just testified to what I saw.

42 Per Cent. Alcoholic Content.

Christopher Devitt, a chemist, swore that he analysed the contents of a pint bottle labeled "Old Smuggler Whisky," which one of the State's witnesses on Monday testified had been given to him by Griffin at the Weehawken pier, where the liquor boats are alleged to have been unloaded, and that he found it to contain whisky with a 42 per cent. alcoholic content.

Harry J. Stearns, Police Commissioner of Weehawken; Police Lieutenant Charles Kelling and Patrolman Stephen Daly, Jr., Lieutenant Kelling and Detective Timothy McCarthy preceded Griffin as witnesses and denied participating in any liquor conspiracy.

Among those in the courtroom who heard the testimony against Senator Edwards was Samuel Wilson, Assistant Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey.

"It's no surprise to me," Mr. Wilson said when the prosecution rested. "It's a development of the promise Senator Edwards made to make New Jersey as wet as the Atlantic Ocean. You know he planted a bottle of liquor in the cornerstone of the First National Bank when it was built."

R. G. Merrick, Divisional Prohibition Chief, under whom Lionel Wilson and Charles Hurlbut operated, said he had been aware of the facts.

"Washington has been informed," he said in reply to a question as to whether the matter had been brought to the attention of the Attorney General's office.

INQUIRY BEGAN IN 1923.

Special Agents of Merrick Investigated Griffin's Activities.

The investigation which resulted in the indictments for rum-running and violation of the prohibition laws of W. H. Griffin and the Weehawken policemen began early in the Summer of 1923. Wilson and Hurlbut, the agents who testified yesterday, were members of a large squad of "under-cover" men distributed through the second district by Chief R. G. Merrick. The investigation of this squad led to the indictment of "Chappie" (Charles P.) Meyer and for conspiracy in September, 1923. Police Lieutenant Doubleblees and Emil Groth on similar charges. In the case of Meyer a mistrial resulted and the trials of Doubleblees and Groth are pending.

It was while gathering evidence which resulted in these indictments that Hurlbut and Wilson picked up evidence tending to show Griffin's relation with the bootlegging industry. Their hard-boiled manners they made his acquaintance, and to allay suspicion they represented themselves as able to be of use to him. Griffin, they said, was easy at first. The agents learned that he was in the market for liquor "in bulk," but that he had plenty of case goods. Through underworld connections in New York Merrick's "under-cover" squad gave Griffin references, they asked, and it is said, as agents between Griffin and a New York City source of liquor "in bulk." This particular action on the part of the agents, it is said, was what satisfied Griffin that they were bootleggers, who up to this time had been handling the investigation involving Griffin. As the testimony brought out yesterday in November the prohibition forces felt that they were ready to go ahead and "get" Griffin. It was not until about this time that they felt that there were bigger forces still behind Griffin.

Asked whether the investigation which led to the arrest of Foley and others in the Pennsylvania Hotel on a charge of conspiracy had resulted in the present inquiry the agents denied that there was any connection between the two cases.

COURT RECORDS SHOW MORE INTOXICATION

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Arrests and convictions for intoxication have been steadily on the increase since prohibition has been in force, according to statistics contained in the annual report of the Secretary of State, Mrs. Florence E. Knapp, which has just been made public.

In 1922 10,900 persons were convicted on charges of intoxication. In 1923 the number had increased to 15,801. The number last year was 17,200. These convictions were in Courts of Special Sessions throughout the State.

Total convictions before such tribunals last year were 36,445, of which 36,648 were for misdemeanors. This is an increase of approximately 5,000 over the preceding year.

Chauffeurs committed many offenses, according to the report, which shows 326 convictions. Farmers are next, with 238 convictions, and are followed by cooks, of whom 145 were fined or sent to jail on misdemeanor charges.

Among persons arrested were 103 housewives, 99 waiters, 20 soldiers and one professional golfer.

Of those convicted the statistics show 76 to have been barbers, 21 bakers, 23 blacksmiths, 13 bootblacks, 24 musicians, 7 lawyers, 9 stenographers and 1 milkman.

One editor and one newspaper reporter were convicted, as were 64 printers, 11 pressmen and 3 stereotypers. Nine actors and two aviators are shown by the report to have fallen by the wayside.

Convictions in court of records for more serious offenses during 1924 were 1,814, compared with 2,000 in 1923, 10,761 in 1922 and 2,201 in 1921.

SNOW, RAIN, SLEET, GALE SWEEP CITY

BRINGS TRAFFIC CHAOS

Two snowstorms, with an interlude of a fifty-mile gale, rain and sleet, piled between six and seven inches of snow on New York yesterday and alternately coated the city with ice and slush. Due directly to the freak visitation, accompanied at some points by a brief flash of lightning and roll of thunder, all phases of traffic, especially in the early hours, were tangled and there was a series of minor delays, with several mishaps.

The local snow situation was duplicated and even exceeded in New England, where the worst snowfall of the year was intensified by a condition absent here—very low temperature marks. up-State points were white and virtually immobile under the falling snow which, at some points, was still falling nearly twenty-four hours after the storm broke.

Steamships incoming to this port crept their way through the white danger that masked the way of safety, ships' masters preferring delays of several hours to the risk of attempting speed through conditions graver than fog. Its destination shrouded in the afternoon's snowfall, heavier than its predecessor, the Staten Island ferryboat Bronx, with about 2,000 aboard, crashed into a floating pontoon at its South Ferry slip. The crash failed to frighten the passengers.

12,000 Shovelers Busy.

Alfred A. Taylor, Street Cleaning Commissioner, predicted last night that, with a good break during the night, his department would overtake the snow today, although a shift against the snow shovelers would set the date of a snow-clean city back a week. Outlying sections still have vestiges of the 10.2-inch snowfall of Jan. 2 and 3, and the 2.4 inches that surfaced the earlier fall in the second storm on Jan. 12.

A force of 12,000 men was put to work during the day, but many left their jobs when the rain and sleet began to soak them through. Many of the city's snow plows, more than 400 of them, were dispatched to clear strategic traffic arteries. Full forces were reported out in Brooklyn, Bronx and Queens streets, but were making little headway.

The local surveyor on the situation, according to officials and arrival bulletins, was not disturbed by the storm. The Long Island reported that no special trains were needed to clear away the snow and all the evening rush hour traffic was handled with almost normal smoothness. At the Grand Central Terminal it was said that all trains of the New York Central were moving on schedule. The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad reported only one delay, a twenty-five-minute one on a train from Danbury. The Pennsylvania System said that no delay of more than a minute or two was registered on its trains.

Morning Schedules Upset.

On the Interborough and B. M. T. Systems, however, where the lines operate in the open, and on the elevated lines generally, the storm hit hard. During the morning schedules delays of from three to twenty minutes were many. In an effort to overcome this condition the systems had put on extra trains earlier than usual in order that the heavier mass of traffic might keep the tracks clear. This step minimized what otherwise would have been a bad situation.

Traffic on the subway lines, getting the added burden of people who found being stalled on surface lines or buses was as heavy yesterday as has ever been reported, especially on the Seventh Avenue-Broadway line. Tens of thousands, joining the regular subway throngs, filled trains and platforms.

Two women fainted in trains at the Times Square station because of the crush. They were taken to the street and revived. Their names were not learned. One of the worst crushes occurred at 8:30 o'clock and the other a half-hour later, as the southbound expresses in which they were on their way to work were halted a. th. platform, where hundreds were awaiting trains. According to Interborough officials the line of their system which suffered most during the morning was the elevated portion of the East 180th street line in the Bronx. For a period the service schedule on this line was thrown back from twenty to twenty-five minutes. On the B. M. T. system the Brighton Beach line, open from Prospect Park to Coney Island, suffered setbacks of about the same length.

In downtown Manhattan the heavy street traffic proceeded with difficulty, and surface cars barely crawled along. This was due not to the snowfall, but to the necessity of the cumbersome city snow plows, part of work trying to clear a way, being driven and re-driven across the surfaces tracks and into the lanes on each side which carry the motor and horse-drawn traffic.

More Apply for Shelter.

Only two reports of distress due to the storm found its way to the police, although all of the city shelters last night reported an increase in applications for night's lodging. The number of persons who sought assistance, however, was only slightly greater than usual during the Winter season.

Hatless and thinly clad, with an old shawl over her shoulders, a woman about 40 years of age who said that her name was Kate Sullivan and that she lived in Forty-second Street, while the snowstorm was at its height, her hair and clothing were covered with snow, told the Desk Lieutenant that she had no home and asked that she be sent to a home. She was admitted to St. Barnabas's Home at 203 Mulberry Street.

Weak from hunger and ill from exposure, Michael Mullen, 67 years old, homeless, limped into the West Forty-seventh Street station and asked for shelter. He received food and medical attention and then was put in a cell to rest after being charged with vagrancy. Mullen said that he had not eaten for several days and was too tired to travel on. Dr. Holder of Bellevue said Mullen was badly in need of food and rest. The vagrancy charge was merely technical.

Reports from suburban New York and from along the Jersey and Long Island shore indicated that the high wind dealt heaviest there. Commuters arriving at Weehawken, Hoboken and other Hudson County terminals, facing delay on the ferries, said that bus lines in Jersey towns had been badly hampered, due to impassable streets.

The weather predictes for today is fair and, with no change in temperature. Yesterday's average mark was 30 degrees, which is the average for the corresponding date the last forty-six years. The lowest temperature was 26 degrees at 1:15 A. M. and the highest was 33 at 1 P. M.

KILLED BESIDE HIS CAR.

Motorman Is Blinded by Storm—Trolley Collision in Brooklyn.

His vision cut off by the blinding snow, William Cassidy, 60 years old, a motorman, of 2,020 Woodbine Avenue, Glendale, Queens, was killed yesterday by a trolley car. He was standing beside his own car in Seneca Avenue, near Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn, and failed to note the approach of another trolley on the other track. He was killed instantly. The motorman of the second car was not held.

One man was slightly injured and about a dozen passengers were shaken up when a Grand Street surface car collided with a car of the Lorimer Street line at Lorimer Street and Grand Street, Brooklyn. Myman Boge, a laborer, of 261 Grenard street, Manhattan, received concussion of the brain and laceration of the body. He was treated by an ambulance surgeon from St. Catherine's Hospital and insisted upon going home.

Several ambulances were hurried to the scene of the accident, believed to have resulted from mixed signals due to the storm conditions, and reserves from the Stagg Street Station were sent to calm excitement.

WHITE PALL OVER HARBOR.

Ferry Crashes at Its Slip—Other Vessels Delayed.

The snowstorms which covered the harbor with a white pall yesterday forenoon and again in the afternoon caused considerable delay to the Staten Island service from the Battery and to the navigation of craft in the North and East Rivers.

The only accident reported to the Harbor Police was that to the municipal ferryboat Bronx, which crashed into Slip 1 at the foot of Whitehall Street at 8:45 in the morning. There were about 2,000 commuters on board from St. George, Staten Island, on their way to work.

Confusion of signals is blamed for the Bronx entering the slip at full speed. Her passengers were considerably shaken by the impact with the heavy timbers which was injured. The collision did considerable damage to the pontoon. The slip was out of commission for the day. Directly the report of the accident was received at the Department of Docks structural iron workers, carpenters and assistants were sent to repair the damage to the slip.

The steamship Ebro of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company, which arrived at the Ambrose Channel lightship from the west coast of South America early yesterday morning was unable to locate the pilot cutter for four hours in the heavy snowstorm. Captain Harris Mitch, master of the Ebro, said that he was unable to see more than ten feet from the bridge at times. At even with the aid of a powerful searchlight. The White Star liner Megantic, from Liverpool and Queenstown, also had difficulty in finding her way through the heavy snow.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Jan. 20.—The only marine casualty of last night's storm on the coast of New Jersey was a thirty-six foot boat which was driven ashore at Long Branch shortly after midnight, it was said today by M. W. Rasmussen, Superintendent of the Fifth Coast Guard District, which includes all of New Jersey. The Coast Guards believe the boat is a rum runner.

The high northeast wind drove the vessel on the beach and the four men aboard were helped ashore by the Long Branch guards under Lieutenant Howard Warner. None were injured.

SIX INCHES IN NEW ENGLAND.

Low Temperature Adds to Traffic Difficulties.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 20.—The worst storm of the Winter has attacked New England. The ground is covered by six inches of snow and there is no indication of a let-up. A northeast gale and freezing temperature add to the discomfort. Travel on all save the main arteries is practically at a standstill as the driving wind drifts the light snow faster than it can be removed. Lower grade highways are closed tight as the automobilists realized the difficulties that the children would have in getting home.

Boston had its full force of snow battlers on the job early, augmenting the regular corps with every extra man and bit of apparatus it could obtain from contractors. The result was that railroad, trolley, elevated and vehicular traffic was kept moving although at a modified pace. Motor cars were out of luck except on the main highways. Motorists were warned against long trips, as conditions outside the large cities were bad and rapidly growing worse. Practically no wire trouble was reported.

BEVERIDGE UPHOLDS POWERS OF COURTS

Passion for Lawmaking Has Become a Fetish, and Reviews Are Needed, He Says.

SEES TOO MUCH DISCIPLINE

Prof. Corwin Also Defends Judicial Supremacy at Marshall Anniversary Dinner.

Before many of the leading lawyers of this section, with the Faculties of the important law schools present, as well as other legal organizations, former Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, and Edward Samuel Corwin, Professor of Jurisprudence at Princeton, last night, upheld the doctrine of judicial supremacy over legislation as a fundamental of American institutions.

The occasion was a dinner of the Lawyers Club commemorating the 134th anniversary of the appointment of John Marshall as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. It was held at the Hotel Astor, Robert C. Morris, President of the club, was the toastmaster.

Mr. Beveridge decried the extent to which legislation has been allowed to go.

"We have developed a passion for lawmaking as such," he said. "We have made law a fetish, a spurious god, and we have cultivated a habit of looking to this false and artificial deity to relieve all our annoyances and supply all our desires. Gradually at first, but with increasing speed, we have shouldered off into statutes our individual obligations, responsibilities and duties."

Mr. Beveridge said it was the opposition under which laws were made which necessitated the court's power of review over them. On this subject he said, in part:

"It has become a habit of legislators to enact laws from political motives, and pass on to the judiciary the responsibility of declaring such acts unconstitutional. Thus politicians evade animosity and make as courts objects of attack from their selfish and malevolence. Behind the preservation of the fundamental laws of State and nation.

"All who love our institutions of orderly freedom must rally to the defense of the American doctrine of judicial supremacy over legislative acts that violate the people's basic, permanent law, and especially must we uphold that highest guardian of constitutional liberty and rights, the Supreme Court of the United States. But for the Supreme Court of the United States the American Constitution would finally be abolished by acts of Congress which the Constitution forbids; without the supreme Court of the United States the national compact would be shattered by acts of State Legislatures destructive of the Federal Union.

"Our danger is not that the Supreme Court declares null and void statutes violative of the American Constitution. Congress and Legislatures enact laws destructive of American institutions—extra-constitutional enactments which courts must enforce, but which subvert the inspiring and protecting principles of our American system; non-institutional laws which assume to suppress human nature; laws beyond the domain of law, which usurp the province of the spiritual and seek to regulate and discipline the soul of man.

"Our Constitution is only one of our institutions, although the heart of them all; and the vital element of our fundamental law is the supremacy of the Supreme Court of the United States. Our institutions, Constitution and courts, draw their life from the people's faith and confidence in them.

"Yet one group annihilate faith and confidence in our Constitution and institution. Another group undermines faith and confidence in another part, a third group destroy faith and confidence in another part, and so on—let this happen and the basic ordinances of the nation will be disintegrated."

Professor Corwin traced the development in constitutional history of the Supreme Court's power of judicial review. He said there was no question but the Court's power to revoke State statutes in conflict with the Constitution had been a thorough success, but that its review of Congressional enactments had "not done more in any case than to interpose a temporary delay in the effectuation of unpopular opinion in law."

He said that judicial review was the American way of meeting the problem in hand and it would not be set aside even in Congressional legislation until "we have met and solved more satisfactorily the problem of establishing a responsible legislative leadership."

WON'T ACT YET ON HAYNES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—A White House spokesman made it plain today that, pending action by Congress on proposed Administration changes in the Volstead act, no steps would be taken toward the appointment of a successor to Commissioner Roy Haynes. It was indicated that if a change was made at the head of the prohibition unit it would be when the idea of securing a more efficient administration of the Volstead act.

The White House spokesman said that it was the belief of the President that Commissioner Haynes had done very efficient work in trying situations, and that at this time the appointment of some one to succeed him was not under consideration.

There is reason to believe that Treasury officials in the Army next future recommend a change in the wording of the prohibition unit, but it was said today that they will defer moving in the case until Congress has passed the Cramton bill, which proposes to make the unit a separate bureau instead of a division in the Internal Revenue office as at present.

500 BILLS OFFERED IN ALBANY SESSIONS

Among Them Are Measures to Lengthen Terms and Increase Salaries of Legislators.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 20.—Both Senate and Assembly held short sessions today, when 217 bills were introduced in the upper house and 308 in the Assembly.

A measure designed to drive quack doctors out of the State was introduced by Senator John L. Karle, Republican, of Queens. It would require every licensed physician to register once each year with the State Department of Education. A similar bill was defeated in the Assembly last year after it had been passed in the Senate.

Three proposals for amendments to the State Constitution were offered in the House by Assemblyman Julius S. Berg, Democrat, of the Bronx. One would increase from two to four years the terms of members of the Senate, and the terms of Assemblymen from one to two years. Another would increase the salaries of the members of both houses from $1,500 to $5,000. The third would prevent the Governor from pardoning a person convicted of first degree murder unless the sentence had been commuted or he had been in prison for twenty years, or where it had been conclusively proved that the person was innocent.

Two bills introduced by Assemblyman Brunner would appropriate a total of $5,000,000 and require the Long Island Railroad to eliminate grade crossings in Rockaway Beach and Far Rockaway. The expense of the elimination would be borne jointly by the State, New York City and the railroad.

A proposal to amend the Constitution by striking out the provision that voters in cities and villages of fewer than 5,000 inhabitants shall not be required to register personally was offered by Assemblyman Frederick L. Hackenburg, Democrat, of New York. For years the Democrats have been fighting for an amendment, but the Republicans always have defeated it.

An appropriation of $1,293,000 for the construction of Barge Canal terminals at Kingston, Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Yonkers is called for in a bill introduced by Assemblyman Alexander H. Garrigot, Republican, of Yonkers.

A new section would be added to the Public Service Commission law, providing that the commission shall have no power to fix rates for service charged by any public service company in the State of New York City and Troy, in consideration of franchises, which were imposed as conditions of franchise, under a bill introduced by Senator William E. Hickey, Republican, of Buffalo.

HARD COAL MINERS VOTE NOT TO STRIKE

88 of 90 Locals Oppose the Threatened Walkout, Scranton Union Leaders Announce.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 20.—Union leaders announced tonight that 88 of the 90 locals had voted today to oppose the threatened general strike of the 80,000 hard coal miners in District 1, United Mine Workers, and that the end of the strike of the 11,000 Pennsylvania Coal Company's men was in sight.

Meetings of all the locals were held today, and reports received tonight by District President Rinaldo Cappellini from district and international board members who were present showed, Mr. Cappellini said, that, with the exception of the strikers of the Pennsylvania Company, every local from Forest City to Shickshinny had voted to obey the request of union leaders and oppose the general walkout. Delegates in nearly every instance were said to have been instructed to vote against the proposition at the meeting in Wilkes-Barre tomorrow of the General Grievance Committees, representing the miners of the district.

The first break was noted this afternoon, when district officials announced that the Exeter Colliery, one of the largest operations of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company, and all of the Glen Alden operations, the large Parrish, Stevens, Woodward, Pettebone and Bliss, had voted to stand by the mine executives and disregard the threatened strike order. Nearly all locals of the Hudson and Lackawanna and Wilkes-Barre companies took similar action.

A meeting of the local representing the Woodward colliery of the Glen Alden, at Edwardsville, tonight the men overruled the strike motion of their former President, Stanley Edmunds, and voted to oppose the walkout. Edmunds, who was deposed from office by International President John L. Lewis, was one of the leaders in proposing that the general strike be called.

In a statement tonight President Cappellini said that he was glad the mine workers had voted to disregard the strike proposals.

"It was a hard fight while it lasted, but I am glad to see that the men have agreed to abide by decisions not only for their interest but for the order as well," the District President said.

HALT WOMAN LABOR LAW.

Corporations Get Stay Against Jersey Law on Night Work.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 20.—Enforcement of the law prohibiting night work for women in manufacturing establishments was halted in New Jersey today when former Attorney General Robert H. McCarter, representing seven of the large establishments employing women, obtained writs from Justice Black of the Supreme Court attacking the constitutionality of the act.

The writs temporarily stay action threatened by the Commissioner of Labor against any employer violating the law after last Saturday.

Mr. McCarter argued that the act was an improper exercise of the police power in that it is incompetent for the Legislature to enact a law of that kind, affecting women only.

A bitter fight has been made against the law, which was sponsored by women's organizations throughout the State. Charges of political manipulation to destroy the efficacy of the legislation were freely made.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 20.—Mrs. Bula E. Croker announced tonight that she had chosen Joseph Shay of New York, who is now in Palm Beach, to be her chief legal adviser, and that from now on she is going to take the aggressive in the lawsuits now pending and brought against her by the Croker children.

Mrs. Croker said that she would carry out the dying wishes of her husband to fight every attempt made by the children to get possession or even as much as a dollar of his money.

Widow Freed in Death Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 20.—Mrs. Willie Julia Merryman, accused by Baltimore County police of causing the death of her husband, William Merryman, five weeks ago, was released from custody late today. The police said they received a report from the chemists who examined the stomach of Merryman, stating that there were no traces of poison in the body and that Merryman's death was not caused by a drug.

25,000,000 TO HEAR COOLIDGE BY RADIO

TO LINK UP WHOLE NATION

Telephone Company Cooperates With Radio Corporation to Transmit Message to Stations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Elaborate arrangements are being perfected by the Radio Corporation of America and the Bell Telephone System to broadcast the inaugural address of President Coolidge. Broadcasting stations throughout the country will be hooked up with Washington and it is estimated that possibly 25,000,000 people will hear the President.

The local telephone company will install loud speaker equipment on the great plaza on the east front of the Capitol so that the 125,000 persons or more who are expected to assemble there may follow the address. This was done for the first time when Senator Harding was sworn in as President.

After a conference today between radio officials and the Congressional Inaugural Committee, which has approved the project, a statement was issued on the broadcasting plans. It follows in part:

"Another epoch-making event in the swiftly moving history of radio broadcasting is foreseen in the arrangements now being completed to enable the entire radio audience of the United States to 'listen in' to the inaugural ceremonies at Washington on March 4.

"The proceedings will be broadcast through WEAF, the experimental station of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in New York City, coming from Washington over that company's long-distance telephone lines, and will be transmitted by other telephone lines to many other stations throughout the country, which will broadcast the ceremonies simultaneously.

"The Radio Corporation of America will broadcast the ceremonies through Station WRC in Washington by means of wire lines transmitted to WJZ, WGY in New York City and WGY in Schenectady, N. Y., for rebroadcasting at those points.

"In addition to the broadcasting of this event, the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company will install public address loud-speaking equipment at the Capitol, which will enable those witnessing the ceremonies to hear word for word just what is said.

A local committee in charge of the spectacular features of the inauguration has been authorized by the President to hold a small parade, and to limit the official contingents from each of the States to not more than 500 accordingly, this year's parade will be small in numbers.

A court of honor may be erected in front of the White House for the reviewing stand for the President, although this is a matter of detail that has not been determined. Owing to the President's insistance that the ceremony shall be as simple as possible, no ball will be held in connection with inauguration prior to 1929. President Harding set an example of simplicity that President Coolidge is disposed to follow, although he has agreed to some elaboration.

KING MAY PAY $2 FINE.

Auto Mechanic Says Car He Drove Is Owned by George V.

If Bruno Bielfeldt, an automobile mechanic, made a truthful statement yesterday when he was arraigned before Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager in the Traffic Court on a charge of driving an automobile without license plates, the $2 fine he paid will come from the purse of the King of England.

Bielfeldt, who is 28 years old, and gave his home as 75 Astoria Avenue, Astoria, Queens, is a German. "With very little knowledge of English, he was arrested by Traffic Policeman Kellman for violation of the Traffic Division when he was driving the car in Broadway, near Fifty-first Street.

"That car's fourteen years old, and is property of the King of England," Bielfeldt told the Magistrate through an interpreter. "The King sent it over here to be entered in the automobile show, and it has been on display in a wheel-less condition all day. Later I was to have driven the car out for a spin. I didn't know I ought to have a license to drive the car of the King of England."

"What kind of a car is this?" asked the Magistrate.

"Well, your Honor," was the reply, "that car might belong to some kind of royalty at that. It has shields and trappings and monograms and coats of arms on it that would take me all day to explain."

"Who's going to pay this fine, Bielfeldt?" asked the Magistrate, "you or the King of England?"

LEAGUE OVER GERMAN NAVY

Allies Transfer Supervision of Armaments to Geneva.

GENEVA, Jan. 20 (Associated Press.) The supervision of German naval armaments now has passed to the League of Nations in consequence of a communication received today from the Conference of Allied Ambassadors stating that the Interallied Commission for Naval Control of Germany was officially dissolved Sept. 30, 1925.

The communication explains this dissolution was conditional upon the understanding that the inspection of war materials used both by the German navy and army would be carried on by the Interallied Military Commission in conformity with the Versailles Treaty. The communique adds that the notification is in co-relation with Article 213 of the Treaty which declares that as long as the instrument remains in force Germany will permit any investigation of armaments which the council of the League of Nations may judge necessary.

HUGHES INTERPRETS PAN-AMERICAN IDEAL

ASSAILS CRITICS AS UNFAIR

Secretary Says Our Policy Is Not Overlordship but Cooperation for Peace.

MARINES BEING WITHDRAWN

Trade and Treaty Ties Are Also Cited as Indicative of the Hemisphere's Solidarity.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Secretary Hughes delivered a speech by radio tonight on American relations with Latin America, in which he declared the United States would welcome the incorporation of the principle of the Monroe Doctrine in the foreign policy of other American nations. He declared that this could be done without any American republic sacrificing any of its particular interests.

Secretary Hughes said the historic policy aimed at measures of aggression by non-American nations against any American State continues to be the settled doctrine of the United States, and must be maintained, but that it involves in no way any assertion of overlordship.

Referring to "those among us who constantly assail our motives in relation to the nations of Latin America," he declared it a pity that "among our fellow-citizens are those who cannot be fair to their own Government." Efforts abroad to create animosity toward the United States were of diminishing effect, he said, and characterized those who accused the United States of exercising an "imperialistic" policy as having a "hopeless twist" of mind.

"The last thing in the world we desire," he said, "is to assume responsibility as to other peoples."

Mr. Hughes stated that we have already withdrawn our marines from Santo Domingo, were prepared to withdraw from Nicaragua the end of this month but had been asked by the new President to remain a little longer, and are only waiting in Haiti to see a reasonable promise of peace and stability.

The speech was a feature of a Pan-American night program, including a concert of Latin-American music by the army band, known as "Pershing's Own," broadcast from the studio of WRC, the Washington station of the Radio Corporation of America. The broadcasting stations WGY at Schenectady and WJZ at New York were "hooked in" during the entire program, which was thus broadcast over the entire Eastern section of the United States and beyond.

Text of Mr. Hughes's Address.

Mr. Hughes's speech was as follows:

I shall speak to you briefly upon the subject of our relations with Latin America.

Our historic friendship with our sister republics of this hemisphere was born of the sympathy and satisfaction with which we witnessed the struggle of their peoples for independence—a struggle which culminated in the battle on the heights of Ayacucho one hundred years ago.

The patriots of our own Revolution and the statesmen who fashioned our institutions were the exemplars of the leaders in South America, and in the ardor, sacrifice and persistence of Bolivar and San Martin, of Miranda and O'Higgins, of Marino, Sucre and other heroes we saw the devotion to the cause of liberty which had consecrated the name of Washington.

This generous sentiment found eloquent expression in the impassioned speeches of Henry Clay, which were as familiar to the men in arms in the southern continent as in our own land.

Clay was fascinated by what he called "the glorious spectacle of eighteen million of people struggling to burst their chains and be free." Impatient of a cautious diplomacy, he demanded early recognition of the new States. But as John Quincy Adams, Secretary of State, explained: "While Spain maintained a doubtful contest with arms to recover her dominion, it was regarded as a civil war"; when the time was ripe and independence had been achieved, the United States "frankly and unreservedly recognized the fact, without making their acknowledgment the price of any favor to themselves," and in this measure took "the lead of the whole civilized world."

Our interest in the progress and prosperity of these republics has never abated. And in recent years that interest has been crowned most happily by the efforts at systematic cooperation which we describe as Pan-Americanism.

Aim at Pan-American Cooperation.

This Pan-American cooperation rests upon the conviction that there are primary and mutual interests which are peculiar to the republics of this hemisphere and that these can best be conserved by taking counsel together and by devising appropriate means of collaboration. This implies no antagonisms to any other people, or part of the world, no menace to the prosperity of others, but in itself constitutes a most important contribution to world peace.

Some of our people may think of Pan-American endeavor as of especial concern to the interests of the Latin American republics rather than to our own. But this is a serious mistake. We have the inescapable relations created by propinquity. We have the privileges and obligations of neighborhood; our activities are destined to be more and more interlaced; resistless economic forces draw us together. What could be more shortsighted than to ignore our mutual interests?

The essential basis of Pan-American cooperation is peace, and hence we lose no opportunity to promote the amicable settlement of all differences that could be the cause of strife. One of the happiest auguries of the future is that there are now no controversies between the nations in Latin America which cannot be peacably adjusted or which in fact are not in course of peaceful adjustment.

The difficulties which our sister republics face are caused by internal dissensions rather than by any external aggression. The old boundary disputes are being settled and no new differences of a serious character between States are arising.

Santiago Treaty as Peace Guarantee.

At the last Pan-American Conference at Santiago a treaty was signed by the representatives of sixteen American States providing that all controversies which may arise between two or more of the contracting powers and which it has been impossible to settle through diplomatic channels, or to submit to arbitration in accordance with existing treaties, shall be submitted for investigation and report to a commission of inquiry.

The contracting parties undertook not to begin mobilization or to engage in any hostile acts or preparation for hostilities until the commission has rendered its report. Any one of the Governments directly interested in the investigation of the facts giving rise to the controversy may apply for the convocation of the commission. The representatives of the American republics have thus sought in an entirely practical way by a general agreement to assure the maintenance of peace in this hemisphere.

And to this important treaty the Senate of the United States gave prompt approval. Apart from the specific application of this treaty, it is our high privilege through our good offices to aid in the amicable disposition of such disputes as may still exist in Latin America, and it is manifest that our contribution to this end must depend upon the confidence of other peoples in our sense of justice and integrity of purpose.

There are those among us who constantly assail our motives in relation to the countries of Latin America. What a pity it is that among our fellow-citizens are those who cannot be fair to their own Government!

And, of course, there are those in other countries who ever seek to create a feeling of animosity toward us. But I am happy to say that these efforts, however persistent, are of diminishing effect. The number is constantly increasing of those who know the truth.

Our Latin American friends who live among us, who know our purposes and ideals, who intelligently observe our activities, taking into account both preponderant sentiment and governmental action, are our best friends.

What is hopeless twist there is in the minds of those who accuse us of cherishing an imperialistic policy! Any one who really understands our people must realise that the last thing in the world we desire is to assume responsibility as to other peoples.

We wish to have prosperous and independent neighbors with whom we can deal in peace to our mutual advantage. We harbor no thought of aggression upon any one. Instead of encouraging the exploitation of other peoples, we are constantly by word and deed diminishing the opportunities for it and throwing the weight of governmental influence against it.

Our historic policy which we call the Monroe Doctrine in itself is designed to prevent measures of aggression.

This dictrine, as I have elsewhere said, may be summarised in the statement that it is opposed (1) to any non-American States under any guise and (2) to the acquisition in any manner of the control of additional territory in this hemisphere by any non-American power.

For Sharing Monroe Doctrine.

Deemed to be necessary for our security, this policy has none the less safeguarded the independence of American States. But it involves no assertion of any overlordship on our part. It was not intended "to give cover to any aggression by any new world power at the expense of any other."

While this doctrine was set forth and must be maintained as the policy of the United tSates, there is no reason whatever why every one of our sister republics should not have and formulate a similar principle as a part of its own foreign policy. We have always welcomed declarations by other American States to that effect. In this way, without sacrifice by any American State of its particular interests, the doctrine would have the support of all the American Republics.

I have pointed out that the chief danger of strife among our neighbors to the south lies in internal dissensions and in the tendency to have revolutions instead of fair elections. The influence of our Government is directed to the support of peace and constitutional methods. Recurrent revolutions are a poor sort of educational process; the greatest menace to progress and prosperity lies in political instability.

We have no desire to take advantage of this regrettable condition in neighboring countries, either to acquire territory or to assume political control. Nothing could demonstrate this attitude more completely than our recent withdrawal from Santo Domingo. Of course we could have remained in control had we desired, but instead of doing so we have been solicitous to aid in the establishment of an independent Government so that we could withdraw, and such a Government having been established through our efforts, we have withdrawn.

We have made our plans to withdraw our small contingent from Nicaragua at the end of this month, but the newly elected President has besought us in the interest of peace and order to permit it to remain until a constabulary or local police can be provided, and we have agreed to do so, but with the distinct understanding that this local police must be established and that we shall withdraw entirely before next September.

In Haiti we are only waiting to see a reasonable promise of internal peace and stability to effect our withdrawal. And meanwhile we are doing our utmost to promote the interest of the people of Haiti without selfish considerations.

Nowhere else in Latin America have we any forces, and everywhere we are seeking to encourage constitutional government, to use our friendly offices in the interest of peace, and to assure our neighbors of our respect for them as independent States.

The Pan American Union is based on the principle of the equality of the American States. In Pan-American cooperation the idea of force and of economic pressure is eliminated. It is sought to obtain results through the processes of reason, by discussion and mutual accommodation.

Cultural contacts are therefore of the greatest value and fortunately are increasing. They are multiplied by the ever-developing facilities of communication. They are aided by the formal methods of conference.

We have not only the general Pan-American Conferences, which meet at intervals of five years, but also special conferences which deal with specific and often technical problems and as a result of which each of the republics of this hemisphere is able to profit by the experiences of others.

Thus I may refer to the Pan-American Conference on Electrical Communications, held at Mexico City in May last, the Pan-American Child Welfare Congress, held at Santiago in October last, the Pan-American Sanitary Conference, which has recently closed its sessions at Havana, the Pan-American Scientific Conference, which has just finished its labors at Lima, the Pan-American Highway Conference, which is to be held in Buenos Aires in May next, and the Pan-American Educational Conference, which is to be held at Santiago, Chile, next September.

Seekers After Democratic Ideal.

Through these conferences the positive results which have been achieved in one part of this Hemisphere are made available to all, and through them a spirit of Pan-American helpfulness in the solution of educational, social and industrial problems is fostered.

Our economic relations are of constantly increasing importance. I am advised that, taking the South American countries and leaving out our enormous trade with Cuba and Mexico, and after making deductions corresponding to the change in the general level of prices, the increase in our exports to South America in 1923 over 1913 was 35 per cent. and in our imports 41 per cent.

The economic opportunities which lie at our door are almost boundless, and the advantages are mutual, but of chief consequence is the realization that we are all co-workers, each struggling to attain the democratic ideal. Each has much to learn from the others, but all have a permanent interest in a friendly cooperation, the fundamental principle of which should be the international application of the Golden Rule.

If anywhere in the world men can dwell together in peace and secure the benefits of peace it is in the Western Hemisphere, and here the United States has its greatest opportunity to exhibit a wise practicality without departure from the liberal ideals upon which its prestige and moral influence must ultimately depend.

SAYS NATIONS WAR FOR RAW MATERIALS

W. S. Culbertson at Women's Peace Meeting Lays Many Clashes to Fears of Monopoly.

SKEPTICISM ON ARMS CUTS

J. F. Dulles Discusses the Strength of Economic Motives as War Cause.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—William S. Culbertson, of the Tariff Commission, told the Conference on the Cause and Cure of War at its third meeting today that one of the chief causes for war would be eliminated if the raw materials of the world were open to all peoples. Mr. Culbertson was discussing "Raw Materials, Markets and War."

Other speakers were John Foster Dulles of New York, on "Economic Motives and How They Lead to War"; Professor Lindsay Rogers, on "Foreign Policy and Its Popular Control," and Dr. Beatrice Hinkle, on "Psychological Factors in the War Spirit." The conference engaged tonight in an open forum on the causes of war.

A visitor at the conference room today was Huntington Gilchrist, of Auburn, N. Y., who is connected with the secretariat of the League of Nations at Geneva. He was described as being in attendance as "an unofficial observer." Mr. Gilchrist declared in an interview that there was no significance to his presence, explaining that he was on his vacation, and was not here for the League. He said that naturally he was greatly interested in the movement represented by the conference, in which nine national groups of women's organizations are amalgamated, but that he contemplated no official report to the League of his observations.

Mr. Culbertson told the conference that "you cannot bring about peace by passing resolutions or by cutting down the size of the army and the navy."

Points to War's Economic Basis.

His address was in part as follows:

"The occasion of war would soon disappear if the external causes tending to make war inevitable were removed. But we cannot stop war by peace resolutions so long as we permit those causes to operate. The efforts of those who seek peace must be concentrated upon the removal of the causes of war and the provision of guarantees of security which will make armed force unnecessary.

"National security and the preservation of world peace depend upon an analysis of the economic basis of our society and the provision of means of adjusting economic disputes before they reach the stage of political differences between nations. Nations which are at peace today can argue themselves into a false security through peace societies and through pleasant references to their past relations, but if economic rivalry is permitted to go on unrestrained, unsuspecting peoples will awake some morning and find themselves at war.

"The power of a nation rests primarily upon the independence and energy of its population. This, however, is not sufficient to make a nation powerful in world affairs under present conditions. There must be an industrial and economic basis, which gives the nation strength and power, and manufacturing cannot develop unless a nation has adequate energy resources, especially coal, and a control of adequate supplies of essential raw materials.

"A study of world conditions discloses that geology and geography have a close relationship to the commercial policies of nations. Energy resources and essential raw materials are not equitably distributed over the earth's surface. Nations geographically and geologically favored tend to shape their policies to conserve, develop and even monopolize the resources within their own borders.

"On the other hand, nations poor in resources, sometimes called the proletarian nations, if they aspire to a position of influence in the councils of the world seek colonies, spheres of influence or guarantees which will assure them a supply of the essential necessities to build a modern economic state.

Cites Competition for Materials.

"Rivalry among nations or among national groups frequently gives rise to serious complications in international affairs. Industrial organizations frequently gain the support of Government, securing aid through such measures as export taxes and restrictions, preferential import and export taxes, Government monopolies, Government aid to producers, and finally in the contest for concessions for the exploitation of the agricultural, mineral and other economic resources throughout the world.

"National power and national security from one point of view appear to be synonymous conceptions. A nation powerful in industry, commerce, finance and defense would appear to be secure. But practically this has not proved true. The expansion of such country's economic life and increases in its army and navy force surrounding nations, if they desire to retain their freedom, either singly or in combination to match this powerful State. With several nations thus seeking security by imperialism the result has been instability, uncertainty and insecurity.

"Evidently permanent international security cannot be sought in temporary expedients like armaments. Rather there needed a set of firmly established principles to regulate the fundamental economic relations of States. Commercial security will be obtained only by offering similar security and certainty to other States.

"A detached observer today, ignorant of the national ambitions and imperial policies of the world, viewing the existing rivalry for raw materials, would marvel that a world so rich in resources should quarrel and fight over their control. The world's supply of essential raw materials is ample and in most cases inexhaustible. In any case the struggle for control is not primarily due to fear of exhaustion but rather to the fear that others powers may extend their political control over these sources, establishing a monopoly to the detriment of excluded industrial nations.

"The problems arising in connection with raw materials raise the fundamental question of 'who owns the earth.' Under present conditions, vast portions of its surface are destined to remain under the sovereignty of the great colonial powers. From these areas we receive many of the products essential to life. These include spices, cinchona bark, coffee, tea, cocoa, vanilla, oil-bearing seeds and nuts, hemps, kapok, rubber, ivory, goat skins, various metals and phosphates.

"To concede that colonial powers or nations exercising a measure of control in a so-called backward country have a right to monopolize the raw materials of that era for their own industries is to lay the foundation for bitter international controversies and war. The raw materials of the world should be open to all people, and, if they were, one of the chief questions which often lead to conflict among nations would be eliminated."

Dulles Blames Unrestrained Wealth.

Mr. Dulles said that "the greatest danger lies in the impulse to retain such wealth as we have." Under changing economic conditions, he said, "men who have been raised to a pinnacle of power and influence begin to struggle against the removal of their source of strength. One of the most effective allies in such a struggle is the Government, he said, "and under such conditions a powerful and ruling class is apt to use its wealth and position to put into power a Government which, for convenience, I will call a 'strong' government.

"Great Britain, perhaps more than any other nation, is menaced in its general economic strength by the vast changes which have been brought by the war," Mr. Dulles declared. "A small island supporting a large population, it has always been dependent upon performing services for others. It has engaged extensively in the manufacture of raw materials and their sale abroad.

"Two of the most important industries in this respect are the textile industry and the iron and steel industry. Yet if you will talk with experts in the textile field and in the metallurgical field you will find the opinion frequently expressed that both of these industries are doomed by economic changes in the world today. English industrial leaders recognize a menace to their prosperity, and, as we would all do in like circumstances, are struggling against this menace.

"So when we see the British Government including in its demand upon Egypt the right to utilize freely the waters of the Nile to irrigate the cotton development of the Sudan, that is but one manifestation of the efforts of the textile industry to ward off danger. Thus while the demand of Great Britain upon Egypt is, in a superficial sense, aggressive and grasping in character, yet in reality the motive behind it is less the desire to extend and increase wealth and power than the determination to maintain an established industry which is seriously menaced."

M. Vartan Malcolm, New York lawyer of Armenian birth, said that money is the greatest of all the causes of war, with religious differences, political quarrels and other points of difference as contributing reasons.

"Foreign policies of nations are determined by the amount of investments that the citizens of those nations have made in other countries of the world," Mr. Malcolm said.

"In Asia Minor, France, Great Britain, Germany, Russia and other smaller European nations have invested nearly $4,000,000,000 in the developing of railroads, mines, the establishment of banks and in loans to Turkey.

"Whenever these nations confer on a settlement of the so-called Near Eastern question their chief concern is not, as is often commonly understood by the people of their own countries, the future of the Christian populations of Turkey. They are primarily concerned with their own heavy investments of capital and with how the regions in which they have invested may be further developed and exploited."

Mrs. Catt Predicts Race Conflict.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, General Chairman of the National Council on the Cause and Cure of War spoke tonight on the race question.

"Sooner or later," she said, "the white race has got to disgorge."

Mrs. Catt's was the concluding speech in an open forum participated in by several of the women delegates to the conference. She said that "unless there is a way to return some of the land to the colored peoples that the whites have taken away from them there may be trouble in any kind of pact that may be formed.

"There is a menace in this question," she said, "unless we can do more than the League of Nations, or the outlawry of war."

Trouble will come, Mrs. Catt declared, because the white race has two acres to the man, compared with one inch to the colored man. If the peoples of the earth are descended from the Garden of Eden, she added, then they are now all "the same distance away from that place," but if they came down from the treetops, then they came from different kinds of animals.

Mrs. Newkirk of the Association of University Women addressed a question to the speaker. She stated that the people of California at first were glad to have the Japanese come there, but later became discontented.

"When the white race has disgorged," she continued, "and has given back to the colored races their proportion of the land, what is going to happen?"

"I would not be in any youth," Mrs. Catt replied, "not to cross bridges until we come to them."

APPEALS TO HOOVER FOR LOUVAIN LIBRARY

Rector Points Out That American Promise Has Been Only One-third Fulfilled.

LOUVAIN, Belgium, Jan. 20 (Associated Press).—The collapse of the undertaking to rebuild the library of Louvain University, at a point when 12,000,000 francs is needed to complete the work and on which 7,000,000 francs already has been spent, has prompted Mgr. Ladeuze, rector of the university, to appeal to Herbert Hoover, as President of the Commission for the Relief of the Belgian Educational Foundation.

"As you are aware," says a letter sent to Mr. Hoover, "the construction of the new library was undertaken by an American group headed by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler some four years ago. Unfortunately the response to their appeals has proved only partially successful and less than one-third of the necessary construction has been completed.

"This group has now informed us that it is unable to complete the building, which stands as a painful reminder of a fine, helpful enterprise which has up to the present failed."

The letter then reviews the post-war position of the university—the 20,000 000 francs provided from the Belgian Relief Commission, which saved it from collapse; the income from the Educational Foundation, which is contributing to the success of the university day by day, and the $50 000 subscription which Mr. Hoover secured some months ago.

After expressing reluctance to approach Mr. Hoover again, the letter continues:

"It was peculiarly an American undertaking on an American promise, and we have felt that perhaps you and your colleagues would interest yourselves in securing the necessary assistance for us in the library's completion. The building is only one-third completed, representing an expenditure of 7,000,000 francs; it requires an additional expenditure of about 12,000,000."

In conclusion, the appeal points out that "nothing Mr. Hoover has ever undertaken for Belgium has not been completed in the fullest sense," and expresses the wish that, as the five hundredth anniversary of Louvain University falls within a year, this gift from America will be completed by them.

DAMROSCH IS CONSIDERED.

White House Calls It Unusual to Pick Native of a Country as Envoy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Published statements that Walter J. Damrosch, musical conductor, had been recommended to President Coolidge for appointment as Ambassador to Germany, was confirmed at the White House today. A spokesman for the President, after mentioning that Mr. Coolidge had heard that Mr. Damrosch was born in Germany, said that it would be unusual to appoint to a diplomatic post in a foreign country a citizen who was born in that country.

The fact that Mr. Damrosch was born in Germany, said the spokesman, was not an insurmountable obstacle to his appointment as American Ambassador to that country, but as a rule such practice did not work out well. The impression given by the spokesman was that the President would not consider Mr. Damrosch for the German mission.

URGES CONSTITUTION PLAN.

Garrett Presses in House for Popular Vote on Amendments.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Representative Garrett, the Democratic leader, told the House today that a vote had been promised at this session on his resolution to change the method of ratifying constitutional amendments.

The resolution is similar to one introduced by Senator Wadsworth, Republican, of New York, and sets up machinery designed to give the voters an opportunity to pass upon future amendments.

Mr. Garrett said he believed that in some cases the Constitution had been "amended by minority." As the situation now stands, he asserted, fewer than 4,000 individuals can alter the Constitution.

"Two-thirds of a majority of the House and Senate and a majority of a quorum of forty-eight Legislatures can completely revolutionize our dual form of government," he declared.

CITE EXAMPLE OF RUHR

Attitude of American Irreconcilables Continues Theme of Puzzled Comment.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Secretary Hughes's declaration of the position of the United States concerning the financial agreement signed last week in Paris, is regarded in official circles here as a fair and accurate presentation of the actual situation.

Though the agreement having been signed, Mr. Churchill, M. Clementel and others treated themselves to somewhat warm expressions of delight that America was once more taking a place in the allied councils and had put her signature to a document signed in common by all the other victorious Allies, it is recognized here that their pleasure was far from being barbed by any malevolent thought that the United States had been caught in allied toils.

Neither Mr. Churchill, M. Clementel nor any one else imagined, as they spoke the congratulatory speeches, that their words would be interpreted as meaning that the United States had signed away all right of independent action and would be henceforth involved in every twist and turn of reparations politics, for the reparations problem is not longer regarded here as a political problem. With the functioning of the Dawes plan it is simply a matter of accountancy at both ends, in which the American rôle is very considerable.

No Country Committed to Action.

If the plan breaks down there may have to be a general meeting of Germany's creditors, but neither Great Britain, France nor any other country signatory to last Wednesday's distribution of proceeds plan for a moment considers that that signature in any way committed them to any definite course of action, or even to solidarity of action, in the event of failure, according to the view of it taken in Paris.

It is pointed out that the British Government, which signed the Treaty of Versailles and every other reparations agreement, never felt itself in the least bound by that fact to join the French in occupation of the Ruhr. The British Government reserved its independence of action to the point of differing strongly with its principal ally in interpreting the treaty. The French and Belgians on their side did not in the least feel bound to abide by the British interpretation or follow the road laid down by Bonar Law as the right and wise one.

In last Wednesday's compact there was from the allied point of view no future commitment at all to any course of action regarding the impounding payments on Germany. The only contract made was between the allied powers and America that they would share all payments made in a certain percentage. Should Germany fail to carry out the provisions of the Dawes plan, either voluntarily or involuntarily the question of taking steps and the question of the steps to be taken for the recovery of each creditor's individual share would be a question entirely for that creditor or for any group acting together. But as it is held that a very wide stretching of the 'moral" undertakings of Wednesday's contract to say that any one was bound thereby to take any action whatever.

Can't Understand Irreconcilables.

The attitude of the irreconcilables in the United States Senate has therefore roused here wonderment and surprise. The internal political side of the question being quite incomprehensible to the Frenchman, he fails to find any other interpretation of the attitude of Senators Johnson and Borah than that they are pro-German, though even then he fails to find wherein they can be pro-German.

It is utterly beyond the Frenchman's understanding that, while Americans can participate with cash in putting into existence a reparations recovery plan framed and administered in large part by Americans and bearing the name of the Vice President of the United States as one of its originators, the American Government should not be permitted, for fear of entanglements, to receive a 2½ per cent. share of the proceeds of that plan.

In the French view, if the plan works as its originators and operators believe it will, the question of entanglement cannot possibly arise, and if the plan does not work out it will be an open matter for every country interested in its working to renounce its share or try to recover by whatever means it thinks fit. If there is a difference of opinion on the means to be employed, as there was during the Ruhr episode, the decision of one power does not in any way involve the others. That is the situation as seen over here.

On one point, however, the Allies are congratulating themselves—that they did not accept Ambassador Kellogg's proposal that the agreement should be made subject to ratification by the American Senate. If that course had been taken, it is commented, it might have been another five years before Seymour Parker Gilbert, the Agent General for Reparations, charged with handing out the percentages of the proceeds, could have got rid of what the Germans have already paid and are paying.

Editor Criticises Senators.

Stephane Lausanne, writing in the Matin, says:

"It is a fine thing to be an irreconcilable like that fine man Senator Borah and honest Senator Johnson. But all the same one must not be irreconcilable without common sense, logic and knowledge of one's own interests.

"Here is this little group which killed the Treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations trying now to kill the financial agreement reached last week in Paris. What is their motive—that the arangement alienates American liberty and brings the United States back into the cockpit of European quarrels.

"It is, first of all, astonishing that the Senators who head great Senatorial commissions do not take the trouble to read the text which they are fighting. If Messrs. Borah and Johnson would take the trouble to read the document they would find its title harmless. It is 'An Arrangement Relative to the Distribution of Annuities from the Dawes Plan.' Incidentally let us remember that the Dawes plan is of American origin. They will see that the whole part about America is contained in a special article so as to avoid any pollution with Europe. They will see even that each time a reference is made to all the contracting powers care is taken to mention the allied Governments and the separate Government of the United States so that it may be quite clear the Government of the United States does not keep bad company. What more could these gentlement want?

"Certain cables from America tell us that the European press, and above all the French press, have shown great joy at this understanding. It must be because these newspapers interpreted it as the return of America into the European arena. It must be because they believe they have bound America to European policy. That is the profoundest error. The French press is capable of committing errors, but since 1919 it will never again commit the error of thinking America a meek little lamb which can be thrown into the arena and tied without its knowing.

"France has certainly cause for rejoicing that the accord on the question of distributing money derived from two separate claims has been happily accomplished. She will always rejoice at any accord with America. But to the irreconcilables the word Europe is as a red rag to a bull. Perhaps they are right. But when one sees them oppose treaties which themselves made inevitable and pushing their irreconcilability to the point of not being able to reconcile themselves to their own ideas, they cannot deny us at least the right to smile."

REPORTS ON DAWES PLAN.

Gilbert Tells the Reparation Board Everything Is Working Smoothly.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—The first exhaustive report on the successful work of the organizations entrusted with the execution of the Dawes plan was presented to the Reparation Commission in Paris today by Agent General Seymour Parker Gilbert.

Complete satisfaction was expressed by the members of the commission over the working of the plan thus far. Mr. Gilbert in the course of his report having assured the commission practically no obstacles had been encountered. The Germans to date have shown every disposition to cooperate, said, according to Mr. Gilbert, will in all likelihood continue to do so in order to realize the benefits of the first external loan which will be available under unimpeded operation of the plan.

Mr. Gilbert showed that the expenses of the various international commissions for the first four months, beginning Sept. 1 last and ending Jan. 1, had not exceeded the original provisions.

During the same period the receipts from the Dawes plan amounted to 286,263,477 gold marks, while payments totaled 280,291,415 gold marks, leaving a total to Mr. Gilbert's credit of 5,972,032 gold marks. Payments made to allied accounts were distributed as follows: France 113,657,668 gold marks; Italy, 23,523,094 gold marks; Great Britain, 65,868,535 gold marks; Belgium, 20,555,771 gold marks. Mr. Gilbert declared himself thoroughly satisfied with these results.

In conclusion he expressed the opinion that it would be better not to proceed with the appointment of the five subcommissions for the collection of revenues attachable under the Dawes plan on customs, tobacco, alcohol, beer and sugar until after Mr. Macfeydean, who is in charge of these sources of revenue, had put into working order a surveillance of these monopolies.

Colonel Logan to Take a Vacation and May Report to Hughes.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Colonel James A. Logan, America's unofficial observer on the Reparation Commission, sat with the commission for the last time today before his departure for what he calls a vacation.

He said today he was not quite sure whether he would spend this vacation in America, but it is generally assumed that part of it will be devoted to a visit to Washington for the purpose of making a personal report to the United States Government on the debt negotiations held in Paris.

expressions of skepticism on the Paris agreement, but they considered seriously a proposal to extend the terms of a pending resolution of inquiry so as to ask not only for a copy of the Paris agreement but for a statement also of the considerations which led to its signature by the American delegates. The resolution, proposed by Senator Johnson, Republican, of California, is to come up in the Foreign Relations Committee tomorrow, and its supporters expect it to be adopted without debate.

Should the Johnson resolution in its expanded form eventually receive the approval of the Senate itself, it would provide a vehicle for a direct exchange of opinions between the Administration and opposition Senators, and in the belief of some Senate leaders might enliven the dying days of the short session of Congress with a forensic battle of unusual proportions.

It is the purpose of the State Department to make public the text of the agreement once it is received from Paris, but department officials apparently do not expect its receipt for several days. They took no notice today of reports that it was held in Paris because of minor changes in phraseology, nor did they offer any explanation of the delay beyond the slowness of the cable and of official communication generally.

One of the points which the Senate irreconcilables have in mind to develop relates to recurring reports that before the agreement was signed Ambassador Kellogg sought to attach a reservation somewhat restricting the scope of American participation in the settlement.

This report the State Department neither has confirmed nor denied, although when the story first reached Washington the department did make a denial which apparently was intended to apply to it. It was declared with emphasis that there was no foundation for a report that Mr. Kellogg had sought such a reservation in the final plenary session of the conference, but when the suggestion was brought forward that he might have done so in the previous private discussions department officials declined to comment.

It has been the oft-repeated view of the department, however, that the American Ambassador to London, bearing upon his shoulders the newly acquired additional responsibility of a Secretary of State designate, refrained from suggesting a reservation in the final plenary session because he had become convinced by what had gone before that no such reservation was necessary. Mr. Kellogg reached this conclusion, in the belief of the State Department, and signed his name to the document without reservation, after he had turned over in his mind all details of the negotiations from the standpoint of one who had been behind the scenes from the start.

There seems to be every confidence at the department that when Senators have been given the same intimate contact with the whole picture they will no longer fear that American signature of the agreement has plunged the United States into an entanglement heretofore avoided studiously.

For the present at least the irreconcilables are not publicly disputing this premise. Both Senator Johnson and Chairman Borah of the Foreign Relations Committee have refrained from any direct attack on the Paris settlement. They both retreated today, however, that European statesmen appear to disagree with the viewpoint of Mr. Kellogg and his superiors in Washington, and that nothing short of a complete examination of the whole question will make final judgment possible.

SAYS WE ARE HARD TO PLEASE

London Paper Declares Allies Did Us a Favor and We Charge Trickery.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 21.—In an editorial headed "Having It Both Ways," The Daily News says:

"American statesmen are rather hard to please. The United States having been admitted more as an act of grace than an act of justice to share in the proceeds of the Dawes scheme, some of her leading spokesmen are now complaining with a great show of indignation that their country has been 'trapped' by the trickiness of European diplomats into the political cockpit of Europe.

"America's claim to any part of the German payments under the new scheme has only a very slender basis, either in law or in equity, and this was pointed out by the British Government in a cogent note. But the claim was so strongly pressed at Paris that the Allies offered no effective resistance, with the result that America does undoubtedly become officially identified with the proper functioning of the Dawes plan and must presumably take a positive interest in the collection of the debt.

"But in this instance we think that the habitual criminals who infest the chancelleries of Europe and spend so much of their time trying a confidence trick on the artless American politicians may put in a fairly convincing plea of not guilty. After all, there appears to be no magic formula by which even America can have it both ways."

WORLD COURT PLEA MADE BY H. W. TAFT

Says Extension of Anglo-Saxon Idea of Impartial Judges Will Promote Peace.

MRS. NORMANTON A SPEAKER

Tells English-Speaking Union Language and Law Unite Britain and This Country.

"The fundamental things which go to make up the body of the legal and political rights of English-speaking nations are not only worth preserving for their domestic welfare, but, applied to the affairs of the world at large, tend to introduce into international relations principles of good-will and justice and thus aid in the preservation of the peace of the world," declared Henry W. Taft, President of the Bar Association of New York City, at a meeting of the English-Speaking Union yesterday afternoon at the Plaza.

The subject under discussion was the common law of the English-speaking peoples as a constructive force in promoting cooperation among them. The other speakers were Mrs. Helena Normanton, England's first woman barrister, and DeLancey Nicoll, Charles H. Strong, Secretary of the Bar Association, presided.

Mr. Taft said that it would be presumptuous for the English-speaking peoples to assume that their ideals of morality, religion, education or of the fine arts were superior to those of other nations.

"But," he went on, "what the English-speaking nations may claim is that after centuries they have hammered out legal and political institutions which, imperfect though they may be, are yet calculated to cultivate a desire for peace and to afford effective means for its preservation." He added that England, her dominions and America believed that impartial justice cannot be administered except by judges who are independent of influences of every kind. "It will be this idea in international affairs," he said, "which will inevitably tend to the peaceful settlement of controversies.

"The fear that judges would not be independent delayed the establishment of a World Court for more than a quarter of a century after the United States at the First Hague Conference sought to have it established. However, though Elihu Root devised a method by which the judges could be selected so that their judicial action would be impartial, we have not joined the Court. It is difficult to understand how, without being false to our record for the last quarter of a century in seeking to procure such a court, and to our own ideals of fundamental justice impartially administered, we can long remain indifferent to this concrete effort to establish a tribunal whose decisions will tend, on principles of established international law, to remove from controversy questions whose agitation might well be a cause of war."

Mrs. Normanton said that the political severance of England and the United States had seemed a severe thing at the time it happened, but as time went on it was becoming clearer that though divided politically two mightier things still united the nations, the common language and the common law.

Count Westarp, Their Leader, Throws Over Opposition to Carrying Out Dawes Plan.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—Insults flew back and forth in the Reichstag today when the big debate began on yesterday's declaration by Chancellor Luther of his governmental policy. The principal speakers were the Socialist leader, Dr. Breitscheid, and the Nationalist, Count Westarp. The former spoke amid a running fire of hisses and interruptions from the Nationalists and "Völkisch" Extremists of the Right, who, despite their lack of real enthusiasm for the Luther Government, now suddenly find themselves to a considerable extent its sponsors against the opposition of the Socialists, Democrats and Communists.

Dr. Breitscheid mentioned in the course of his speech that a Franco-German tariff war would be fatal for the Herriot Government, whereupon the "Völkisch" member, Major Henning, shouted: "Is your speech paid for by France?"

"That is a scoundrelly thing to say," retorted Breitscheid, while pandemonium broke loose all around him, and Reichstag President Löbe called both Henning and Breitscheid to order.

Similar insults were fired at Breitscheid by the Nationalists and Extremists of the Right as he continued his onslaught on Luther's Government. Cries of "Barmat!" continually resounded in allusion to the alleged connection of certain Socialists with scandals involving the banking firm of Barmat Brothers, now under investigation.

Says Germany Tends to Monarchy.

Turning to the interrupter, Dr. Breitscheid shouted:

"Nothing could characterize the new German Government better than your exclamation. The Luther Cabinet is certainly a stage on the road toward monarchy."

This brought a thunder of applause from the Centre and Left.

The striking feature of Count Westarp's speech was his admission that the Dawes plan must be carried out by Germany, since it is now part of the law of the land.

"Every German Government is bound to carry it out and we Nationalists realize quite clearly that we must cooperate in so doing," said Westarp.

"Now that we Nationalists have entered the Government there can be no talk on Germany's part of breaking the agreements which have been concluded."

Dr. Fehrenbach's speech was most reserved and can be summed up as an announcement that his, the Centre's, party's attitude will be determined from case to case.

Herr Scholz, speaker for the People's Party, announced his party stood behind the Cabinet.

The Communist Ruth Fischer declared war on the Cabinet and also on the Socialists. She was applauded by parties of the Right when she declared English and American capitalists planned to reduce Germany to the status of a colony for exploitation.

Representatives of the Democrats and minor parties will be heard tomorrow, after which the Reichstag will vote on the proposal to "approve" the Cabinet.

The Communistic daily, Die Welt am Abend, violently attacks Count Westarp today, declaring that a recent monarchistic speech by him at Stuttgart is a plain case of treason against the German Republic in the light of Chancellor Luther's declaration yesterday that the new Government would proceed vigorously against all attempts to subvert the German republican Constitution. In his Stuttgart speech, the Communist paper points out, Westarp said: "Kaiserless times are frightful times. Germans need a strong leader. We must realize that the only way for us to free ourselves from the miserable slavery is to return to what made us great and powerful—monarchy, Kaiser and empire."

That is incitement to overthrow the republic, declares Die Welt am Abend, calling upon Chancellor Luther to prosecute Westarp for high treason.

Partisan Press Cool to Luther.

Enthusiasm is conspicuously lacking in today's comment on Chancellor Luther's declaration of policy in the Reichstag yesterday. Extremists of the Right find their joy at the pronounced Rightward tendency of the Luther Cabinet dampened by the new Chancellor's failure to announce a program such as would delight their Extremist hearts. They are not pleased at his pussyfooting allusions to allied non-evacuation of Cologne and German efforts to shake off the burden of guilt for the World War. Though they maintain they are resigned to carry out the Dawes plan along the lines laid down by the Marx Government, these extremists would nevertheless have relished hearing from Dr. Luther some anti-Dawes flings—a bit of damning with faint praise for Dawes, Owen Young and the rest of those who presented to Germany the reparations program which for months has been the object of bitterest attacks from the German anti-republic pro-monarchy elements.

This lukewarmness toward Luther changes to active hostility when one looks Leftward. All the way from the Centrists to the Communists the new Cabinet's ears are assailed by a hoarse rumble of distrust, dislike and disgust.

Germany's reception of Chancellor Luther and his colleagues brings home forcibly how apt was the quotation in the Reichstag yesterday by Communist Leader Könen of the remark flung at Martin Luther by an onlooker when the reformer faced the diet of worms:

Socialist Supports Arms Charges.

BERLIN, Jan. 20 (Associated Press).—In opening the political debate in the Reichstag today on the Luther Government's statement of policy Dr. Rudolph Breitscheid, Socialist leader, provoked uproarious scenes and interruptions from the Right in protest against his ironical comments on the make-up of the new Cabinet and his observation that the complaints of the Interallied Military Control Commission could not be completely refuted.

In backing up his declaration that the disarmament stipulations had not been altogether complied with by Germany, Herr Breitscheid asserted that students had participated in military training in the Reichswehr.

Despite strong attacks by the Socialists and Communists on the composition of his new Cabinet and the Government's official declaration of policy as made in the Reichstag yesterday, Dr. Hans Luther, the new Chancellor, is assured a safe majority on a motion of confidence in the Government submitted by the Socialists today.

Dr. Luther will have the support of the Nationalists, the German People's Party, the Centrists, the Bavarian People's Party and the Economic League when the Socialists' resolution is taken up for action probably tomorrow.

The Democrats have not yet decided whether they will give a motion expressing confidence in the Government their endorsement or abstain from voting. There are prospects that a section of the Clerical Party's left wing will refuse to support this resolution. The Government, however, is assured sufficient votes to overcome the opposition of the Socialists and Communists and a possible defection on the part of the Democrats.

The comment of the morning newspapers on the Ministry's pronouncement is along strictly partisan lines. Chancellor Luther's program, however, is met with little opposition except in the case of the Communist Red Flag, which characterizes it as "an unconditional capitulation before the powers of world capitalism." The partisan opposition of the political Left wing is directed chiefly at the Chancellor's associates.

"The faces we saw yesterday on the Ministerial benches make travesty of the words we heard," says the Socialist Vorwärts. "In these faces we read what they want, but from the words we gather that they do not dare say what they want."

The comment of the Tageblatt expresses a certain incredulity.

"People ask how Dr. Luther expects to carry out this program with such a Cabinet," it says, "and how, above all, the German Nationalists, with their attitude in the campaign and toward the voters, can support it."

Germania, organ of former Chancellor Marx, says:

All the Liberal and Radical papers ask why a crisis was conjured up by Foreign Minister Stresemann if the new Cabinet expressly promises to follow in the footsteps of the old.

Die Zeit, Foreign Minister Stresemann's organ, said: "The impression of the Government's declaration is that Dr. Luther's Cabinet will not be a parliamentary battling Ministry. Dr. Luther assures that he will strive to bring about internal peace, hence it will not be a Cabinet allied against the Left."

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung is of the opinion that "this Cabinet, like no others, is suited to place the idea of internal reconciliation and objective work as the chief aim of its activities."

The Lokal Anzeiger is delighted that Chancellor Luther offered the Radicals so little opportunity for an attack and describes the Cabinet as one which marks "the return to objectivity."

The Kreuz Zeitung states that the carrying out of Dr. Luther's program is possible only if "the socialistic régime in Prussia does not remain."

The Tägliche Rundeschau declares: "Chancellor Luther's declaration brought something for everybody, so that there was no occasion for protests or stormy scenes."

On the whole, the conservative papers see in yesterday's performance merely the beginning, and intimate that they have greater hopes for the future.

SEES DANGER IN DAWES PLAN.

Temps Reads in Luther's Speech a Plan to Demand Revision.

PARIS, Jan. 20 (Associated Press).—The début before the Reichstag in Berlin of Chancellor Luther's new Government made a decidedly disagreeable impression in French official circles, it would appear from the comment voiced in those quarters today.

Attention was called at the Foreign Office to the fact that Dr. Luther began by saying he would execute the Dawes plan, and wound up his declaration by intimating it might be necessary to demand a revision of that plan. The Chancellor's quoted words were taken by the French to mean that Dr. Luther spoke first to propitiate the Democratic elements in the Reichstag, and then revealed his real sentiments, which are interpreted here as hostile to the payment of reparations.

After saying that he considered the solution of all the questions arising from the London accord to be one of his most important tasks, especially the execution of the engagements Germany had undertaken, Dr. Luther, according to special dispatches received by the Paris newspapers, added: "Nevertheless, I shall also strive with just as much energy to obtain all mitigation and every amelioration which appear necessary."

The Temps, discussing the new Chancellor's foreign policy as interpreted from his declaration, after quoting the foregoing passage, says: "That is to say, that while promising the execution of the Dawes plan and the London arrangements, the Luther Cabinet will seek their revision in favor of Germany. This is the very program of the Nationalists, who made such a revision one of the conditions for their vote for the Dawes plan in the Reichstag last September."

The Temps prophesies that Germany intends to raise such difficulties in executing the London accord that the question of revision will have to be considered, naturally at the cost of the Allies. The paper continues: "There is to be no open resistance to the peace treaty and the agreements freely accepted by the Reich, but a return to the policy of passive resistance in the hope of wearing down the energy of the powers."

It is pointed out by political observers here that Dr. Luther was one of the German delegates who negotiated the application of the Dawes plan in London on an even footing with the Allies, and that the delegates representing Germany accepted of their own free will a method for the payment of reparations for the first time since the Treaty of Versailles was signed.

A Foreign Office spokesman remarked that if the Allies were unable to count upon such accord, then there was no counting on the good will of Germany.

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—Dr. Höfle, ex-Minister of Posts, who resigned at the instance of President Ebert following disclosures in the financial scandal involving the Barmat Bros.' banking concern, was subjected during the last few days to a grilling cross-examination by the Prosecuting Attorney in an endeavor to throw light on the alleged advance by Hoefle to the Barmats of large post office funds.

In connection with the cross-examination, Höfle's apartment here was thoroughly ransacked by the police in search of documents bearing on the case. The search also is being conducted on the premises of the General Post Office, where it is thought other important documents may turn up.

TOKIO, Jan. 20.—Mr. Tsuneo Matsudaira, the newly appointed Ambassador to Washington, speaking this evening at a dinner in his honor given by Ambassador Bancroft, stated that he could not emphasize too much how great was the stimulus he had felt at the kind statement of Secretary Hughes in welcoming him to America.

"I am aware of the heavy responsibility which I am undertaking," Mr. Matsudaira said, "but I could have received no greater encouragement than the cordial statement of Secretary Hughes in welcoming my appointment. It is another evidence of good-will and friendship which the United States entertains toward our country.

"In casting about for some basic essential thought which shall embody the relationship between America and Japan, I think I can express the idea completely in the words 'the desire of peace.' Our two countries are of one accord in their desire to promote pacific relations, which is not only evidenced by the public utterances of statesmen but by the people themselves. With the Washington conference the age of competition has passed and we enter the third period of cooperation to insure peace. I hope my efforts will contribute toward this end. I feel confident that I can count upon the traditional regard which the United States has always shown toward this country."

The new Ambassador will sail from Yokohama for his new post on the Korea Maru on Feb. 5. He told your correspondent this evening that he would forego taking a rest before sailing in order to be in Washington for the Presidential inauguration.

TROTSKY SENTENCE SURPRISES MOSCOW

LONG "INDICTMENT" READ

Soviet Leaders Now Hope He Will Depart for South Russia of His Own Accord.

MOSCOW, Jan. 20 (Associated Press).—The announcement of Leon Trotsky's dismissal as Soviet War Minister by the Central Executive Committee of the Communist Party was received today by the public with complete calm and apparent indifference. No word of the committee's decision was permitted to leak out until after the text was given officially to the Government news agency.

The Russian people learned only this morning through the Bolshevist press of the deposition of the Soviet military leader. The sittings of the Executive Committee had been kept strictly secret. It had long been understood, however, that the leaders of the Communist Party would take severe disciplinary measures against the head of the Red Army, although it had scarcely been expected that Trotsky would be dismissed from the War Ministry.

At the committee's sessions all the charges against Trotsky were restated in a lengthy document which resembled an indictment. This document asserted that the War Minister's activities against the Communist Party had encouraged the bourgeois countries abroad to believe that the Bolshevist régime was in danger of falling to pieces. It was also stated that Trotsky's opposition was taken as a signal by the elements hostile to the Soviet Government at home to unite against the policy of the Communist Party in order to assist in the overthrow of the proletarian dictatorship.

The written statement of the party's case then sets forth all the disagreements between the War Minister and the Communist Party, beginning with the Brest-Litovsk Treaty of 1918, and declaring that the war chief continuously expressed views against the party. It concludes by saying that even in his letter to the Central Executive Committee, pledging himself to work faithfully in any position assigned him by the party, Trotsky did not "in a single word acknowledge his mistakes, and in fact insists upon an anti-Bolshevist platform, limiting himself only to formal loyalty."

The punishment meted out by the committee is a striking illustration of the inflexible discipline which prevails in the Communist Party. Any member of less influence than Trotsky would have been banished long ago for utterances not strictly in consonance with orthodox Bolshevism. For years the war chief has been a thorn in the side of the party chiefs because of his outspoken declarations in favor of reforms in the party. The Government's political masters, however, hesitated to remove them partly because of Trotsky's popularity in the army and among certain sections of the Russian masses.

But the sharp attacks which the irrepressible army head launched in his recent book against the course of conduct of Lenin, Zinovieff and other powerful political figures, during and after the revolution, gave the controlling leaders of the Communist Party itself the opportunity of discarding him and stripping him of his power as War Minister.

The Soviet leaders now express the belief that it is likely that Trotsky will, of his own volition, seek the less turbulent atmosphere of Southern Russia, where he can "meditate further, not only on his book, 'The Lessons of 1917,' but upon the lessons of 1925."

LONDON, Jan. 20 (Associated Press).—The dismissal of Trotsky as Soviet War Minister is regarded here as the outstanding incident in world politics at the moment, and the probable effect of his removal is eagerly canvassed.

The war chief's deposition did not come in the nature of a surprise and had been more than once prematurely reported, but now that it has admittedly happened there is universal speculation as to what developments will follow. There is a fairly general belief, namely, that the triumvirate of Zinovieff, Stalin and Kameneff is far below Trotsky in ability—as far below as Trotsky was below Lenin.

For this reason it is argued that his disappearance from the head of the Red Army may have a very definite influence, but the view suggested in some quarters, that it is likely to prove a step toward disintegration of the Bolshevist régime, is not put forward with any confidence.

BERLIN, Jan. 20.—The dethronement of War Minister Trotsky by the Central Committee of the Communist Party meets with the pronounced approval of the German Communists, whose organ, Rote Fahne, asserts it signalizes the solidarity of the Communist Party and brings to a definite close a phase in the party's history of development in that it removes from its ranks a man who vainly sought to attack or improve the work created by Lenin.

"The fight on Trotskyism is not a Russian problem, but is a question of opposing half-way measures or concessions to the small bourgeoisie during the transition period when we are in sore need of unadulterated Leninism," the newspaper asserts.

The Rote Fahne organ believes that Trotsky's fall from office will be hailed by the proletariat everywhere and will again bring the banner of Lenin to the fore.

The disappearance of Trotsky will not have a far-reaching effect for the moment, in the opinion of the Vossische Zeitung, which declares the war leader never was a really dyed-in-the-wool Bolshevik, but always steered "a middle of the road course." This newspaper adds, however, that "history may one day designate his retirement as an important milestone along the route of Sovietism, whose end may be marked by the erection of a Russian democracy."

SCAR DRIVES HER TO DIE.

Woman, Unable to Remove Mark on Face, Takes Gas.

Despondent over unsuccessful attempts to have a scar removed from her face, Miss Minnie Hecht, 23 years old, daughter of Samuel Hecht, a walk-to-do realtor of 838 Hopkinson Avenue, Brooklyn, committed suicide yesterday by inhaling gas in her room at 207 West Seventieth Street. The young woman's body was found lying on the bed by the landlady, Mrs. Gustav Wentz. A tube attached to an open gas jet was in the victim's mouth.

A note, addressed to her older sister, Buddy, explained the motive for her death. The dead woman was employed by a clothing manufacturing concern in Manhattan. The parents later claimed the body.

HERRIOT DEMANDS LOYALTY BY SOVIET

ANSWERS CHAMBER CRITICS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Premier Herriot's whole foreign policy, including the re-establishment of relations with Soviet Russia and the withdrawal of the Ambassador from the Vatican, is being passed review in a debate which began this week in the Chamber of Deputies on the appropriation for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Interest in the debate centres on the Premier's answer to criticisms of his policy in regard to Russia and M. Briand's action in regard to the withdrawal of the Ambassador from the Vatican. Though M. Briand belongs to the Left Parties and his followers form part of the constant Government majority he is personally opposed to severance of relations with the Pope. It is understood, however, that his opposition to Premier Herriot's proposed suppression of the Vatican Embassy will not be pressed home. It is expected that an arrangement will be made by which a representative of the Government will be kept at Rome, charged with the protection of French interests but without the rank of Ambassador.

Most of today's discussion was taken up with an explanation of the Government situation by Henry Simon, reporter for the Budget Commission. M. Briand intervened only once and was reminded by M. Simon that Waldeck-Rousseau, Gambetta, Ferry and even Emile Combes, always showed the greatest respect for the Pope.

At times the debate got lost in the history of the relation of the French Kings to the Papal See, and at times it came right down to the effects on missionaries in the Near and Far East if the Papal representation was suppressed.

M. Simon presented the case for the Government according to the findings of the commission, but could not refrain from taking digs at the late Pope's attitude during the war and the present Pope's attitude toward the occupation of the Ruhr. The League of Nations, he argued, had taken the place of the Holy See as the impartial arbiter of racial destiny.

Premier Herriot struck the same note when in one of his many interventions he replied to a critic:

"Today the Pope is only a spiritual power. When he was a temporal sovereign he had the right to an Ambassador. I think I do not lessen my respect for him when I refuse to involve his spiritual power in all the thousand affairs of diplomacy. Your doctrine is a heritage of the past. Mine is directed toward the future."

The reopening of relations with Russia and the appointment of an Ambassador to the Soviets and of a Soviet Ambassador to Paris was the second most criticised action of the Government. M. Herbette, said the Premier, was doing well in Moscow. He was insisting that the basis of all resumption of normal relations was recognition of Russia's debt.

"We must continue," he went on, "to insist without ceasing that absolute loyalty is indispensable in our relations, and that the Soviet Government must submit in good faith to international custom."

That declaration was cheered by all parts of the House except the Communists.

M. Simon observed that the Soviet Government had been unable to raise subscriptions here for the Communist cause and had had to have recourse to capitalists. He went on to discuss the eventuality of American aid to Russia in the form of a loan, which he did not believe was possible.

In addition to speeches on the two major themes there are many other matters which will be called to the attention of the Premier by his followers and opponents. For instance, this morning Deputy Bonnat wanted to know why M. Herriot did not take steps "to hang the Kaiser and his miserable son, who, with their Generals, were responsible for all the devastation and misery of France." He wanted to know, too, what the Government intended to do about counteracting the new militarism of Germany and putting a really effective end to her armament.

TCHITCHERIN ASSAILS HUGHES'S SOVIET POLICY

He Asks How Russia, One-sixth of the Globe, Could Be Barred From New Arms Conference.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Jan. 20.—In a long statement on the resignation of Secretary Hughes, which will appear in tomorrow's papers, George Tchitcherin, Soviet Foreign Minister, recapitulates Mr. Hughes's activities during his term of office.

"Mr. Hughes won't be remembered kindly," he says, "either by Russian citizens or by any one holding the interest of human progress and a more just relationship between nations in their hearts."

Characterizing Mr. Hughes as being "inspired by a blind hatred toward Russia," the Soviet Foreign Minister holds Mr. Hughes responsible for the present relations between Russia and America. He refers to the Soviet proposals to resume relations addressed to President Harding and again in 1923 after Mr. Coolidge's message to Congress.

"In both cases," says M. Tchitcherin, "the discourteous refusal was due to Mr. Hughes's personal influence."

According to M. Tchitcherin, Mr. Hughes was becoming the main prop of aggressive imperialism throughout the world and now when he has resigned "life itself imperatively demands that the Chinese wall erected by Mr. Hughes between America and Russia should be pulled down."

Referring to the coming disarmament conference, which he alleges President Coolidge is going to summon on the advice of Senator Borah, M. Tchitcherin asks how it can be called without extending an invitation to Russia.

"The Soviet entry into the circle of the nations on the Pacific," he says, "brings it face to face with the American policy, and its interests will daily find themselves in a cul-de-sac should the present estrangement remain."

America, he says, is overflowing with capital seeking investment. Russia offers the greatest possibilities, he adds, her natural resources awaiting American capital, and now as in 1918 Lenin's plan, sent through Colonel Robbins, of inviting foreign capital still holds good.

Concluding, M. Tchitcherin expresses the hope that the replacement of Mr. Hughes may prove an historical step toward the restoration of relations between the two republics, bringing them closer to each other.

SOVIET MOURNS LENIN.

Anniversary of His Death Will Be Observed Over Two Days.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Jan. 20.—Two days' mourning will be devoted in the whole of Russia to the first anniversary of Lenine's death. Tomorrow all traffic in towns is ordered to be stopped for ten minutes. During this period ships, railway engines and factories will blow their whistles, and flags on Government buildings, on ships at sea and Soviet embassies abroad will be lowered.

Moscow is busily preparing for the commemoration days. Government buildings are being elaborately draped in black and red cloth and evergreen garlands, while black flags adorn every shop and house. In Red Square preparations are made for huge crowds which will visit the mausoleum. Speakers' platforms have been erected in several places. The Kremlin walls have been ornamented with electric transparencies and a huge portrait of Lenin has been placed on one of the Kremlin towers facing the tomb, with revolutionary slogans on huge banners.

While officially there will be no demonstrations, it is estimated that 50,000 provincial workers and peasantry pilgrims will visit Lenin's tomb.

The sale of liquors and beer is suspended and shops and restaurants will be closed two days.

FIRE RUINS RICH ART IN DRAYTON HOME

to precede him down the stairs. He picked up the boy and hurried through the smoke to the street, where members of Mr. Pierce's family and some of their servants had gathered with wraps hastily picked up with which to cover the scantily clad boy and the Drayton servants.

Driven Back by Heat.

When the first group of firemen started to open the door leading to the cellar with the idea of attacking the blaze with several lines of hose from that point, the heat was so terrific that they were driven back. Deputy Chief Dougherty then ordered the firemen of two truck companies to cut a hole through the marble floor of the reception room on the main floor, directly over the blaze.

It took considerable time for the firemen to puncture the marble floor and in the meantime the smoke had found its way in great volume to the upper stories of the dwelling. Even when the firemen had succeeded in making a hole and had directed four streams of water into it they experienced great difficulty in quenching the flames.

The firemen were working on relays when Mr. Pell sent word to Deputy Chief Dougherty that his servants had prepared coffee and sandwiches for the firemen and policemen. Mrs. Pell was a bridesmaid of Mrs. Drayton at the marriage about three years ago in Palm Beach. Mr. Drayton in 1907 had been divorced in White Plains, N. Y., by Mrs. Constance Knower Drayton, a daughter of the late Benjamin Knower.

The present Mrs. Drayton was divorced in Nevada in 1921 from Samuel Nellson Hinckley, a broker of this city and Cedarhurst, L. I. She was Miss Catherine Livingston Hammersley, a member of an old New York family, when she was married to the broker in Grace Church in October, 1914.

Mr. and Mrs. Drayton learned of the fire when they reached their home in an automobile shortly before 1 o'clock this morning. Mr. Drayton said that he had just left the Racquet and Tennis Club. The blaze had crippled the electric lighting system in the house, but he and Mrs. Drayton made an inspection of the interior with the aid of candles furnished by tradesmen.

When he came out of the house Mr. Drayton said: "I am not in a position at this moment to say just how much damage has been done. That will require a closer examination in the daylight. I have no idea whether the furnishings have been affected to any great extent by the smoke, although I am inclined to the belief that they were not. That, of course, is said after merely a casual inspection of them. A more expert inspection may reveal otherwise."

The Draytons moved into the house several months ago after Mr. Drayton had had it remodeled.

OPIUM CONFERENCE NEAR A BREAKDOWN

present conference would become just as farcical as the first, and the League of Nations could not escape some of the odium which inevitably would fall on the shoulders of those primarily responsible for such a result.

"It is next to impossible," said the Irish envoy, "to make progress in the face of nations who say 'we won't play,' for such a policy would throw the world back into the obscurity of the medieval night."

Mr. MacWhite affirmed that the American proposal not only furthered high moral principles, but also constituted a good day's work for the League of Nations. The presence of the Americans had a highly moral effect on the conference, and he hoped the United States would extend her cooperation in the League's humanitarian field to the economic and political domain, but he realized that the American people alone must decide this.

The speaker concluded by calling upon the delegates to smash precedent, if precedent had to be considered at all, and to vote for the American motion. This, he averred, was the only way of winning the approval of millions of fellow-creatures in the Orient, as well as the Occident, who eagerly awaited the culmination of the conference's deliberations.

Ireland's refusal to back Great Britain created extraordinary interest because of recent Irish insistence, despite Great Britain's objections, upon registering the Anglo-Irish treaty with the League of Nations.

Another feature of the dramatic day was the address of Dr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese delegate, who warned the so-called "opium bloc" that China now had awakened, and that if the powers failed to subordinate their financial interests to ethical interests and did not cease to exploit the Chinese and the Far East they would be held responsible for misery by the world, as a whole, but in particular by 400,000,000 Chinese. Dr Sze predicted that if the powers refused to act the Orient would be swept by a tidal wave of moral indignation which would have repercussions on the economic and political structure of the entire world.

The clash between Mr. Porter and Viscount Cecil started when Mr. Porter indignantly repudiated accusations made by Viscount Cecil on Monday that the American people were using mere opium and narcotic drugs than the people of India, which is a great opium-producing country and where opium is used by the natives. Mr. Porter declared Viscount Cecil's charge false, and characterized it as a vile slander upon the people of the United States.

Lord Cecil Ready to Quit.

The British representative withdrew his charge, with an apology for having made it, but he was so affected by Mr. Porter's speech that he wanted to go back to England immediately. Fellow delegates, however, succeeded in calming him.

The conference had scarcely recovered from the tension over the Porter-Cecil incident when it was again thrilled by Mr. Porter's appeal for the West to cease exploitation of the East in opium and by his solemn warning that the world was threatened with Bolshevism.

This latter declaration seemed deeply to impress his auditors because of Mr. Porter's position as Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Porter was fighting for the suppression of opium smoking in the Far East. He had opposed yesterday's British proposal to stop the smoking in fifteen years, beginning from the time when China had suppressed her growth of opium to a stage which would remove the danger of opium smuggling from China into other Far Eastern territories. Then, in a spirit of conciliation, he extended the time limit in the American plan for the abolition of smoking to make it fifteen years instead of the original ten. In urging the adoption of the provision he asked what the Western powers should safeguard their own homes while leaving the homes of the Orientals open to exploitation.

"Are not their children as dear to them as ours are to us?" he asked. "Away with this pretense of one law for the West and another for the East. Let us have one law for all and thus really work for world peace."

Referring to Bolshevism, Mr. Porter insisted he had opposed the recognition of Russia, not only on account of his own country, but because he realized the danger to Europe of Bolshevist propaganda. He argued that failure to reach an accord on opium at Geneva would put additional propaganda into the hands of the Bolsheviki in the Far East, which was calculated to endanger world peace.

In concluding the American Congressman declared the opium traffic a worse form of slavery than the human slavery which, before it was suppressed, had almost destroyed the American Republic. "Let us put right at the throne and wrong on the scaffold!" he exclaimed.

At the start of his remarks Mr. Porter, taking note of a brief address made by Mr. Sugimura of Japan supporting the American motion to review the work done by the first opium conference and approving the American ten-year proposal for abolishing opium smoking, congratulated Japan upon the way she had energetically tried to suppress the smoking practice.

"Japan's policy," he said, "is founded on the principle of suppression without regard to revenue." Unfortunately, he added, when other Governments had begun to follow they dismissed it.

The American delegate then created his sensation by strongly criticising Lord Cecil for his assertion of yesterday that the consumption of opium per capita in the United States was greater than in India. It was his duty to the American people whom he represented, he said, to challenge "such a vile accusation." The chief British delegate had pleaded yesterday for cooperation, continued Mr. Porter, but he was hardly practicing what he preached in making such an accusation.

"If he could have uttered a greater slander against the American people I should like to know what it is," the American added.

At this moment Lord Cecil, who sits just in front of Mr. Porter, arose and said he would like to withdraw his statement, but the American delegate insisted upon continuing his remarks, saying: "You can reply later."

Mr. Porter showed by figures that the consumption of opium in the United States was approximately the same as in most European countries, and he regretted that a reflection on the Government and people of the United States should have been repeated in a place some people hoped to see become the parliament of the world.

Turning his attention to Delegate Loudon of Holland, who spoke yesterday on the situation in the Philippines, Mr. Porter said the United States would never be entirely successful in eradicating the opium evil there until the disease was struck at the source. He said opium smoking was just as rampant in the Philippines when the United States took over the islands as in the colonies of the Governments who were defending the practice, but that "America's great President" had said it must stop, and it had.

Lord Cecil, again rising, said he would like to withdraw his statement immediately. Mr. Porter yielded the floor, and the British delegate voiced his great regret that his remarks should have been interpreted as an attack on the United States. "I accept absolutely Mr. Porter's figures and regret I have been misled," he said.

Resuming his speech, Representative Porter said the American delegation, while unable to approve the British suggestion of yesterday, recognized that a number of nations were confronted with difficulties in stamping out opium smoking. Therefore, as America was destroyed by reaching an amicable agreement, he would like to offer a proposal increasing the original ten years' limit to fifteen and leaving entirely to the Governments concerned the question of internal measures to carry out the project.

In view of the desperate situation, Herbut Zahle, President of the conference, spent this evening visiting the delegates in an endeavor to find some means of preventing a breakdown in the deliberations. Other influences also were at work to avoid a rupture. The initiators of this movement said they hoped it would prove successful.

Mr. Zahle told the correspondent of The Associated Press tonight that after the addresses tomorrow he would immediately adjourn the conference so as to give the delegates time for reflection and meditation before voting on the American proposal.

SEEK ZITA'S RETURN BY PLEA TO POWERS

BARON LEHAR TELLS PLANS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 20.—General Baron Anton Lehar, who was one of Emperor Charles's chief aids in his two abortive attempts to regain the Hungarian throne, made a statement to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent on the recently revived restoration plans in Hungary. The Baron is a brother of the celebrated composer Franz Lehar.

"General sentiment in Hungary has swung around greatly in favor of Empress Zita," Baron Lehar said. "This time there is no idea of restoring the crown by force of arms, or by a violent coup d'état, and the Empress refuses to return through a surprise move. On the contrary, the legitimist supporters intend to gain the people's support and to negotiate with the Entente Powers to consent to the Empress's return on the basis of the people's desire.

"It is expected that the legitimist platform will unite all parties and settle the extremely sharp political quarrels by which the country is rent. These quarrels have arisen mainly through a preponderance of the factors of brute force over the factors of right. Even the leader of the Social Democrats, Payer, declared recently that his party, though favoring the republic, will not oppose Empress Zita's return if a majority of the people demand it."

According to information gathered in well informed quarters it is expected that in the very near future official steps will be taken abroad by Hungarians in authoritative positions to insure approval of the return of Empress Zita and her eight children to their home.

It is generally believed here that the Entente powers will approve and that the attitude to be taken by the Little Entente, although it was originally formed to prevent the return of the Hapsburgs, will depend on the exigencies of the inner political situation. This is especially the case in Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, where a large part of the population are opposed to the Government.

There is little doubt that both Yugoslavia and Rumania, are strongly monarchist. Besides this, the Rumanian King has not forgotten that in 1917 when the royal family fled the country and the Hungarians occupied the capital, King Charles openly declared that the Rumanian throne must remain intact.

From a source close to Empress Zita it is stated that there is absolutely no truth in rumors about her second marriage, and that for the interests of the crown and her personal reasons she will never marry. Since ex-Emperor Charles's death the Empress has suffered from melancholia and, according to intimates of her household, only recently smiled for the first time.

MAYOR SENDS BUS APPEAL TO ALBANY

WOULD BLOCK INJUNCTIONS

Assails Craig for Acting Under Assembly's Power and Schieffelin for Court Action.

Asserting that Controller Charles L. Craig had by obstructive tactics probably caused delay in municipal bus operation by insisting upon proceeding under powers he claimed were possessed by the Municipal Assembly, Mayor Hylan sent a letter yesterday to all members of the State Legislature. In effect the letter said that he did not agree with Mr. Craig's contention, and asked for the passage of a bill giving the city the specific right to operate a bus system. The bill, the Mayor added, has been prepared by the city's Law Department.

Although the letter was dated Jan. 17, the Mayor in a postscript added yesterday called attention to the injunction proceedings brought by William J. Schieffelin, Chairman of the Citizens Union, as justification for his contention that procedure under the Craig plan would mean a long delay, estimated by the Mayor at two years.

The Mayor also said that, unless the Legislature should pass the bill desired, the Board of Estimate would be forced to grant short term bus franchises for the sake of giving the public needed service, although the members preferred municipal operation. The Mayor's letter follows:

CITY OF NEW YORK.
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR.
Jan. 17, 1925.

Dear Sir:

The bus situation in the City of New York can be relieved within thirty days by prompt action of the Legislature.

The two large transit operators in the City of New York are the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit Corporation (formerly the B. R. T.). These corporations received forty-nine-year leases of the subways constructed with the people's money. Not only did they get the most valuable franchise privileges in the world, but also the subways built at a cost to the people of $250,000,000.

Promises Adequate Service.

In addition they have taken all the profits and have not given to the city any return to pay the interest on the more than $250,000,000 investment of the people's money, so that the city must put yearly into the tax budget about $10,000,000 of interest. This is what we want to stop.

An independent subway system built, owned and operated by the people for their own benefit is now under way by the Board of Transportation. Decent and adequate service is assured.

The I. R. T. and the B. M. T., as well as the State Transit Commission, would have the people believe that the city cannot operate the projected new subways on a five-cent fare. This tractica propaganda has been exploded. The real purpose of these traction corporations is to seize the new subway lines, link them with the lines which they operate at present, extend their existing monopoly, create conditions of crowding and jamming on the new lines and continue such conditions on the old ones, and extort additional millions out of the indefensible congestion and through Wall Street manipulation.

Another purpose of these traction corporations is to seize the municipal bus franchises. They are determined to exploit these new resources of huge revenue. If the bus franchise and the new subway lines can be taken over by these corporations, they will have an absolutely complete monopoly of the transportation facilities of the City of New York. They are determined to prevent municipal bus operation and they are no less determined to obstruct the granting of these franchises to any one but themselves at the same time that they are refusing or neglecting to give proper service on the lines which they now operate.

Controller Craig, with characteristic obstruction, has been playing right into the hands of these corporations. Under guise of helping the bus situation, he caused several bills to be introduced in the Municipal Assembly, contending that the city had the right to own and operate buses under the Home Rule Amendment and Enabling act. The bills were approved. We are prepared to appropriate money to purchase buses for municipal operation. Traction spokesmen have already threatened law suits to stop such an appropriation. At least two years may elapse before a final decision is rendered by the courts on Craig's proposition. Craig knows this. Even if a favorable decision be rendered, no bus relief will be possible until that time.

Urges Passage of City Bill.

The Corporation Counsel and many prominent lawyers disagree with the Craig contention. They declare his policy spells delay, not service. This is too obvious to require extended comment.

To obviate all such delay there has been introduced in the Legislature a bus bill prepared by the city's Law Department. Its enactment will make definite and positive the right of the city to purchase, own and operate municipal bus lines. This bill can be made a law within thirty days. If this be done, we will appropriate shortly after March 1, $10,000,000 to initiate a well-lighted, well-ventilated, commodious municipal bus system on the streets of this city.

Here, then, is the way out of a vexatious situation. Prompt action is imperative. An appeal is made to you, on behalf of the long-suffering traveling public of the City of New York, to take such action.

A failure to proceed at once with the enactment of such empowering legislation will delay indefinitely the installation of a modern bus system.

The courts have declared that the city cannot legally grant permits for private bus operation. Moreover, an injunction was secured some time ago by the traction people to stop the municipal supervision of bus lines, and the appropriation of money for the installation of a municipal bus system. This injunction has not yet been put into effect, perhaps because of a fear of stirring up the wrath of the outraged people of this city. But if the injunction be made operative the existing emergency bus lines in this city would be stopped at once.

While barred from legally granting additional permits for bus operation, we can grant recapturable franchises to corporations for such bus operation. To the adoption of such a policy virtually every member of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment is opposed. We will, however, be driven to adopt this device unless the Legislature takes action to give the people relief.

At public hearings held in this city the people demonstrated their desire to secure adequate bus service without delay. We are prepared to give them such service under municipal ownership and operation, primarily because of the insurance of both service and profit for the people. We consider this a sounder business policy than the granting of recapturable franchises, which past experience has repeatedly demonstrated are exceedingly difficult to recover by the city.

The Board of Transportation has been working for some weeks on the mapping out of a comprehensive system of bus routes for all boroughs of the city. With that plan before us and with our right to own and operate municipal bus lines clearly established by the Legislature, we will, within the next thirty days, proceed with the installation of a city-wide municipal bus system.

I appeal to you, with all the earnestness and sincerity humanly possible, to cut the Gordian knot which has prevented the city from providing the people with adequate bus transportation. Your action will be in harmony with the wishes of the people of this city. It will be in harmony with the last message of the Governor of this State to the Legislature that "public utilities being essential to the health and well-being of a great city when the people desire it municipalities themselves should be permitted to purchase, build, own or operate them."

Very truly yours,
JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

P. S.—The Board of Estimate and Apportionment appropriated on Jan. 15, 1925, $135,000 for the purchase, equipment and operation of an initial municipal bus line on Eighty-sixth Street, Borough of Manhattan. On that very day William J. Schieffelin, Chairman of the Citizens Union, secured an injunction, completely obstructing the installation of a municipal bus service. The possibility of such an injunction, to which reference has been made in the body of this letter, has taken place. Here is another specific evidence of the necessity of prompt action by the Legislature on the city's bus bill which is now before your body.

Attack on Schieffelin.

Earlier in the day Mayor Hylan criticized both Mr. Craig and Mr. Schieffelin in commenting upon the latter's action. "While I don't think Controller Craig's theory is sound," he said, "nevertheless we could proceed upon the Craig bills and put buses on the streets of the city for the benefit and service of the people, had it not been for the intervention and interferences of so-called reformers and uplifters like William J. Schieffelin, who uses his Citizens Union to block everything beneficial to the people. The people want buses for their convenience and service and ought to have them—William J. Schieffelin and his pocket edition, so-called Citizens Union notwithstanding."

The order for the Board of Estimate to show cause why it should not be restrained permanently from appropriating $135,000 to buy buses for the Eighty-sixth Street line, authorized on Mr. Craig's motion by the Board of Estimate on Monday, is returnable before Supreme Court Justice James O'Malley today.

Louis Marshall, who obtained the decision declaring the operation of the present municipally supervised emergency bus system illegal, indicated that he would start another action to restrain the city from starting municipal bus operation under the Craig plan before the end of the week. Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, reiterated that his organization also would file a suit, attacking the Home Rule Amendment and its enabling act as unconstitutional.

B. M. T. NOW EARNING AT RATE OF $5 A SHARE

Financial Statement for the Past 6 Months Causes Stock to Advance Moderately.

The Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation is making a favorable showing and is increasing its margin of profit, according to its statement of earnings for the month of December and the last six months of 1924, made public yesterday. Publication of the statement resulted in a further moderate advance in the company's stock on the New York Stock Exchange at a time when the general market was sliding backward. The directors, at a meeting during the day, increased the board membership from 16 to 18 and elected Charles Hayden and Travis H. Whitney.

Upon the showing of the last six months it was calculated in the financial district that the company was earning at the rate of $5 a share on the 469,911 shares of no par value common stock outstanding. Actual earnings of $23.37 a share were reported on the common stock for the twelve months ended June 30, 1924.

The statement covering the last six months of 1924 showed a total operating income of $21,446,961, as compared with $19,576,897 for the corresponding period in 1923. The net income, after all deductions, amounted to $2,598,517 for the last six months of 1924, as against $1,836,712 for the last six months of 1923.

For December the company reported total operating revenues of $3,660,371, compared with $3,361,312 for December, 1923. After payment of all operating expenses and reserves for taxes on operating properties the company reported an operating income of $1,071,448 for December, 1924, as against $898,778 in December, 1923. After crediting non-operating income and making all deductions the net income for December, 1924, amounted to $505,203, as compared with $335,360 for the same month in 1923.

WHITNEY ON B. M. T. RIGHTS.

Wants City to Extend Lines Under Dual Subway Contracts.

An appeal to residents of Brooklyn to support a movement to make the Board of Estimate complete its obligations of the dual subway contracts was made by Travis H. Whitney, Vice President of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation, in a speech at a luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the St. George Hotel, Brooklyn, yesterday. Mr. Whitney quoted William S. Menden, President of the company, to the effect that construction of the Nassau Street subway, completion of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern line, the construction of shops and the lengthening of the station platforms would enable the company to double the passenger carrying capacity of its rapid transit lines.

"The city now has $150,000,000 invested in rapid transit lines that are operated by the B.-M. T.," Mr. Whitney said. "The improvements mentioned would cost about $30,000,000, or 20 per cent. of the present investment. What would you do in your business if an additional 20 per cent. investment would increase your capacity by 100 per cent.? Would you make that 20 per cent. investment or spend ten times that amount in building an independent plant, an independent subway system, that cannot possibly be completed for at least eight years, on which it will be necessary to charge a separate fare and which will benefit only the people living in the immediate areas traversed by the new system?"

TO RECEIVE SUBWAY BIDS

For Washington Heights Line Under Proposed Broadway Temple.

The Board of Transportation directed yesterday the advertising for bids for the construction of a small section of the Washington Heights subway under the proposed Broadway Temple at West 173d Street and Broadway, for which the city has obtained an easement. The bids will be received on Feb. 6. The board decided to go ahead with the subway construction in advance of the construction of the temple just as it did with the construction of that part of the subway under Public School 173, now in process of erection at Fort Washington Avenue and 174th Street.

The board recommended to the Board of Estimate an award of a contract for the station finish at the 111th Street station of the Flushing extension of the Queensboro subway to Charles Meads & Co. for $96,449.

CONVICTED OF MURDER.

Second Degree Verdict Against Ernest Pignataro of White Plains.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 20.—A jury here today after five hours found Ernest Pignataro, 23, guilty of second degree murder on a first degree indictment. Pignataro was charged with killing Alexander Thompson of Elmsford on July 5, after an argument over two hours' pay that Thompson refused to pay Pignataro. The prisoner will be sentenced Friday.

PLAN 2 ROADWAYS TO RELIEVE BRIDGE

CITES INCREASE IN TRAFFIC

Commissioner William Wirt Mills of the Department of Plant and Structures submitted yesterday to the Board of Estimate preliminary plans for two additional roadways on the Williamsburg Bridge to reduce congestion.

The cost of the new roadways is estimated at $1,500,000. Commissioner Mills said that of that sum his department had in hand $181,217.28. He asked authorization of an engineering force to prepare the detailed plans for the work and to supervise it at a cost of $25,680. In his report the Commissioner said:

"Each of the proposed roadways will afford facilities for two lines of automobile traffic. One roadway will be on the upper deck, southerly side of the bridge, and the other on the lower deck, northerly part of the bridge.

"The new roadway on the lower deck for westbound traffic will occupy the space where the trolley tracks used by the Third Avenue railway system are now located. In the traffic count for one day in October, 1919, the cars using these tracks carried a total of 53,383 passengers, while the number carried in one day in 1924 was 18,687. This shows that the use of these tracks has considerably decreased. In 1920 the New York Railways Company, which company has used the tracks in conjunction with the Third Avenue railway system, discontinued its operation of cars across the bridge.

"The volume of vehicle traffic over the East River bridges, as shown by twenty-four-hour counts, has increased, as follows:

Manhattan Bridge	20,015	50,956
Williamsburg Bridge	16,419	28,955
Queensboro Bridge	18,801	35,085
Brooklyn Bridge	6,605	1,238
	62,740	116,324

"The decrease at Brooklyn Bridge is due to the regulation ordered in 1922 limiting traffic to horse-drawn vehicles. The roadways of the Brooklyn Bridge are now being rebuilt and by May 1, 1925, the department hopes to repen this bridge to automobiles.

"The Queensboro Bridge is congested at its Manhattan terminal by the trolley and vehicle traffic on Second Avenue and on East Fifty-ninth Street, and this department has submitted a plan for relieving this condition, by cutting lateral streets through the blocks east of Second Avenue, from Fifty-seventh to Fifty-ninth Streets, and from Sixtieth to Sixty-first Street, which plan may be improved by carrying the latter street through to Sixty-second Street.

"For the Manhattan Bridge this department has found it necessary to reconstruct the main roadway on the lower deck, and this matter is pending before your honorable Board. With regard to the Williamsburg Bridge improvement, the entire cost of the two additional roadways provided in the plan submitted will be $1,500,000, which will provide roadways of a total width of forty feet, one 6,800 feet long and the other 7,300 feet long.

"No additional appropriation is required immediately, but the department should be empowered to proceed at once with the detailed plans."

OLD SOLDIER HALTS TRIAL TO END FUSS

Special to The New York Times.

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Jan. 20.—Enos F. Hann, 81 years old, a veteran of the Civil War, believes in doing his fighting in a war and not in a courtroom. He also is unique in being a damage suit defendant who is willing to influence a jury unduly in his favor.

Mr. Hann, who is custodian of the All Wars Memorial Home, States and Pacific Streets, Atlantic City, N. J., proved his principles in Circuit Court here when he finally persuaded his attroneys to drop his suit and accept a settlement.

On Dec. 26, 1922, Mr. Hann was struck and injured by an automobile owned by Fred H. Bartlett in Atlantic City. He was in a hospital for three weeks. When he came out friends advised him to sue Bartlett.

After holding out against that course for a long time Mr. Hann finally retained Godfrey & Garrison of Atlantic City to start an action. It was reported that one of the things that eventually won the veteran over to the idea of a law suit was that after the accident he could no longer ride his bicycle—and he was indeed fond of that bicycle, notwithstanding his age.

There came a turn in his mind, however, and he told the lawyers to drop the whole thing. Friends again overcame him. The action came on the calendar here, however, and the jury box was filled. Mr. Hann could stand it no longer; he just leaned over to that young lawyer and told him that he, Enos F. Hann, Past Exalted Ruler of the Atlantic City Lodge of Elks and a member of the G. A. R., was through with the law. He added that it was like as not that the jury, considering his age and his military record, would be altogether too hard on Mr. Bartlett. The lawyers consulted and a $1,000 settlement was decided upon. That ended the suit.

"Well," said Mr. Hann today, "I was willing to settle rather than go to all that trouble and waste of time and make life harder for the officials."

Mr. Hann lives at 22½ South Carolina Avenue, and he is on the job at the memorial home every day—including today.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 20.—Dr. Thomas Brown, who in the past two weeks had been commuting between Baltimore and New York to attend Mr. Daniel Guggenheim, declared on his return from New York this evening that Mr. Guggenheim was doing very well and that his condition was improving daily.

It seldom occurs in medical practice that a physician will travel 400 miles daily in attending a patient, but for several days Dr. Brown made the round-trip daily to New York to see Mr. Guggenheim. In addition, he has done much other professional work in Baltimore.

PRIEST GETS DEATH THREAT

Police Guard Him After He Receives Demand for $30 for "Red Hands."

Father J. Adamiak, pastor of the Greek Orthodox Catholic Church, in Grand Street, near Washington Street, Jersey City, was guarded by a policeman Monday night after he had turned over to the police a "red hand" letter threatening him and his family with death by "bullet, poison or bomb" if he failed to send "three banknotes—$10 each, $30 in all" to the "International Association of Red Hands."

The letter, which was not taken seriously by the police, despite the guard, was accompanied by an envelope in which the priest was directed to place the money. The police said it bore an address in Switzerland.

Father Adamiak said that nine Greek Catholic priests in Jersey City, Passaic and Newark received similar messages. The letter came Monday night and the priest was directed to send the money within three days.

KING ALFONSO DROPS IBANEZ LIBEL SUIT

AUTHOR RENEWS ATTACKS

PARIS, Jan. 20 (Associated Press).—Applause from all sections of the Chamber of Deputies greeted Premier Herriot's announcement this evening that King Alfonso had abandoned his action against Vicente Blasco Ibañez, the Spanish author, for his attacks on the monarch and military directorate by means of pamphlets written in France.

The Premier said:

"I have a pleasing statement to make to the Chamber. His Majesty the King of Spain has abandoned the action which he instituted against the writer, Vicente Blasco Ibañez. The Chamber will understand my wish to thank Spain's sovereign for this personal proof he has given of his liberal principles."

M. Malvy, former Minister of Interior, who has spent five years in exile in Spain, on condemnation by the French High Court, then rose, seizing the opportunity to testify to the manner in which Spain practiced the rights of asylum. He congratulated both France and Spain on the removal of a cause for possible dissension between them.

There is no concealment of the general pleasure of the announcement of the Spanish Government's wish to drop the proceeding against Ibañez, for had the action been continued it would have been difficult to avoid displeasing certain sections of the Premier's own supporters.

Señor Ibañez, replying to a speech delivered by King Alfonso at Cordova last week in which the King made a counter-thrust at the writer, published a statement at Mentone today which excoriates the monarch for his alleged intemperate habits and alludes to him as "this crowned liar."

Ibañez in his statement particularly resents the imputations upon the author's courage made in the Cordova speech in which "this imitator of William II. who never fought himself," accused Ibañez of never having shed his blood for his country.

"When could I have done so?" he asks. "When has Spain been invaded, and when has the Spanish people been obliged to take up arms to defend the integrity of its territory?"

Ibañez points out that Spain in his lifetime has been engaged only in colonial hostilities overseas, that he had declared himself in favor of recognition of the independence of Cuba, Porto Rico and the Phillippines, involved in the first of these two colonial wars, and that the second, the present Moroccan war, was deplored by the writer "because it is not a national war but a war waged solely for the purpose of flattering Alfonso's vanity and facilitating the illegal operations of his entourage."

TRAIN BANDIT CASE BEGINS.

Federal Grand Jury in Brooklyn Gets Evidence Against Cadoo.

The case against James Watt Cadoo, the young bandit who confessed holding up a Long Island train a week ago and stealing a mail pouch containing $10,000 in cash, was presented to the Federal Grand Jury in Brooklyn yesterday. Assistant United States Attorney Herbert Kellogg presented the evidence. An indictment is predicted for today.

According to reports, Mr. Kellogg sought an indictment containing three counts, assault of a mail custodian, robbery of the mails, and jeopardizing the life of a mail custodian. Penalties for these total sentences of 45 years.

George J. Cadoo, father of the prisoner, a wealthy lumber merchant in Lynbrook, L. I., engaged the firm of Buchner & Gilmore, Brooklyn attorneys, to defend his son. The father visited his son in the Raymond Street jail in Brooklyn during the morning and had a long talk with him. Later Robert Gilmore of defense counsel visited the office of United States Attorney Ralph C. Greene.

HAIL 'MA' FERGUSON, GOVERNOR OF TEXAS

way. All the time the Old Gray Mare Band was playing "The Eyes of Texas Are On You," while Miss May Peterson, the grand opera singer, dressed from head to foot as a cowboy, chaps, golden bandana, six-gallon hat, six-shooter, lariat, and all, led the cheering from her place in the gallery at the head of the musicians.

Miss Peterson, whose old home is in Amarillo in the Panhandle, came all the way from New York at the invitation of the State and was accorded the honor of riding the old gray mare in all the parades staged during the day by the band, which is the official musical organization of the State.

The exercises began at 11 o'clock when the band of the Twenty-third United States Infantry from San Antonio entered the hall and took up its position in the west gallery. It started off with "The Stars and Stripes Forever," while the people yelled their approval. Then came the Old Gray Mare Band with Miss Peterson, who brought the crowd cheering to their feet when she sang "The Eyes of Texas," and before the applause subsided Speaker Satterwhite nearly broke his gavel trying to restore order.

Roses Bring "Ma's" First Smile

The time was drawing near for "Ma" to make her entrance. The Speaker threatened to postpone the inauguration unless the crowd found a way to squeeze itself back enough to open a passageway for the Governor-elect, who, with her escort, was at the door.

At last she came. Governor Neff was smiling. So was "Farmer Jim," the husband of the new Executive, in fact, everybody except "Ma." She was nervous and it required fifteen minutes for her to negotiate the short journey through the crowd to the Speaker's rostrum. When she arrived a little page handed her a great bunch of American Beauty roses and for the first time she smiled.

Some of the surviving Ku Kluxers who are still in the Legislature were in their seats. Their faces were a study. Senator Parr, the "Alcade of Duval," who is anti-Klan through and through, looked at one of the old-time Klan leaders, winked and laughed out loud.

Senator Wirtz of Seguin, the President pro tempore of the Senate, called the joint session to order when Mrs. Ferguson was seated. The Rev. Valentine Lee of St. David's Protestant Episcopal Church who will be Mrs. Ferguson's pastor while she is in Austin, offered the invocation.

Senator Wirtz introduced Whit Davidson, the retiring Lieutenant Governor, who when Governor Neff left the State used to send the Texas rangers after Ku Klux Klan law violators. Mr. Davidson took a parting shot at the Klan and predicted a future of law and order under the Federal and State Constitutions. Then he presented the new Lieutenant Governor, Judge Barry Miller of Dallas. Mr. Miller was sworn in and spoke briefly. Ma's moment had come.

As Mrs. Ferguson stepped forward to take the oath, Miss Peterson sang "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet." The crowd was shouting like mad when she concluded. Chief Justice Cureton held in his hand an old Bible, a very little one. It was the same one that Sam Houston kissed three-quarters of a century ago when he took the oath as the first Governor of Texas.

Very slowly the Chief Justice read the oath. Mrs. Ferguson in a low voice repeating the words after him. When she kissed the dingy little Bible she resumed her seat.

Governor Neff, now a private citizen, stepped to the front. He recited with a wide range of adjectives the glories of Texas. He wishes Mrs. Ferguson all the good luck in the world and hoped hers would be one of the best administrations in the history of the State.

"I have left three things in the Executive Office for you," said Mr. Neff, addressing the Governor. One is a portrait of Woodrow Wilson, the next is a white flower, and the third is an open Bible."

The flower, a white rose, he said was a symbol of purity, and added that the Bible was opened at Psalm cix., in which the 105th verse was marked. It reads: "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."

"Her Excellency the Governor," was then presented. Once more Miss Peterson sang "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet" and then the Twenty-third Infantry Band played "The Star-Spangled Banner." The applause finally died down and Mrs. Ferguson began the reading of her inaugural address.

Early in her address she invited the members of the Legislature and the heads of departments to make it a point to pay her frequent visits and to give her the benefit of their advice and friendship. The womanliness of the new Governor was evidenced in nearly every line of the speech.

"We are all humble servants of a great people and we must do our best for their common good," she said.

Asks Loyalty to Pioneers' Ideals.

Several times she made references which were generally interpreted as aimed at the Ku Klux Klan, for instance, when she said:

"The people have spoken and the verdict is plain. Their edict is that this must be a government of law founded on the sacred Constitution handed down to us by our fathers and mothers of the pioneer days. To this end can we not consecrate our lives and all that we possess?"

When, referring to the great responsibilities she was assuming, she admitted her inexperience in matters of government and pleaded for the counsel and advice of those more familiar with the affairs of Texas, a Legislator, who was a personage of some influence in the days before the Klan was swept out of power, remarked: "That's where Pa comes in." Another of the same faith nodded his agreement and added: "Yes, that's a loophole for old Jim."

The Anti-Klanmen, however—and they were the overwhelming majority—put no such interpretation on what the new Governor said. Her demeanor was so sincere, her modesty so apparent, that without exception they gave her full credit for honesty in wishing just one thing—the very best Government she could possibly give to the people.

"And I might add that in asking your advice and help," Mrs. Ferguson continued, "it perhaps would not be a bad idea for others to adopt, even though their training and their learning be more than mine.

"My endeavor will be to make this Administration a success by team work. There is so much to do. What Texas needs most at this time is a strong and steady pull, a pull all together. In this way we may climb the hill of difficulties confronting us."

A wave of applause swept through the Chamber. It was loud and it was sincere, a real Texas approval of the sentiments expressed. Mrs. Ferguson appeared just a little embarrassed. She bowed her thanks for the tribute.

"Perhaps it will not be enough to depend on logic and science and statesmanship to realize our hopes and ambitions," she went on. "In the turmoil and strife and passions of the hour too often do we find ourselves controlled by jealousies and envies that keep us from joining our fellows in some great movement for the cause of humanity and the good of civilization. It is then, my people, that we must turn to God, who can remove all envy and hate from every heart and unite us in love and forgiveness for all.

"I am praying for this Administration to be one of progress in matters spiritual as well as material. If the example can be set for a higher standard of morals and purity of life and conduct of public servants of the people, I shall feel that my Administration has not been in vain. Let us not forget that it is more glorious to lay up treasures in Heaven than upon earth.

"As the first woman Governor of Texas I ask for the good-will and the prayers of the women of my State. I want to be worthy of the trust and the confidence which has been reposed in me.

"By the decree of our Supreme Court we women have been recognized and admitted into all the rights and privileges of citizenship. Many women will be invited to take an active part in this Administration. Let us give to Texas the best there is in us. Let us render full service, not so much because we are women, but because we are citizens, who are now equal to stand side by side with men for equal rights and equal justice to all.

"With love for all, with malice toward none, trusting in God, I consecrate my life to Texas."

Texans Acclaim New Executive.

That was the end. The great throng stood up and acclaimed the first woman Governor of Texas. It was a splendid tribute. Old-timers who have witnessed other inaugurations said they doubted if it had ever been excelled for warmth and good-will since the days of Sam Houston.

A guardsman signalled from a window to the artillerymen in the park. The salute to Mrs. Ferguson began. Pages came from all parts of the house bearing great baskets and bunches of flowers. Mrs. Ferguson had overcome her stage fright by this time and was smiling and chatting with her friends.

Everybody wanted to grasp her hand. She knows how to sympathize with President Coolidge now. One of those to congratulate her was a nephew of Sam Houston. The infirmities of age prevented Colonel Samuel Jackson Houston of Houston, the only surviving son of the first Governor, who was a stanch supporter of Mrs. Ferguson in her campaign, from being present.

When at last she was able to escape from her friends Mrs. Ferguson went to her office. She held a brief reception there for the State officials who will serve through her Administration. Then she retired to rest for the public reception and the three Inaugural balls tonight.

Thousands of invitations were issued for the balls which Mrs. Ferguson has had to scan at least all night if the merry-makers so desire. Mrs. Ferguson will first open the ball in the Senate Chamber, where she will lead the grand march with her little grandson. She then goes to the Hotel Austin to lead the march at the second ball and finally to the Driskill Hotel, where she will end her night by heading the march of the dancers at that affair.

Just how many people came to Austin today to the inauguration is a question hard to answer. This morning there were probably 25,000 visitors in the city. Tonight other thousands have arrived to join the festivities, which, in addition to the balls, include the reception to Mrs. Ferguson in the hall of the House of Representatives, as well as street celebrations in the central parts of the city.

The day was perfect. Tonight Governor Ferguson said she was very tired.

"But I am also very happy," she added.

And she looked it. Tomorrow she will begin official work in earnest by sending her first message to the Legislature.

WATCHERS ON ROOFS TO FIX ECLIPSE PATH

SHADOW BANDS A PUZZLE

SPECIAL TRAINS ANNOUNCED

Railroads Make Preparations to Carry Spectators Into the Area of Totality.

Officials of lighting companies conferred yesterday at the Engineers' Club and at the behest of several scientific bodies determined to attempt to locate exactly the southern border of the moon's shadow as it crosses New York City Saturday morning. On this point will depend the exactness of much of the calculation relating to the eclipse. The companies participating were the New York Edison Company, the United Electric Light and Power Company, the Westchester Lighting Company, the New York and Queens Electric Light and Power Company, the Bronx Gas and Electric Company, the Yonkers Electric Light and Power Company and the other lighting companies affiliated with the Consolidated Gas Company. They will station ninety lighting experts and photographers in parties of two and three on the roofs of the tallest apartment buildings along Riverside Drive from Seventy-second Street to 135th Street, on the Palisades in New Jersey, on the Hell Gate Bridge, and on the roofs of many substations of the lighting companies. They must act swiftly, for the shadow will sweep across the city at sixty miles a second and be visible only a minute.

The army air service at Mitchel Field announced yesterday the details of elaborate plans for recording eclipse phenomena. Major William N. Hensley, Jr., field commandant, said twelve airplanes and about fifty air and ground men, with many special cameras and observation instruments, would figure in the plans. Officers said they could ascend three miles if necessary to get the observers above cloud banks.

Major Hensley will broadcast his observation while in the air by radio to Station WJZ, which will rebroadcast them. Arrangements for broadcasting from the dirigible Los Angeles have been canceled.

Instructs Amateur Observers.

James H. Kimball, meteorologist of the local Weather Bureau, told yesterday how any layman in the area of totality who could watch a few square feet of flat surface on which the sun's rays may fall at about 9 A. M. Saturday could make a valuable contribution to the scientific study of the solar eclipse. A few minutes before and after the time of totality, Mr. Kimball says, such an observer may see the shadow bands, a phenomenon which has never been satisfactorily described. On this subject he says:

"A sheet spread over a favorably located space will greatly facilitate one's chance of seeing these elusive bands and, in spreading the sheet care be taken to have the sides face the cardinal points of the compass, the bands, if they appear, will reveal their direction of motion. Simply this observation, including the point from which it is made will be of worth, but an additional item or two will enhance its value many fold.

"Let the more ambitious engage the cooperation of a few like-minded friends, one to lay a stick on the sheet where the band is first seen, another to lay a similar stick on the position where it leaves the sheet, and another to estimate the time required in transit. Knowing the dimensions of the sheet the speed of the bands may then be determined. Some preliminary practice will be necessary to do this, as the bands will probably be but an inch or two wide, the intervening spaces about twice the width and the time of transit less than two seconds. Of course it is needless to suggest that a few photographs would add greatly to the value of these observations, particularly if the position of the camera, the type of lens and the distance from the lens to the middle of the sheet be added.

Urges a Watch for Coloration.

"Observers who are willing to do this much need only to be directed to further particulars in order that their work may be well rounded out. To those the program in the January number of The Scientific American is recommended. Notice any deviation that the bands may make in their march across the sheet: are they straight or curved, and if curved do they bulge ahead or to the rear; are they broken or wavy; is their motion positive or indecisive; and be particular to observe and note any coloration that may appear. Count the bands if you can and note if they travel in a uniform series, in groups or in no apparent order.

"The shadow bands are thought to be meteorological phenomena, and such may well be the case since the density of the air within the umbra is increased by a fall in temperature of three or four degrees. Sunlight penetrating air layers thus rendered of different density is diffracted unequally, and this unequal bending of the rays is thought by some to be the cause of the shadow bands."

Special trains will be run by the New Haven Railroad to bring residents of its territory into the area of totality. One special will run from Boston, Attleboro, Mass., and Providence, R. I., to Westerly, R. I., and another from Pittsfield, Lenox, Lee and Stockbridge, Mass., and Housatonic, Conn., to New Milford, Conn. Two other specials probably will be run, one from Springfield, Mass., to Wallingford, Conn., and the other from Worcester, Mass., to New London, Conn. The Erie Railroad already has announced a special for New Jersey school children.

GIVES PROGRAM OF ECLIPSE

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—A "Program of the Eclipse" as it will be seen in Toronto was drawn today by C. A. Chant, Professor of Astronomy at Toronto University, as follows:

7:39 A.M.—The moon will start to pass across the face of the sun. To the onlooker it will appear as though some huge mouth had started nibbling at the solar orb, leaving a crescent-shaped hole as it eats its way toward the centre.

8:37 A. M.—The sky is still clear but there are ominous signs of what appears to be an approaching storm. All that remains of the sun is a crescent so thin that one might be excused for thinking a puff of wind would blow it away. Daylight begins to fall. And then come the famous "shadow bands." Queer banded shadows move over the side of buildings.

9:06 A. M.—Now is the time to watch for the shadow. Far out to the West the horizon disappears, to be replaced by a line between twilight and daylight, rushing toward you at the terrific speed of 4,200 miles an hour. The sun seems to break up into a series of bright beads—Bailey's Beads, as they are called after the astronomer who first observed them.

9:07 A. M.—All else forgotten in the appearance of the eclipsed sun itself, now completely covered by the moon. For the next minute and twelve seconds you will be able to examine the famed corona at comparative leisure. The moon is encircled by a strange, pearly halo, the streamers of which sometimes shoot out from its circumference, for a distance of several diameters. Sometimes the spectacle is made still more weird by blood-red prominences just visible at the edge of the moon.

9:08 A. M.—A crescent-shaped streak of sun will appear on the opposite side of the moon to that from which it disappeared. The total eclipse is over, not to return to Ontario again until A. D. 2144.

9:08½ A. M.—Second phase of partial eclipse sets in.

ECLIPSE WEATHER IN DOUBT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The Weather Bureau today put a dim per on the hopes of some of those who hope to study the eclipse of the sun Saturday, although it was emphasized that no special eclipse forecast would be possible before Friday afternoon.

R. H. Weightman, who prepares the forecasts, said today that although he would like to be able to "hold out strong hope for every one, a study of the records for many years past covering the period did not justify him in seeing things in a very favorable light. If the averages of the past hold good for Saturday," he said, "and regardless of disturbances that may arise in the meantime, we are going to have a rather difficult time studying the eclipse. Duluth and Eastern New York may get a glimpse of it, but the lake regions are not favorably situated on the weather map.

"However, this is all conjecture. I hope the skies will be kind. We ought to know fairly well by next Friday afternoon."

LAW-AND-ORDER APPEAL.

Governor Silzer of New Jersey Sets a Crusade for Next Sunday.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 20.—Reiterating his statement about the prevalence of crimes of violence, Governor Silzer today designated next Sunday as "Law-and-Order Sunday," and asked that all citizens cooperate in bringing about observance of law.

"I urge upon the churches the necessity of again calling public attention to observance of the fundamental law of the land, and of all laws in general, and of inculcating in the foreign-born the necessity of a thorough appreciation of our American institutions," said the Governor.

BANTON TAKES UP BASEBALL SCANDAL

LANDIS SENDS EVIDENCE

Offers to Help Obtain Witnesses Beyond State, but Points to Legal Obstacles.

District Attorney Banton took official cognizance yesterday of the recent scandal in baseball, in which members of the Giant baseball team are said to have offered a bribe to a player on the Philadelphia team to throw a game to the Giants at the crucial period of the National League pennant race. The District Attorney ordered his assistant, George N. Brothers, to investigate the bribery scandal at once.

Mr. Banton's action followed receipt from Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, High Commissioner of Baseball, of a transcript of testimony taken several months ago by the Commissioner in his investigation of the charges which led him to place Jimmy O'Connell, a Giant outfielder, and Cozy Dolan, a coach on the Giant team, upon the "ineligible list" of baseball.

O'Connell, according to a statement made by Commissioner Landis at the time, had admitted in his testimony that he had offered Shortstop Heinie Sand of the Philadelphia team $300 "not to bear down hard" on the Giants in the game on Saturday, Sept. 27. That game resulted in a victory for the Giants and their capture of the 1924 National League pennant.

O'Connell accused Dolan of being the instigator of the scheme. Commissioner Landis announced at the time, and attempted to involve Frank Frisch, captain and second baseman; Ross Young, outfielder, and George Kelly, first baseman of the Giants.

In the letter which accompanied the transcript of the testimony by O'Connell, Dolan, Frisch, Young, Kelly and the Philadelphia player, Sand, who was the first to tell the alleged plot to the High Commissioner, Mr. Landis stated to District Attorney Banton that he would have had the transcript before him long ago were it not for the barrier to a criminal investigation seemingly presented in the law.

Cites Legal Restrictions.

The High Commissioner pointed out that under the law O'Connell's charges could not be used against the others in criminal proceedings under the conspiracy or attempted bribery acts, because O'Connell, by his own admission, is an accomplice. Commissioner Landis also pointed out that corroborating evidence is needed from a source other than those involved by O'Connell. He admits in his letter to Mr. Banton that he was unable to obtain corroboration of the kind needed, but offers to give the District Attorney every possible aid in developing his investigation.

Commissioner Landis's letter to Mr. Banton was sent from his office at 122 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, under date of Jan. 17. It read:

"Dear Mr. District Attorney:

"For your consideration and whatever action may be deemed appropriate, I am transmitting herewith transcript of the testimony respecting the offer of a bribe in connection with a New York-Philadelphia ball game had in 1924. A perusal of these pages, having in mind the provisions of Section 399 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, that a conviction cannot be had upon the testimony of an accomplice, unless he be corroborated by such other evidence (so far not obtained) as tends to connect the defendant with the commission of the crime, will disclose practical difficulties, apparently not generally appreciated, in the way of successful prosecution of anybody except O'Connell under either the statute creating the substantive offense or under the conspiracy law. But for this consideration the matter would have been submitted to you heretofore. Should you desire the presence of any persons connected with baseball who are beyond the State of New York, I shall be glad to cooperate along that line, and in any other way.

"Very truly yours,
(Signed) "KENESAW M. LANDIS."

Before making public the receipt of the testimony District Attorney Banton had a conference with Mr. Brothers. Then he sent the following reply to baseball's High Commissioner:

"My Dear Judge Landis:

"This is to acknowledge receipt of your letter of Jan. 7, enclosing a transcript of the testimony taken by you in connection with an alleged offer of bribe. I have referred your letter and transcript of testimony to Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers, with instructions to make a careful and thorough investigation. I appreciate, as you do, the difficulty that surrounds a prosecution in which corroboration is required. May I take this occasion to thank you for your offer to produce any witnesses connected with baseball which may be beyond the State of New York?

"With kindest personal regards,

"Respectfully yours,
(Signed) "JOAE H. BANTON,
"District Attorney."

Mr. Brothers already had started to lay out plans for his investigation when District Attorney Banton made public the communications and said:

"Judge Landis has called attention to the difficulties surrounding a successful prosecution of any one mentioned in the transcript of the testimony because of the need of corroboration. As one might expect of Judge Landis, he has placed the machinery of the baseball organization at the disposal of the District Attorney. I have referred Judge Landis's letter and transcript to Mr. Brothers, who will make a thorough and careful investigation of the whole matter."

Question Over O'Connell.

While it was admitted in baseball circles yesterday that Commissioner Landis would have the power to order Sand, Frisch, Young and Kelly to appear before Assistant District Attorney Brothers and submit to examination, the power of the District Attorney to bring O'Connell into the State for interrogation was questioned. William J. Fallon, counsel for Dolan, when he learned of the receipt of the testimony and the offer of Judge Landis, said: "Cozy Dolan invites an investigation. He longs for exoneration and feels that a thorough investigation would exonerate him."

District Attorney Banton made it plain that the matter would not be brought to the attention of the Grand Jury unless Mr. Brothers developed facts on which an indictment could be sought, with some possibility of conviction on trial.

LANDIS CALLS HIS ADVISERS.

Heydler and Navin Go to Meet With Him—Johnson Praises Banton.

In response to a telegraphic summons from Judge K. M. Landis, Commissioner of Baseball, President John A. Heydler, President of the National League and one of the members of the Baseball Advisory Council, left yesterday afternoon for Chicago to confer with the Baseball Commissioner tomorrow. According to a dispatch last night from Chicago, Frank J. Navin, President of the Detroit club of the American League and the American League member of the Advisory Council, also had been summoned to the meeting in Chicago by Commissioner Landis.

Baseball men in this city last night were in the dark as to the meaning of the conference. Club owners who could be reached here could not say if it had any connection with the investigation of the Dolan-O'Connell bribery case which District Attorney Banton announced yesterday.

Close on the heels of the District Attorney's announcement came a dispatch from Chicago quoting Ban B. Johnson, President of the American League, as heartily endorsing District Attorney Banton's action. According to the dispatch, Johnson said:

"Baseball has clamored for laws to punish gamblers, players and confidence men who have been attempting to disrupt the game. For years we have been beseeching the State Legislatures to adopt laws which will punish the guilty persons. Now that New York has taken the first stand in placing such a law on its statutes, we should do all in our power to punish the guilty players to the limit. Should it be brought out at the trial that others are implicated, then the law should take it course and punish those also to the limit."

Baseball men here last night saw no occasion for alarm because of the sudden conference by Landis. They pointed out that the Commissioner had been planning a visit to Panama, and that before his departure he might desire to talk over league matters with the Advisory Council. They professed to believe that the summoning of Heydler and Navin could not be connected with the Dolan-O'Connell case, since Landis, having sent the transcript of the evidence to District Attorney Banton, could do nothing until the latter had completed his investigation.

The suggestion that further evidence in the bribery scandal case might have been unearthed by Landis, and that he desired to confer over this with his colleagues, was received as a possibility.

BOARD RECORDS READ IN FORBES'S DEFENCE

Minutes of May, 1922, Meeting Show Northampton Hospital Site Then Was Accepted.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Official records of the Federal Board of Hospitalization showing that the Northampton (Mass.) Neuropsychiatric Hospital site was formally selected by a unanimous vote of the board on May 10, 1922, were presented in evidence today in the Veterans' Bureau conspiracy trial.

Elias H. Mortimer, principal witness for the prosecution, testified several weeks ago that he was confidentially informed by Charles R. Forbes, former director of the Veterans' Bureau, on June 4, 1922, that Northampton had been selected.

The minutes of the board meeting of May 10 were read to the jury today, in an attempt to show that the information Mortimer claimed to have received in advance, in furtherance of a conspiracy to defraud the Government through hospital contracts, was, in fact, public information, available to all for more than three weeks.

The minutes recorded that the Northampton site of 240 acres was offered free to the Government by the Northampton Chamber of Commerce. Forbes reported in the May 10 meeting that the offer first came to the attention of the Veterans' Bureau through then Vice President Coolidge.

"It is entirely a gift and backed by all the citizens of the community," Forbes said. "It was brought to our attention first by the Vice President."

Surgeon Gen. Ireland of the army moved the acceptance of the offer, and the motion was unanimously adopted.

Most of today's session was devoted to argument over the admissibility of certain evidence with which the defense sought to impeach Mortimer's testimony touching other matters.

TALK OF CAREY FOR CABINET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Former Governor Robert D. Carey of Wyoming, Chairman of the Agricultural Conference, is under serious consideration for appointment as Secretary of Agriculture in the new Coolidge Cabinet.

The President is said to be impressed with the business-like way in which Mr. Carey has handled the affairs of the conference.

Wyoming has another candidate for the vacancy at the head of the Department of Agriculture in former Representative Frank W. Mondell, who has been endorsed for the post by his delegation in Congress.

Mr. Mondell was at the White House today and it is understood that he informed the President that he would not stand in Mr. Carey's way if the President was disposed to name the former Governor of Wyoming.

Mr. Mondell is at present a member of the War Finance Corporation. He was Permanent Chairman of the Cleveland convention and as such was the spokesman of the committee that formally notified President Coolidge of his nomination.

LAWYER SUICIDE IDENTIFIED

The body of the "gentleman beachcomber" of Fire Island, who committed suicide there Jan. 11, was positively identified after being exhumed yesterday as that of Andrew Sherman McMillen, 60, of Bridgeville, Del., a contractor and lawyer who disappeared from his home seven years ago and had not been heard from until after his death.

The identification was made by two brothers, Charles and George H. McMillen, and George H. Baird, a banker. The body was taken back yesterday to Bridgeville for burial.

McMillen had been thought dead and his wife had obtained a divorce under the desertion statutes. McMillen, who was once prosperous, is believed to have disappeared from his home because of despair over his health.

PAID MAGAZINE $600, FEARING 'KNOCKS'

CALLED A "SCANDAL SHEET"

Names of Prominent Men and Women Introduced as Objects of Veiled Attacks.

John Lloyd, advertising manager for D. W. Griffith, Inc., motion picture producers, testified yesterday in the United States District Court, where Broadway Brevities, a monthly magazine, Stephen Clow, its publisher, and three of its employes are on trial on the charge of using the mails to defraud and for obtaining money under false pretense, that in 1921 he bought $600 worth of advertising in the publication for fear of its "knocks."

Mr. Lloyd's testimony followed the introduction of many copies of the magazine as evidence to support the assertion of Maxwell Mattuck, Assistant District Attorney, at the opening of the trial that the publishers of Broadway Brevities "intimidate people into placing advertising with them by hinting at dire things or by writing suggestive squibs ending with an intimation that more will be printed in succeeding issues," and that the magazine was a "scandal sheet."

During the afternoon the names of Whitney Warren Jr., Jeanne Eagels and John McE. Bowman, director of many hotels, and of Otto H. Kahn, the banker, were introduced as having been the objects of veiled attacks.

"The Government dislikes to bring in prominent people," Mr. Mattuck continued in his opening statement, "but it can't be helped. The facts developed will cast mud because the magazine trades in mud. When dealing with mudthrowers, we have to plunge in the muck and mire."

"Annoying Telegrams" From Magazine.

Mr. Lloyd testified he first came into personal relations with Brevities during the latter part of 1920 or early in 1921, when, he said, he began receiving from the magazine "annoying telegrams" regarding the death of a young actress employed during the making of "Way Down East."

"Then," he continued, "we got another telegram signed 'S. G. Clow' saying we had better take some advertising in Broadway Brevities. In a few days a man came to my office, one of the employes of Broadway Brevities, and appeared to be greatly excited. He said Clow was very angry with us, that he was a bad man, that he could do us lots of harm and suggested that if we wanted him to be friendly that we might make an advertising contract for $2,500 with Broadway Brevities."

Mr. Lloyd could not remember the name of this employe, but when asked if he could see him in the room, he pointed to Nat Kunnes, who sat at the table with Clow, A. B. Brown and Charles J. Green, all of them defendants.

"He is the man," he said. "Broadway Brevities had already printed an article about the death of a young girl during a motion picture's making, so I went to Mr. Gray, our general manager, and suggested we give Broadway Brevities some advertising. We had $1,000,000 invested in the picture and we didn't want any mud thrown at it. Boosts don't hurt you, but knocks do, so I recommended two pages of advertising—$200 a page—$400 in all."

The company, Mr. Lloyd continued, had since used space in the magazine at the same rates without inquiring into its circulation, "on the principle that knocks hurts," but refused to pay the money before the advertising was used. Some time after Kunnes had accepted the contract for the two pages of advertising, Mr. Lloyd testified, he returned and told him if D. W. Griffith, Inc., desired to take action against Brevities for "crooked business" he (Kunnes) would be a witness for the company.

"He said," Mr. Lloyd added, "that it was a hold-up."

Bowman Hotel Group's Experience.

Robert J. Kennedy, advertising manager for the Bowman group of hotels, which includes the Biltmore and Commodore, identified letters showing those hotels had discontinued advertising in the Broadway Brevities and that the discontinuance was followed by letters on Brevities stationery signed by "George A. McCormick" and "George A. McCormack" asking for interviews with Mr. Bowman personally in regard to advertising. The interviews and the advertising were refused in the latter part of 1921, and in the January, 1922, issue of Brevities appeared an item casting reflections on the Bowman hotels.

Similar items in succeeding issues were read by Mr. Mattuck, and Gordon N. Kahn, who testified he had been employed as writer by the magazine, identified on one of them, alleged to have been sent to Mr. Bowman, some handwriting which he said was Clow's. The handwriting read: "Jack, they're getting after you. A Friend."

Gordon Kahn, who was the first witness, testified that Clow told him shortly after the first Federal indictment was obtained that the Government "could never win its case because none of the witnesses who will be called against us is spotless and could stand the cross-examination our lawyers will put them through."

The witness declared most of the material printed by Brevities came from anonymous letters and anonymous telephnoe calls, but that much, too, came to Clow from personal acquaintances.

Here Mr. Mattuck read into the record many excerpts from the magazine, evidently intending to show by them that the Brevities was a "scandal sheet."

One item which came to Clow in an anonymous letter the witness identified. It referred to Whitney Warren Jr. and Jeanne Eagels and was read into the record.

Then a copy of the Brevities was introduced to show it contained a reference to the couple, which said the engagement of the couple was "driving young Warren's father to distraction," and that "Jeanne sees good publicity in it."

List of the Victims.

The victims of Broadway Brevities as listed in the twelve counts of the indictment against the defendants are: Lee Shubert, Childs, Inc.; Dainty Form, Inc.; B. J. Palmer of the Palmer School of Chiropractic, Evelyn Neville and Frank S. Masten, President of Vitamine, Inc.

Counsel for the defense showed at the morning session of the trial yesterday they had succeeded in getting advance information regarding the identity of the Government's witnesses when Mr. Reynolds asked Judge Mack, who is presiding, to interrogate the talesmen as to their relations with a number of prominent theatrical people. The names read by Brown, who said he understood they were to be called by the Government, included Elsie Janis, Elsie Ferguson, D. W. Griffith, Albert Gray, Mr. Griffith's brother, J. J. Shubert and Claude Grenecker, the Shuberts' press representative, besides Mr. Bowman, Edith Bobs, a milliner, whose apartment was robbed recently, and Frank Presbrey.

The hearing will be continued this morning, when William J. Fallon, counsel for all the accused men save Brown, is expected to be present. He was attending another trial yesterday and cross-examination of all witnesses was postponed until today.

Police Square Club Dances.

The Police Square Club, Inc., will hold its annual entertainment on Saturday night in the Seventh Regiment Armory, Park Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street. The club comprises more than 1,600 New York policemen of all ranks. Music will include special numbers by the Police Band, Marguerite White, soprano; Marcel Salsinger, baritone; Dorothy Sinnott, contralto, and Walter Kiesenetter, pianist. Tom O'Connell and his Broadway Orchestra will furnish the dance music.

SENATE CONDEMNS NAVY OIL LEASES

to why he did not show consistency by demanding the withdrawal of prosecutions against those who had benefited by the leases.

"Absurd," said Caraway of the Spencer report.

Reed Assails Spencer.

"I rise to congratulate the State of Missouri," said Senator Reed, "upon possessing a representative so amiable and innocent that, like the three Japanese apes, he sees no evil, he hears no evil and he speaks no evil, and consequently is duly qualified to defend all evil—an innocent abroad, in the intellectual and political world, who finds virtue in every act and with unblushing confidence can defend every infamy.

"That is a rare and unusual trait of character and parliamentary rules forbid me giving direct application.

"I recall, however, that when the country was startled by the story of Newberry's bribery and corruption, when a shiver of horror went over the land at the knowledge that an electorate had been bought and sold, and that the second highest office within the gift of the greatest people on earth—a position in the United States Senate—had been placed in substance and effect upon the auction block and knocked down to the highest bidder, the distinguished Senator from Missouri saw no evil, heard no evil, spoke no evil. But he rose in eulogy and defense of that man who afterward, with bowed and shamed face, resigned from the Senate to escape a further investigation."

Senator Reed said that in the case of former Attorney General Daugherty Senator Spencer had shown the innocence described by Shakespeare in his first stage of man, and had placed "a halo of virtue surrounding the head of that gentleman who afterward was compelled by the President to yield his resignation and to vanish from public life."

Again, said Senator Reed, Senator Spencer had assisted Mr. Daugherty by expressing "a legal doubt" as to whether the Senate could examine the bank records of moneys placed to the credit of the Attorney General in his brother's bank in Ohio.

Recalls Defense of Denby.

"I recall," continued Senator Reed, "how he stood then in the defense of Denby, seeing no evil, hearing no evil, thinking no evil, and yet I recall that Denby was forced from office and yielded his resignation.

"All this is of the past, but I never expected to see the day when in this Senate any man would arise in his place and endeavor by perverted oratory to create a halo of patriotism and place it on the brow of Albert B. Fall and to give him that glorification in connection with the very transactions which took place coincident with, and are interlocked with, the payment to Fall of $100,000 as the price of his official soul.

"I read from the minority report: 'Secretaries Denby and Fall with equal patriotism—'"

"That is," explained Senator Reed, "patriotism equal to that of Mr. Daniels—with 'equal patriotism had a different conception of preparedness.'"

"Again: 'Patriotically Denby and Fall sought to effect what would avoid the possibility of World War experiences.'"

"Patriotically!" exclaimed Senator Reed. "Yet, interwoven with these contracts which are interlocked with each by time and circumstances, and were all part and parcel of the warp and web of this infamy that blackened the character of the republic, was the payment of a $100,000 bribe; and in the mystery that followed was the development of misuse by Government agents of secret telegraphic code of the Government; the obstruction of the processes of justice; the horrible flood of scandal which was finally developed into fact before a Senate committee; and even now as we sit here and deliberate we find that apparently the records of a Canadian corporation organized for the purpose of paying further moneys to Fall have disappeared and the officers and agents of that corporation are conveniently in Paris or hunting wild animals in Africa and unable to answer the subpoenas of this Government.

"Now, when the Government is engaged in a struggle to recover that of which it was defrauded, we find a Senator of the United States who voted for the prosecutions which charged fraud, fraud in the execution of these leases, fraud upon our Government through the corrupt hands of Fall, writing a eulogy of Fall's patriotism and declaring on the floor of the Senate, as he has in the last ten minutes, that he doubted the illegality or the corruption of the leases at the very time he voted to make these charges.

"Further comment is not necessary. The eloquence of Demosthenes could not, in words, paint a halo for the brow of Albert Fall that would not be so manifestly fraud itself that all the people of the United States could see through that halo the fraudulent hand of the man who sought to portary it."

Spencer Quotes the Bible.

"I want to make one statement," said Senator Spencer in reply. "Somewhere in the Good Book I think it is written that when a man speaketh first his cause seemeth to be just; then cometh his neighbor and searcheth it.'"

In rejoinder to that statement, Senator Reed likewise quoted the Bible, saying:

"The Senator is fond of the Scriptures, devoted to the Holy Writ, and let me say to him he reminds me of a passage as I consider him in connection with his minority criticisms: 'Deal gently, for my sake, with the young man Absalom.'"

"My distinguished colleague," said Senator Spencer, "has seen fit to make reflection about me. I want to read one sentence from the minority report. He speaks of my placing a halo upon the brow of Fall. This is from the report of the minority, which I wrote:

"'The minority concur in full measure of criticism, which the majority indulged, upon the conduct of a Cabinet officer who is shown to have accepted a loan of $100,000 and certain other favors while in office.'

"That is my own language and, further:

"'Such acts cannot be tolerated and are not to be condoned. If the claim that these favors were in the nature of bribes is sustained in the criminal proceedings already begun, punishment adequate and prompt will follow. Crime is individual and guilt is personal. Under the Constitution men are presumed to be innocent until proved guilty, but whether the participants be in fact guilty under the law, or innocent, the act itself is most reprehensible, causes national humiliation and cannot be overlooked.'

"That is the halo around the brow of Mr. Fall. I want to repeat all I said about Secretary Denby. No fairer, more patriotic, abler man has been in the Cabinet during my acquaintance with public life and I am glad to say everything I have said in praise of his patriotism, integrity and character."

Walsh Wants "Ablest" Withdrawn.

Senator Walsh suggested that Senator Spencer withdraw the word "ablest," but the Missouri Senator did not respond.

Senator Spencer said the reference to former Attorney General Daugherty by Senator Reed was "gratuitous, for there is no mention of Daugherty's name in the minority report from beginning to end."

In replying to Senator Spencer, Senator Reed pointed out that the minority referred to "the loan of money to Fall," but asked "who but a fool believes it was a loan?"

After the Biblical quotation "Deal gently, for my sake, with the young man Absalom," Senator Reed said of his colleague:

"Truly he has been gentle in reading the eulogy of Fall's patriotism and referring to the loan.

"Some day," concluded Senator Reed, "we will erect a monument to him that will be of the purest white marble and inscribed on it the legend of the culprits he has defended on the floor of the Senate, and we will proclaim the new doctrine, 'not that there is nothing new under the sun, but there is nothing wrong under the sun.'"

JUSSERAND RETIRES AS FRANCE'S ENVOY

SPENDS DAY IN FAREWELLS

Diplomat Will Come Here Today, Visit Boston and Sail for Paris Jan. 28.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Farewells to the numerous friends he has made during his twenty-two-year stay in the United States occupied most of Ambassador Jusserand's last day in Washington. He plans to leave tomorrow for New York and Boston, and will sail from the former port Jan. 28 for France.

Although it had been known for some time that M. Jusserand was to end his long service in Washington and be succeeded in the post by Emile Daeschner, he ceased to be the French Ambassador only today, when he presented his recall papers to President Coolidge and paid a good-bye call on Secretary Hughes.

This made Ambassador Riano of Spain, who has represented his Government here since 1910, dean of the Diplomatic Corps in Washington, the seventh to occupy this position.

In presenting his letters in person Ambassador Jusserand re-established a custom which had fallen into disuse, the formality having been performed for many years by the retiring Ambassador's successor. M. Jusserand, however, desired to present them himself and pay his respects to the last of the long line of Presidents he has known.

J. Butler Wright, Assistant Secretary of State, accompanied the veteran diplomat to the White House and the State Department, where he spent more than two hours taking leave of officials, high and low, and the many employes with whom he had come in contact through the years.

The Ambassador went from office to office, remembering all my name, not missing even the negro messengers in the corridors, several of whom received presents from him for many Christmases.

"I am sure sorry to see Mr. Jusserand go," said one of the messengers, expressing the feelings of his colleagues and the whole department.

M. Jusserand's leave-taking from Secretary Hughes was described as of "the usual courteous kind." The Department's view of his retirement was sensed in the words of one high official who, after pointing out that M. Jusserand was Ambassador to Washington before most of the staff entered the service, described his departure as "the passing of a diplomatic landmark."

After reaching New York tomorrow M. Jusserand will leave almost immediately for Boston to visit friends before his departure from the United States. He plans to make his residence in Paris, where he will devote a large part of his time to literary activities, interrupted, perhaps, by visits to the United States, since his sympathies, his American wife and his understanding of affairs in this country are expected to draw him back at frequent intervals.

FATHER AND SON ACQUITTED

Former Postmaster Not Guilty of Violating Civil Service.

A jury in the Federal Court in Brooklyn before Judge Robert A. Inch last night acquitted Assemblyman Alfred J. Kennedy, former postmaster at Flushing, and his son Francis, jointly indicted for violation of the United States civil service regulations. The jury was out three hours and a half.

The indictment charged that in June, 1920, while the father was postmaster, he opened a package from Washington containing questions to be used in an examination for the positions of clerk and carrier in the Flushing Post Office and revealed the information to his son. Both defendants denied the charges. On Monday the prosecution introduced an alleged confession in which the son admitted he had seen the questions in advance of the examination. Testifying yesterday, the son declared that when he signed his name on a piece of paper put before him by postal inspectors it was blank and contained no confession.

OLD MEN KILL EACH OTHER.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—A fierce battle between two old men who beat each other to death—one fighting with a fork and the other using a stick—was reported today from the little Riviera village of Tanneron, near Nice.

Charles Jussieu and Julien Augier, both octogenarians, had a quarrel concerning their children's interests. Augier's two sons are married to Jussieu's daughters. The dispute arose concerning Jussieu's farm, which is the daughters' dowry.

Angry words soon caused blows. The two vigorous and hardy peasants armed themselves with the nearest weapons they could lay their hands upon. The women vainly attempted to intervene.

Jussieu stabbed with the fork as Augier used the stick. Suddenly the former fell with a cracked skull and his adversary died later of loss of blood.

BLIND ACE WEDS IN PARIS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Before a small group of intimate friends the French air ace Emile Picard, who a little more than a year ago declared to a friend he was "a hideous being who should have died—a being that must hide"—was married at Notre Dame de Lorette today to Mlle. Emma Bon.

Picard was dreadfully disfigured when he was nearly burned to death on the rocks Pantelleria, between Sicily and Tunis, trying to save his comrade, Pilot Mondon, when their machine crashed at the very outset of a planned round-the-world flight.

Mlle. Bon, who was the airman's "godmother" during the war, when their romance commenced, guided the almost totally blind hero by the hand to the altar steps.

COOLIDGE WOULD LET ISLE OF PINES GO

WANTS TREATY RATIFIED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—While the Senate continued in open session today its discussion of the treaty with Cuba, giving that Government undisputed title to the Isle of Pines, it was made known at the White House that President Coolidge hoped that the treaty would be ratified.

The Treaty of Peace between the United States and Spain, concluded in Paris in 1898, left uncertain in its terms whether the Isle of Pines was to be considered part of Cuba or to be included among other Spanish possessions in the West Indies ceded to the United States by Spain. At the White House it was stated that President Coolidge was satisfied there was no intention by the treaty makers to prevent Cuba from having jurisdiction over the Isle of Pines, and he felt that this Government was morally bound to cede the title to the Cuban Government. The treaty has been pending in the Senate since 1904.

Without direct reference to the remarks attributed to the President, Senator Copeland of New York contended in the Senate today that the United States should not relinquish possession of the Isle of Pines, mainly for strategical reasons, and he urged that the treaty be rejected.

The President's views were drawn out through questions asked by newspapermen and were entirely informal. The President holds, it was said, that there should be no dispute as to Cuba's right to the island. For this reason he sees no ground now for failure to ratify the treaty, and believes that failure to do so will only be seized upon by anti-American agitators in Latin American countries as further fuel with which to feed the charges of "Yankee Imperialism" aired from time to time. He does not desire to see charges of "land-grabbing" laid at the door of this Government, and is anxious to avoid any action which would lend any justification for such charges.

Sees No Reason for Retaining Isle.

The President not only fails to see any reason why this country should seek to retain the island, but he has expressed his view that there are no reasons why Americans should try to impose their authority there in any way. He agrees with various leading authorities who have declared that this country has no jurisdiction whatever in the territory, and he sees no excuse, it was said at the White House, in the fact that several Americans already are there and have been since the Spanish War in some instances.

With respect to these Americans, the President was represented as believing that ratification of the treaty would make little difference in any respect. Since they are now, and have been, under Cuban authority, ratification of the treaty, in the President's opinion, will not affect materially the present status of the Americans or their property. He believes it would mean merely that the Americans there would continue under the Cuban Government, as they are now.

In this respect the Cuban Government exercises de facto jurisdiction over the island, though this jurisdiction has never been formally recognized by the Senate, through its failure to ratify the treaty which would accord the title to Cuba. The executive branch of the American Government has consistently favored ratification since 1909. It has had always the full support of both major parties in this respect.

The title of Cuba has been upheld by the United States Supreme Court and has been championed by Secretary of State Hughes, as well as by Elihu Root and other authorities on inetrnational law.

In an elaborate review of all phases of the Isle of Pines question, Senator Copeland said in the Senate today, after stressing the strategic importance of the island:

"As a friend of Cuba, as one who traveled up and down the land begging our citizens to demand intervention, as one who spoke many times from the same platform with Quesada, as one who prays for peace and prosperity for that Pearl of the Antilles, I urge upon the citizens of the Cuban Republic that no greater calamity could come to them than a foreign war which directed its attention to the Caribbean.

Copeland Urges Retention.

"As an American, I would make every monetary sacrifice rather than give up a piece of land which can be made a naval, military and air base of greatest importance to our protection of the Canal. This island commands the Yucatan Channel. It commands the Caribbean. It commands the eastern approach to the canal. We must keep it at all costs within honr.

"Cuba owes the United States a large sum of money. If I am correctly advised, there has been no reimbursement of the cost of the second intervention—in 1907-8-9. According to information given by the Bureau of Insular Affairs of the War Department, this amounts to $8,806,000, no part of which has been paid.

"If Cuba really owned the Isle of Pines, no vote of mine would ever snatch from her a grain of sands. But if the Isle of Pines is ours, it should remain so forever. With my conception of its vital importance to the national defense, we cannot afford to lose possession.

"May I suggest, in all delicacy and with no desire to give affront to a proud people, that I wish Cuba might render us a bill for the important service she has rendered our country by her de facto Administration of the Isle of Pines? It has cost the Cuban Republic tremendous sums to look after this territory. Such expenditure should be returned with interest. We can afford to be generous because we have taxed all the goods imported from the Island into Continental United States. It would be impossible to trace out the tariff receipts and return them to the individual shippers, but we can, and should, deal generously with the Cuban Government, even to the extent of her entire indebtedness to us, or more."

SILENT ON WAGE DEMANDS.

Orchestra Officials Say Union Has Not Yet Presented Them.

Officials of the New York Symphony Orchestra and the Philharmonic Society declined yesterday to discuss the reported intention of the musical union to demand an increase of $25 a week for each player when the new contract is made out next Spring. They said these demands had not yet been presented to them. Officials of the union said yesterday that the demand would be made on the Philharmonic Society today.

Walter Damrosch, conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra, said he had heard nothing of such a demand and did not believe it would be made. Others pointed out that with orchestras containing a hundred men in round figures an increase of only $10 a man would increase expenses $1,000 a week, or $23,000 in the normal season of twenty-three weeks. This was declared to be prohibitive in view of the big deficits now sustained by all the symphony orchestras.

At one manager's office it was said that if orchestral concerts were charged for at a rate that would pay the expenses without a seasonal deficit the best seats would cost $7.

400 'HIGH SPOTS' IN CITY'S SCHOOLS

The Board of Education's School Survey Committee, which has been investigating the public schools for six months, gave out yesterday a list of twenty-one of 400 "high spots" found among the elementary and junior high schools. "Low spots" will be given out later, as well as both "low" and "high spots" for the high schools.

The summary of "high spots" was prepared for Superintendent of Schools Dr. William J. O'Shea and the Survey Committee by a committee of three, consisting of District Superintendent Arthur C. Perry, Jr., President of the Society for the Study of Experimental Education; Principal Anna A. Short of P. S. 28, Manhattan, and Principal Rufus A. Vance of St Clair McKelway Junior High School in Brooklyn, President of the New York Principals' Association.

"Among many ways of furthering student help, one school sends parents balanced diet charts, with special reference to wholesome breakfasts.

"In character training one school concentrates on some special habit each month, and has pupils make progress reports as to undesirable habits broken.

"In the study of current national, State and local problems, one school calls upon pupils in assemblies for two-minute speeches.

"Among ways of securing cooperation of parents, one school reports a chain of letters, typed in Italian and setting forth the need for early and constant correction by parents of pupils' faults discovered in school.

"All text books are brought every Wednesday morning to a teacher or principal for inspection as to the care which the pupil is taking of the public's property.

"Each pupil compiles a history of New York, illustrates, types, and binds it in book form.

"Among other advance steps, one school, built in 1908, says it has preserved its original freshness by the untiring care of the custodian-engineer, who takes a personal pride in his plant."

PARENTS WIN A PROTEST.

Kindergarten Children Restored to Their Former Room.

Because of a protest by parents that the kindergarten room at Public School 157, 327 St. Nicholas Avenue, had been converted into an office for the Principal and that the children had been transferred to a room in which artificial light was necessary, Dr. William J. O'Shea, Superintendent of Schools, directed District Superintendent Dr. John P. Conroy yesterday to have the children moved back into the original kindergarten room. A protest had been sent to the Board of Education by parents, led by Mrs. A. Simon, 409 West 127th Street.

Dr. Conroy explained yesterday that space had never been provided for an adequate Principal's office. When Miss Abbie Porter Leland became Principal last October she selected the kindergarten room, at the northeast corner of the building, for an office, moving the children into an almost equally lighted room alongside, on the north side of the building. Miss Leland maintained that the room complained of was equally well fitted for kindergarten uses.

VOTE THEIR OWN PAY CUT.

800 San Francisco Trolley Men Lose $60 a Month by New Law.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20.—Three hundred employes of the Municipal Railway here reduced their monthly wage from $150 to $90 a month as a result of the passage of a charter amendment which they put before the voters and campaigned for at the last election.

The unusual situation was revealed today when the men petitioned the Board of Public Works to hold inoperative certain provisions of the law, but that body ruled that all provisions must be carried out.

Under the new law, the men must conclude their workday within ten hours. This condition makes a rearrangement of schedules necessary and places 300 of the men on extra or "tripper" runs, which pay only $90 a month. Ratification of the charter amendment is now before the California Legislature.

PERSHING REVIEWS CADETS.

BUENOS AYRES, Jan. 20.—General John J. Pershing today reviewed 600 cadets at the Argentine Military Academy and told Minister of War Justo that the students were a fine body of splendidly drilled young men. The cadets marched past the General, doing the German goose step and then falling into the ordinary step.

After being entertained at luncheon by the Minister of War, the American visitor went to the cathedral, where he laid a wreath on the tomb of General San Martin. Afterward he received visits from the local British and French former service men's organizations.

Tonight General Pershing will go to the seaside resort of Mar del Plata. He expects to return here on Thursday.

BANK OFFICIAL CONVICTED.

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—Richard P. Gough, Vice President of the defunct Home Bank of Canada, which failed for more than $8,000,000 in 1923, today was found guilty on three counts charging that he had returned to the Government false statements concerning the institution's condition. Sentence will be imposed later.

Gough is the fourth Home Bank official to be convicted on charges growing out of the failure. Casey Wood, another of the bank's directors, now is on trial on similar charges.

WOMAN WINS SCANDAL SUIT.

Utica Missionary Gets $6,000 Award Against Trainman.

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Damages of $6,000 were awarded to Miss Katherine E. Bathke, Baptist missionary worker of this city, by a Supreme Court jury today in her $50,000 scandal suit against Willard H. Van De Walker, a New York Central trainman.

1,500 OPEN SESSION OF HEBREW UNION

SEEK STRONGER JUDAISM

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 20.—The biennial convention of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and its affiliated groups of temple sisterhoods and brotherhoods today opened a four-day session at the Hotel Statler, with more than 1,500 delegates, representing 273 congregations in the United States. By many present who had attended other Jewish conventions, today's rally in the name of expansive Judaism was declared to be the greatest in the history of the Jews in America.

At the outset of the session a succession of speakers emphasized the fact that the convention was not called to discuss the many so-called problems of the Jews in America—probably the Ku Klux Klan and anti-Semitic sentiment—but was rather intended to make extensive plans whereby the "Jews are to remain Jewish," which will enable them to retain the idea of their religion and to serve the nation.

This sentiment was voiced by Marcus Aaron, President of the Board of Education of Pittsburgh, who delivered the main address of the day at a joint session of the congregation and the temple sisterhoods and brotherhoods.

"What we need is a redirection of Jewish thinking," he said. "Even though it is unfortunately true that we are too often put on the defensive, yet it is none the less true that we can lose our very souls by yielding to the self-regarding instincts that are bred by an overwatchfulness for our place in the world.

"The first need of Jewish education is to arouse the prophetic consciousness in Israel. The primary school in all education is the home, and if Jews desire that their children shall be Jews in fact as well as in name, the lives of their parents and the homes of the children must be such that from the very outset the children may be conscious that more precious than all the goods of the earth are those values which come by way of moral aspiration and spiritual living."

The convention was opened by an invocation by Rabbi Alexander Lyons of Brooklyn, after which Edwin B. Meissner, Chairman of the St. Louis convention committee, was named temporary Chairman of the conference. Mayor Kiel was unable to be present to extend the official welcome of the city, and Walter J. G. Neun, President of the Board of Aldermen, acted for him. Chancellor Hadley of Washington University, speaking on behalf of the educational institutions of the Mississippi Valley, told the assembly that sectarianism in religion is not tolerated in the school of which he is the head. Ten per cent. of the 6,000 students at Washington University, he said, are Jews, and he paid them a fine compliment as to their excellence in scholarship and in other lines of student activity.

New York Synagogue Half Full.

Speaking for the St. Louis community, Aaron Waldheim, Vice Chairman of the General Convention Committee, advocated a "free synagogue where there is no distinction between rich and poor."

"Our synagogues ought to be free to Jews," he said. "I have become even more convinced of this from an experience I had not so long ago in New York City, where services in one of the large temples were only half attended. I found that the reason was that attendance had been impossible for hundreds of Jews because of the high prices demanded for tickets. Synagogues, like all other institutions, must be conducted in a business-like manner, but there is a point where business must stop so far as the synagogue is concerned and that is when its dues and fees become prohibitive.

"A way out of this must be found if we are not to estrange thousands of Jews who are worthy and desirable people. It is hard for the man who is barred out of the synagogue because he is a poor man to have any respect for our religion, and it will be harder still for his children."

Now Has 47,294 Members.

The report of President Shohl recalled that the Union of American Hebrew Congregations is fifty years old, having been founded in 1894 by the late Dr. Isaac M. Wise of Cincinnati, a pioneer of Reform Judaism in the United States. The congregation now has a membership of 47,294 among 273 groups, and the Hebrew Union College at Cincinnati, which has trained more than 200 men as rabbis for Reform Jewish synagogues, now has a total registration of 107, the largest in its history. Plans are being made, he said, for an extension of this work of the college to include the training of superintendents for religious schools. Fifteen congregations have been added to the roster during the past year, he reported, and particular praise was bestowed upon the temple sisterhoods and brotherhoods.

"The latter represent easily a group of potentially 100,000 young men standing on the threshold of our synagogues," he said. "They may become the leaders of tomorrow. We have a number of distinct advantages to bestow upon them, but the arrangement is reciprocal. They, too, have strength which they will add to ours."

At a luncheon to the delegates today, Mrs. J. Walter Freiberg, President of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, spoke on the work of the organization which she heads.

"We have never departed from the religious keynote that was sounded when our organization came into being twelve years ago," she said. "The scope of our work has broadened but each new task assumed has had a religious motive. It seems to me that the most creditable thing for which the federation stands is its adherence to its ideal.

"Surrounded by club work and civic activities, the woman is apt to lose sight of her religious interests, but the rapid growth, and the interest that the women take refute that statement. Woman today holds an entirely different position than in former years. Her religious activities have widened. Her influence in the home where she is a true mother of Israel is a beautiful one. There she should create a religious atmosphere, for with the child her work is of greatest value."

Says Quota Caused Hardship.

The new policy of the Government in fixing immigration quotas was also discussed in a report filed by the Board of Delegates on Civil Rights, prepared by Chairman Maurice D. Rosenberg of Washington, D. C. The new law, he said, had had as one of its aftermaths the barring out of some 15,000 aliens who left their native countries en route for America, some of them eighteen months ago after having disposed of all their possessions and being armed with passports visaed by American consular officers.

Acute distress followed, the report said, when thousands of them were not allowed to embark because the European quotas had been filled. An emergency committee on Jewish refugees has been organized to lend all possible aid to these unfortunates, Rosenberg added.

No sessions were held tonight. The delegates were entertained by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at a special concert at Moolah temple.

THE MODERN PIANO FOR THE MODERN HOME

The DUO-ART REPRODUCING PIANO

THE DUO-ART is the instrument that people are now so anxious to have. Every day greater numbers are exchanging their old pianos for it. It is superseding the regular hand-played piano—even the more recent pianola—because, while it embraces both of these, it offers so much more!

In addition to the piano, in addition to the pianola, the DUO-ART is something which until a few years ago was not even imagined.

Picture this instrument if you can—it stands in your living room, to all appearances simply a handsome piano. Touch its keys and you realize its richness of tone. But when you insert an artist's DUO-ART roll—then the wonder of this modern piano is disclosed.

Enthralled, you hear Paderewski play his own exquisite Minuet—you hear Hofmann as he plays today—as when he holds thousands breathless at Carnegie Hall! You hear practically any great artist you choose. Another roll and you hear the most perfect dance music—or lovely old ballads—or an accompaniment to voice or stringed instrument played by an authority on how it should be played—

Is it any wonder that this great instrument has taken the world by storm? That its sale in Europe, Australia and South America, as well as throughout the United States is reaching enormous figures?

What the Duo-Art Piano Is

In tone-quality and appearance, for hand-playing and practice, it is a piano of finest make and unequalled merit.

As a player-piano for the unskilled to play with a music-roll, it is the latest model of the famous Pianola, endorsed by the entire music world as the most satisfactory and finished of all players.

As a reproducing piano it has received the approval and enthusiastic support of the most famous musicians of the present day and been chosen by them in preference to any other reproducing piano, as the exclusive medium for reproducing their art.

Come to Aeolian Hall tomorrow or at your earliest opportunity. Hear this modern Pianoforte. Learn how easy it will be for you to own one. Or write telling us make and age of your piano that we may advise you how liberal an allowance we will make to you toward a DUO-ART.

BELIEVES TIME RIPE FOR ERA OF REASON

NOW AGREED ON PRINCIPLES

The Only Disputes That Arise Are Those of Conflict of Interests, Says the Educator.

The time has arrived when the nations of the world can enthrone reason and put force in the background as a watchman to see that reason's orderly processes are carried out, said President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University yesterday in an address before the British Empire Chamber of Commerce at the Bankers Club.

"We fortunately are linked, and almost for the first time over a large area, with the great Latin peoples. We have seen France come through a tremendous trial. We have seen her try to struggle to her feet after a series of losses, personal, economic and financial, almost unbelievable.

"We have seen Italy—that great Latin people which is about to write its name high again, unless I mistake, in the history of the world—on the very verge of destruction and saved apparently by an Oliver Cromwell, for if you want to know what is happening in Italy, read the history of England in the middle of the seventeenth century. A great personal force, violative of constitutional procedure and rising above those laws that are only imperfectly law, is working to save the nation in spite of itself. As Oliver Cromwell made modern England, my prediction is that Mussolini will make modern Italy.

"May we not hope and believe that our revolutions, our discords, our armed revolutions are behind us and that we have now come to the point where great questions of policy, important problems of procedure, can be settled in the form of argument and debate and submitted to the judgment of an intelligent and patriotic electorate for decision.

"Have we not come to the point where we can enthrone reason and put force in the background as a police to see to it that reasoned orderly processes are not interfered with and are, when made known, carried out?

"If we can do it at home, why can we not do it abroad? If we can set ourselves an example, why can we not help others to gain the benefit of our experience by associating them with us in these great forward steps away from force and violence and toward those processes of order and reason which are the mark of adult, civilized nations?

"We are agreed upon our fundamental principles. What doubts, and difficulties and disputes arise, arise in the field of interest, conflicting interest, personal, economic, commercial and financial, but surely the temper, the reasonableness, the disciplined attitude which has made it possible for us to build these nations on this firm foundation will enable us to apply these same principles to differences and conflicts of interest as they arise under the shadow of the rooftree which our great body of principles upholds."

SHIP BOARD CANCELS JOINT RATE COMPACT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The Shipping Board today ordered cancellation of the tripartite Conference, of which the North Atlantic, South Atlantic and Gulf Steamship Conferences are members, thus authorizing each of the three conferences to name its own rates on goods moving from competitive American territories to foreign ports.

Under the conditions heretofore existing the tripartite Conference maintained a differential in favor of the North Atlantic ports, whereby the rate on cargo from the South Atlantic ports was 7½ cents per hundred higher than from Atlantic ports, and the rate from Gulf ports was 15 cents per hundred higher than from North Atlantic ports. The board's order cancels this arrangement mainly because the rate situation resulting from it is effectively controlled by the North Atlantic lines.

"It should be pointed out," the board states, "that the membership of the North Atlantic Conference is predominantly foreign. This foreign membership, with votes outnumbering by far those of the American membership, dominates the Tripartite Conference and the rates applicable to American commodities moving in American bottoms from American ports.

"The result is effective control by foreign lines of an extensive portion of our commerce and of much of our shipping. Manifestly, in view of the responsibility imposed in it for the upbuilding of an American merchant marine, this situation calls for unequivocal action on the part of the board.

"This action of the board leaves each group of lines in a position to charge such rates as it deems warranted by the conditions prevailing in its own group."

Several Democratic Senators met in conference today to discuss the Butler bill to place Gulf and New England ports on a parity with other Atlantic ports as to rail and steamship freight rates. The measure was urged by Senators from New England and the Gulf States, but it was opposed by others, who held that through it some of the South Atlantic ports would lose their present favorable through rate differentials. The conference came to no agreement, and the Senators will take up the subject again later.

SCHOOL BOARD NOT LIABLE.

No legal responsibility on the Board of Education or its members results from the conduct of athletic contests outside school buildings, Justice Van Siclen decided yesterday in the Queens Supreme Court, and on motion of Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert J. Culhane, he dismissed an action for $75,000 brought for Fred Katterschinsky, a schoolboy who lost a leg.

The boy, who hobbled on crutches to the witness stand, told of having had a leg broken in a race at the Boys' Vocational School, 138th Street and Fifth Avenue, Manhattan, on Oct. 31, 1923. The leg had to be amputated at the hip. Several fellow contestants also gave testimony.

SILHOUETTES LEAD AT FASHION SHOW

2,500 ATTEND OPENING

American fashions for American women were shown last night at the Spring Fashion Show of the National Garment Retailers' Association at the Commodore. It was estimated that more than 500 men and women from all parts of the country were present. In order to accentuate the idea of domestic production, the American flag was the prominent feature of the decorative scheme.

The designs were beautiful in their simplicity. The straight silhouette still safely holds first place. Of course several novelty features, such as the suggestions of a bustle, circular flounces and pannier effects, timidly made their appearance in some of the creations, but for the most part they were received coldly, if they departed very far from the slim, straight line.

The designers do not seem to have reached any agreement about skirt lengths, and the gowns shown last night varied from the most extreme long evening gown, some even daring to show a train, to the very short street frock that has been struggling for popularity for several months. If the American woman longs for variety she could surely be satisfied with the fashions that are to appear this Spring, for every thing to be desired was shown.

Long Suit Coats in Style.

Almost without exception the suit coats were long, so long, in fact, that often it was difficult to tell whether the coat was part of a suit or was basking in its solitary glory. A new note in these coats was the fullness in the front, while the back remained plain and straight. When the coat was separate it was worn with a soft silk dress of corresponding shade and trimmed in some way to create the ensemble effect. An especially smart one was of gray charmeen, having as its only trimming a band of fox fur in two-tones of gray. Another coat of blue had a wide band of fox fur, which toned from white at the top to dark gray. This shading of fur found much favor, for it was shown on many of the more striking creations.

Even the sports clothes showed the desire on the part of the creator to decorate them with some unusual embroidery or a dashing scarf that almost carried them out of the sports clothes class.

One interesting costume was made up of a white flannel coat severely straight, worn with a dress of yellow bengaline, on which silk was appliqued and outlined with gold silk. The coat was edged with white fox, a particularly popular fur this season.

An endless variety of materials was shown. Possibly the most attractive ones—the season may have something to do with it—are the printed silks. There is the pussy willow in many new guises; then there are diaphanous chiffons that have joined the ranks of the prints and are decidedly effective in the gowns that will be seen at garden parties this Summer.

The colors, too, are distinctly beautiful. The pastel shades are the most popular from all appearances, though again it is doubtless because of the season.

A $1,000 Wedding Gown.

The big feature of the show itself, though, was the bridal party, which is always a part of the Spring show. Simplicity again is the keynote, although this bride's gown was said to represent $1,000 of simplicity. In design it was a decided departure from the straight silhouette, with its full skirt and billowy folds. The dress took fifteen yards of Lohengrin satin. The bodice outlined the figure and was boned like those of two or three generations ago. The court train was caught in the fichu and seemed to be a part of it. The plain veil of tulle was caught below the coiffure and was held there with a narrow wreath of orange blossoms. Pink was the predominating shade for the gowns of the attendants.

Bathing suits came in for a share of attention and the latest echo from abroad, the beach costume, was also on display and attracted considerable attention. They were shown in flowered silk. One was in shades of black and red, with the coat and trousers edged with red satin, a hat to match and a parasol of the same shades.

SIGN JAPAN-SOVIET TREATY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Wednesday, Jan. 21.—Negotiations between the Japanese Minister and the Soviet Ambassador were concluded at midnight with the signing of the treaty re-establishing diplomatic relations between the two countries.

The Portsmouth Treaty is recognized as valid, but other Czarist instruments will be subject to future revision.

Fishery rights are conceded to Japan, and trade and navigation rights will be mutually secured.

Mining and other privileges in Russian territory are conceded to Japanese subjects.

The exact terms of the article relating to propaganda has not been disclosed.

One annex leaves State and individual obligations for future negotiations.

The evacuation of Japanese troops from North Sakhalin is stipulated and the treaty pledges both parties not to conclude treaties with other countries which infringe the rights and interests of one another.

The second annex details the arrangements under which Japanese subjects may work the oil, coal and timber areas in North Sakhalin.

In a series of declarations the Soviet Government expresses regret for the Nicolaevsk killings and Japan agrees not to ratify the Bessarabian convention until all other powers have done so.

The Japanese and Russians for a long time have been negotiating a treaty which would provide for Japan's recognition of the Soviet Government and an agreement regarding outstanding debts of the former Russian Government, oil concessions to Japan, the evacuation of Sakhalin by Japan, and other questions. Some reports have been to the effect that Japan was endeavoring to secure a lease on 40 to 50 per cent. of the total oilfields in Northern Sakhalin.

In addition to the immediate resumption of diplomatic and consular representation the negotiators were seeking to reach an agreement on the questions of fisheries and on commerce and navigation. One clause in the proposed treaty was said to exact a guarantee that the Soviet Government would not carry on propaganda in Japan, and it was added that the Russians were hesitating on that point.

COURT LETS TEACHER GO.

Suspends Sentence When Woman Is Convicted of Leaving Accident.

Because of her good record as a school teacher for twenty years, Mrs. Florence J. Harmon of 214-10 Hollis Avenue, Queens Village, L. I., won a suspended sentence in Special Sessions Court, Jamaica, yesterday. She was convicted of leaving the scene of an accident after an automobile collision. Her license was revoked. Mrs. Harmon's automobile collided with one driven by William Frank of Jamaica South at Bergen and Eighty-sixth Avenues, Jamaica. The teacher said she drove on, intending to go to the police station to report the accident.

'49 REVIVAL STAGED IN NEW MEXICO DESERT

Special to The New York Times.

RINCON, N. M., Jan. 20.—Efforts of a well organized and highly capitalized syndicate to start a gold camp boom here in the spirit of '49 are interesting the whiskered dwellers of the desert here. Following announcement throughout the country of a "gold strike" thirty miles north of Rincon, a camp named "Gold Dust" has been pitched and every effort is being made to start a rush of gold-seekers to the site. Desert men who have looked the site over do not deny the existence of gold where it is said to be. The ground was worked many years ago and some gold was taken out of it. But for the past twenty years it has lain idle, now in the hands of new promoters, the old holes are being resurrected with a bang.

Gold seekers arriving at Gold Dust now, find a half dozen tents, one of them a tent-restaurant operated by two Chinese. Sand stretches away to the dry, rugged mountains.

"Where's the gold?" "Oh," he echoes, "back in the hills. See, here is a pan of placer. Wash it out, Mike." The obliging Mike washes it out, with water hauled in a barrel from the Rio Grande River twenty miles away. Sure enough, the washing produces a few specks of gold.

The next procedure is an attempt to sell a lot—"$200 down, the balance on time." The townsite is all laid out.

Adding to the prestige of the camp is the name of "Gold Dust" Walt Hanson, after whom the camp is named. Hanson is an old-time prospector, well known in the gold camps of the West and Alaska and a crony of Rex Beach.

"Diamond Field Jack" Davis, operator of Western gold camps, is also reported to be in on the promotion. Signs telling how many miles it is to Gold Dust line the highways here. Advertisements flare in the newspapers of surroundings cities.

Goldseekers will undoubtedly come and land will be sold. A boom of some size may be established, but at present "Gold Dust," the new camp which awaits the coming of Rex Beach and a gang of bearded diggers, is a joke in the desert surrounding it.

CAPTIVE AMERICANS RETURN

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 20.—Dr. W. F. Lorenz, head of the State Board of Control of Wisconsin, who was imprisoned in Mexico after a fishing smack on which he signed as a member of the crew was wrecked off the coast of Yucatan, arrived here today. He was released after insistent demands from Wisconsin authorities. He was accompanied by ten sailors.

Failing health had forced Dr. Lorenz to leave his home in Madison, Wis., several weeks ago, and he shipped on the schooner The Ruth.

Jan. 9 the schooner struck a reef off the Yucatan coast and the crew took to the boats. They were picked up by a Mexican warship and put in jail at Progreso.

For two days, the doctor said, they had no food. The water given them, he added, had been used by the dogs and donkeys. Some of the crew were held on charges they did not understand and sent inland to a prison.

Dr. Lorenz said he got word to the American Consul at Progreso, who sent messages to the United States. As quickly as their identity was established the crew was freed.

CASHIER SHORT $226,642.

Total Deficit of Lebanon (N. H.) Bank May Reach $400,000.

LEBANON, N. H., Jan. 20.—Shortage in the accounts of Arthur H. Hough, Treasurer and Cashier of the People's Trust Company of Lebanon, who was arrested here yesterday on charges of falsification in his statements to the State Bank Commission, will amount to at least $226,642, it was announced today by Attorney General Oscar L. Young.

The known shortage of other amounts believed to be missing, unsound loans made by Hough, and other discrepancies it was said, will probably bring the total deficit of the bank to about $400,000.

Bank Commissioners Frederick S. Nutting and George E. Farrand today informed First Selectman Thomas J. McNamara that Hough's account as Treasurer of the Town Hall Building Committee was overdrawn $123,409, although the committee's books showed a favorable balance of between $12,000 and $15,000. This balance due the town plus other shortage and the actual overdraft against the bank brings the total loss of the bank to $226,642.

There is also a balance of $75,000 due the town on the regular funds deposited in the bank.

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 20.—The marital differences of Mr. and Mrs. Milton J. Budlong are being brought out in the Superior Court here in a suit for separate maintenance brought by Mrs. Budlong, now of this city, against her husband, who continues to make his home in New York. Her charges are extreme cruelty, neglect to provide and gross misbehavior.

Mr. Budlong today brought a cross suit, making the same allegations.

The wife was on the stand much of today. She will continue her testimony tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Budlong, when they came to this city a few years ago, bought "The Reef," the T. M. Davis estate on Ocean Avenue.

TWO SHOPLIFTERS IN COURT

One Convicted and the Other Pleads Guilty—Sentences Suspended.

Two women shoplifters received sentences of thirty days each in the Workhouse when arraigned yesterday before Justices Nolan, Kernochan and Edwards in Special Sessions.

Mrs. Estelle DeLure of Freeport, L. I., had been convicted of the theft of four wallets and four cigarette cases from Macy's on Dec. 27. Mrs. Carmella Arquina, 1,971 Mapes Avenue, the Bronx, pleaded guilty to the theft of a pair of hose and a pair of buckles worth $25.45 from Lord & Taylor's on Dec. 6. She is the mother of four children.

$500 Verdict for Death of Child.

A value of $500 for the life of a child three years old was fixed yesterday by a jury in the Queens Supreme Court before Justice James C. Van Siclen. Ludwig Ehe of 85-13 117th Street, Richmond Hill, sued Charles L. Genrich of 23 Gleane Street, Elmhurst. It was claimed that on Sept. 23, 1922, Genrich ran down Mrs. Ehe in an automobile, seriously injuring her and causing the death of a daughter, Hazel. He was sued for $60,000 for the death, $20,000 for injuries to Mrs. Ehe, and $10,000 for the loss of services of Mrs. Ehe. The jury returned a verdict of $500 on each count.

Sill, counsel for the State Tax Commission, that the organizations have the status of fraternal clubs and as such are liable to taxation. Fraternities have employed counsel and will oppose the action.

WARNS OF FRAUDS IN ANTIQUES ABROAD

GIVES TIPS FOR BUYERS

Never Get a Chippendale Washstand, He Says, as People Did Not Wash in That Era.

Herbert Cescinsky, an English expert on antique furniture, arrived yesterday on the Cunarder Scythia from London. He will lecture for four months in the United States on English woodwork and furniture. Among other institutions, he will address the New York, Boston and Chicago Museums of Art.

Mr. Cescinsky deplored the manner in which American collectors have been defrauded by dealers abroad in purchasing antique woodwork and furniture.

"There are many false ideas current in the United States," Mr. Cescinsky said, "about Gothic furniture and Gothic woodwork. There were no chairs, as we know chairs, before Henry VIII. We have specimens of ecclesiastical chairs, but there were no domestic chairs before 1580.

"The reason collectors have not been successful in obtaining examples of Gothic wood carvings is that the best of them are in the smaller churches of Norfolk, Suffolk and Devonshire.

"These are marvelous. When Henry VIII. effected the dissolution of the monasteries the supreme craftsmen fled to the forests. From 1535 to 1550 the woodcraft art of England was dead. Then came the journeymen, who carved crudely, and because of the crudity of their work there is much confusion today as to Gothic woodwork. Many collectors have obtained specimens of this later journeyman industry and believe that they have the pure Gothic."

He said this was particularly true of American collectors. One of the chief mistakes of American collectors, he said, is to attempt to import lacquered marquetry and veneered furniture, which will not stand the climate here.

"American collectors," he stated, "are now in the throes of the Sheraton stage of antiques. That is because there is so much Sheraton on sale abroad." Mr. Cescinsky said there were several impossibilities which collectors of antiques should remember. "There is no such thing as a Chippendale washstand, as people didn't wash in the days of Chippendale," Mr. Cescinsky continued. "There is no Chippendale sideboard. There is no Queen Anne walnut dining table. There was no upholstered furniture before the Cromwell era. There are no grandfather's clocks antedating 1670."

The expert warned against trying to match old furniture.

"I have a friend who has a room in which are twenty-two Chippendale chairs, and no two of them are alike," he said. "Why should they be? There is no more reason why a man should have twenty-two chairs exactly alike than that he should have twenty-two paintings exactly alike.

"The test of a successful room is that you never notice anything in it. If an object stands out, then there is something wrong."

Mr. Cescinsky has a great contempt for faked furniture.

"You can have historic illusions about real antiques, but you get nothing from objects that are false, no matter how cleverly they may be made," he said.

Most of the oak furniture which has come to America as antiques from the time of Queen Elizabeth on, he branded as absolute "frauds and fakes."

"I doubt whether in all Europe," he said, "there is as much creativeness in making furniture as at Grand Rapids, Mich. I don't know whether the furniture now being made in the United States will be long lived or short. Certainly it is better than the mid-Victorian furniture of England."

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 20.—The deficit of the New York State Fair Commission is $59,403.88, according to announcement today by Joseph H. Wilson, research director of the State Board of Estimate and Control, who is directing the investigation of the commission's finances here.

Practically all of this deficit, Mr. Wilson explained, was from the 1924 exposition, attendance at which suffered greatly because of inclement weather. Installation of permanent fixtures for night entertainments was one of the biggest items of unpaid expense.

Mr. Wilson declined to comment on the reported charges of Lieut. Gov. Lowman, that his research was a whitewash for the State Fair Commission. "The investigation, at its close, will show what it is," he said. Beginning tomorrow he will direct attention to questioning fair officials on how last year's deficiency was incurred.

Denial of an assertion ascribed to Lieut. Gov. Lowman that the New York Holstein-Friesian Association had been ready to withdraw support to the State Fair, but had agreed to continue support was made tonight by C. F. Bigler, President, in a statement to The Post Standard.

"At our annual meeting less than a month ago," Mr. Bigler declared, "we voted support of the State Fair Commission and particularly recommended reappointment of George R. Fitts of McLean as commissioner in charge of live stock because he has developed the department and worked steadily with real breeders of the State.

SUMMERALL VISITS MAYOR.

The Mayor chatted with his visitor for half an hour, after which General Summerall looked over the historic relics in the City Hall under the escort of Police Lieutenant Edward J. Quinn, the Mayor's aid. He showed great interest in the collection, which includes the furnishings of the original Federal Capitol in this city.

Have a heart!

WHEN he was ten years old his father was killed in a coal mine. (You have read fiction stories which started that way, but this is a story of Life.)

His mother went out into the neighboring houses to wash until—a year later—his younger sister fell sick and the mother could go out no more.

He saw a farmer planting corn; and begged for a job, pleading the family's desperate situation. Grudgingly the farmer hired him at 50 cents a day.

SEE his little legs racing back home. Hear his boyish tones as he tells the good news.

See him next morning as he follows the farmer, and covers the seed with earth. He is eager to do it right, so eager that he does it wrong, putting on too much earth.

(All this happened forty-nine years ago. The boy is now a man, a big executive. Yet the scene is cut deep into his memory with the acid of bitterness.)

The farmer watched his nervous movements for a little while. Then, with no effort to guide him, no word of suggestion, no regard for the tragedy at home, he uttered an angry exclamation. "You can quit!" he cried.

Forty-nine years ago, but—"I can still feel the sting of those words," the man writes. "I know what it is to be fired! I know what it is to have your hopes, your confidence, your loyalty dashed to the ground. And knowing that, I have tried all my life to avoid hurting the feelings of any man."

HE has unusual ability or he would not be so high up in the business world. But the thing which has given him his power is sympathy—the fine capacity for putting himself in the place of other men. He has a heart.

There is not much about money in The American Magazine. Money needs no spokesman. It can be weighed and counted and seen. But there is a great deal in these pages about the things which are unseen.

About enthusiasm, and faith, and sympathy. About the power of influencing other men because of your knowledge of them. Men who have these qualities do not find it hard to live successfully. For enthusiasm, and faith, and sympathy are the most powerful forces in LIFE.

SAYS DIER CO. LOANS APPEARED AS PROFIT

FEDERAL EXPERT TESTIFIES

Telegraph Operator Declares That Every Order That Came Over the Wires Was Executed.

Involved bookkeeping in the thirty-seven volumes of figures and accounts kept by the stock brokerage firm of Hughes & Dier, which later became E. D. Dier & Co., was explained by a Government witness yesterday at the continuation of the trial of Elmore D. Dier, Charles A. Stoneham and five others on charges of conspiracy and using the mails to defraud, before Judge Francis A. Winslow and a jury in the United States District Court.

Although Judge Winslow ruled against the marking at one time of all the bulky books for identification, he permitted Assistant United States Attorney Victor House to mark those volumes he was using during his examination. Hugh A. Tiernan, bookkeeper for the company for six months prior to February, 1921, was the chief witness. He pointed out figures showing that the firm closed its stock loan account on Oct. 30, 1920, when it showed a credit excess of receipts for stock delivered over the debit of money paid out of $3,964,754. The actual debit in the stock loan account, Tiernan said, amounted to $2,426,616, whereas the credit was $6,381,368.

Asked to interpret such a balance if it were found in the purchase and sales account, the witness explained it would represent an excess of sales over purchases. This total, he testified, was posted in the profit and loss "suspense" account by August Stroh, assistant cashier, one of the defendants. Describing the entries, he said that instead of being recorded in toto the total was divided into several different items: that the largest division was $2,353,558, which was posted as a profit, and that several of the other divisions were $101,254 to the "difference" account, $976,000 to the Philadelphia account, $14,097 to the "M. Brook" account, which is said to be a house account, and $38,656 to the "suspense" account. He admitted that all this money was credited as if proceeds of the stock loan account were actual income.

Taking up the volume showing the firm's expenses as of Oct. 30, 1920, Mr. House called Thomas Merrilles, expert accountant for the Department of Justice, who testified that he had added up the various items and had obtained a total of $2,139,782. The income as of the same date totaled $640,706, excluding the stock loan item of $3,954,754. Some of the expense items, he said, included $193,285 to Mr. Dier; $72,144 for the Fifth Avenue branch; $622,453 for salaries; $292,113 for "general expenses"; $81,134 for the Cleveland office; $111,477 for the Pittsburgh office, and $41,831 for postage.

Tiernan, recalled, said that the ledger from which he gathered his information did not give a complete account of the financial status of the firm. He pointed out that some of the items were incomes of one day only, and in all events the firm's capital was not included in the books which had been given him. There was a great deal of discussion at this point among Judge Winslow, Mr. House and Nash Rockwood, of counsel for Dier, as to the real significance of the figures about which the bookkeeper testified, Mr. Rockwood contending that they had but little meaning.

Arthur Morgan, chief telegraph operator for two years prior to the firm's failure, testified that between 2,000 and 10,000 orders for stock came over his wires during the average day. Every one, he said, was executed through various brokers.

"Did Mr. Dier ever ask you to execute an order?" Mr. Rockwood asked.

"No, sir," the witness replied.

M. Hale Diller, former stock record clerk, completed the testimony he started on Monday. He said that the firm made few legitimate loans, and stock which was received ostensibly in repayment of loans was actually purchased to cover shortages in customers' accounts.

The trial was adjourned until 10:30 this morning.

ASK DOYLE FOR HELP IN BATTLE FOR SPIRIT

Special to The New York Times.

EAST HAMPTON, Conn., Jan 20.—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has been appealed to by Herbert Lyman, a farm hand, who says he is under orders from his dead mistress, Mrs. Phoebe Simons, to stand by the old farm that was her home for many years. Lyman hopes that Doyle will help with advice.

The hearing on the suit to eject him, which was to have been held this morning, was postponed without date. Rumors that the case might be settled out of court were denied by Lyman's attorney, Judge Thomas C. Flood. Newspapers are being made out so that the case may be transferred from the jurisdiction of Justice Frederick P. Buell, who is not disposed to hear it, to Justice A. S. Lunts. Justice Lunts will be assisted by a jury of six men.

This will be the first time in Connecticut, it is believed, that a jury will sit on a case of this kind. Lyman intends to fight until the spirit tells him to leave the place. He has been heartened in his lone battle, he says, by scores of letters from all over the country, some of them from spiritists who believe his story, but mostly from sympathetic persons who admire his faith and his loyalty to his former mistress.

DELAY McCLINTOCK INQUEST

Counsel for Miss Pope and Judge Olson Want to Question Shepherd.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 (Associated Press).—Pending further investigation of the death last month of William H. McClintock the inquest again was postponed today for thirty days at the joint request of Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal Court, Chief of Police Morgan Collins and counsel for Miss Isabelle Pope, fiancée of McClintock.

Counsel for Miss Pope expressed the desire to question both William D. Shepherd, foster-father, who was left the bulk of McClintock's $1,300,000 estate, and Mrs. Shepherd, both now in New Mexico. Robert Stoll, law partner of Shepherd, said he would be glad to ask Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd to return here, but Edmund Hedrick, of counsel for Shepherd, declared he would not advise either to answer questions.

Chief Justice Olson asked if there would be any objection to his interrogation of the Shepherds. Hedrick said he certainly would object. Judge Olson stated that if counsel would produce Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd at the inquest session thirty days hence he would have the Attorney General of Illinois present to examine them.

The appearance of Chief Collins was the first time the Police Department had entered the investigation.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 20.—William D. Shepherd said here today that he intended to return to Chicago about Feb. 1. He said he had no objection to answering any questions that counsel for Miss Isabelle Pope desired to ask, but would leave the matter with his attorneys.

Permanent roads are a good investment —not an expense

Now Is the Ideal Time to Build More Paved Highways

There is not a single community in the United States that does not need a greater mileage of permanently paved roads.

16,000,000 motor vehicles are now using our highways for business and pleasure. They are packing the paved roads in already congested areas, as well as over-running regions until recently considered remote. And they are pounding to pieces all but permanent roads.

Even though a number of states have made good progress in building Concrete Roads, their present permanently improved mileage is entirely inadequate, as every motorist knows.

Meantime, while the building of permanent highways lags, the production of motor vehicles is increasing the present total at the rate of 4,000,000 a year!

Sooner or later this gap must be closed. Why wait?

Not in a long time have general conditions been so favorable for carrying on such public works as permanent highway building, thus assuring tax payers more for their money.

Now is the ideal time to extend both street and road programs!

POLO BODY TO AID LOW GOAL PLAYERS

Intercircuit Series Expected to Help Develop New Material—Hold Victory Dinner.

With the International Challenge Cup, greatest of all polo trophies, successfully defended against the invasion of the British horsemen last Fall and safe from another challenge until 1927, the United States will turn to the development of the low goal players during the coming season in the effort to build a foundation for international tours of the future. This was the general note sounded at the annual meeting of the United States Polo Association, which was held at the Racquet and Tennis Club yesterday afternoon.

More than fifty delegates from various polo clubs, associations and organizations scattered throughout the country from Maine to New Mexico and from Florida to Oregon gathered for the session. The outcome of the decision to emphasize the development of low goal players was the addition of a new tournament to the program for the coming season. This tournament will be played throughout the country for the intercircuit championship and promises to be one of the most popular and interesting events of the season.

Each circuit will hold its own tournament for the championship of that section, and then the winning teams of each division of the country will come together in the final tournament for the national title. Club teams competing in the event will be limited to a maximum handicap aggregate of twelve goals and the games will be played under handicap rules. However, no team will be forced to concede more than six goals to any opponent, either in the preliminary tournament for the divisional honors or in the championship proper. It also was decided that each club must play its own ponies in the title tournament and would not be allowed to borrow mounts from defeated teams in its own circuit.

No place or date was set for the intercircuit championship, but it probably will be played near the end of the Summer and at Meadow Brook, Bryn Mawr or some Western point that would be as centrally located as possible. No dates were decided or places announced for any of the other championship events.

Still Revising Rating List.

The handicap ratings for the coming year, always one of the most interesting announcements of the annual meeting, were not made public, as the committee in charge had several revisions to make following the reports from the delegates on the ability of the players in their sections. However, the committee, headed by J. Watson Webb, the internationalist, and including Seymour Knox, Prentiss Cooniey and Dudley Rogers, is expected to make public the ratings in the near future.

Dates were awarded the various clubs which annually hold special tournaments, and the polo contingent will be busy from Feb. 2, when the play will start at the Flamingo Polo Club at Miami, Fla., until Sept. 19 with club tournaments alone. After that will come the national championships and for the next eight months there will be polo in progress in one part of the country or another. From Miami the stars will travel northward and compete at Aiken, S. C., after which they will compete in tournaments at Camden, S. C., and from there they will go to the Sandhills Polo Club, in Pinehurst, N. C.

May will find the main action centred around the fields of Bryn Mawr and Whippany River, while there will be polo at the Philadelphia Country Club, Meadow Brook and the Rockaway Hunting Club during June. Rumson, N. J.; Point Judith, R. I., and the Myopatica Club at Eatontown, N. J., all will hold their events in July, while the Thousand Islands Polo Club, Dedham Country Club and Myopia Hunt Club, which will hold their events together, and the Miami Valley Polo Club will be the principal scenes of action in August.

Stoddard Again Elected.

Louis E. Stoddard, former internationalist, was signally honored at the meeting by being elected Chairman for the fourth successive term. The unanimous selection of Mr. Stoddard was a tribute well deserved, as it has been only since he became head of the association in 1922 that the game has become generally popular. Polo now enjoys the greatest popularity that it ever has had and no little of the results obtained during the past three years were due to the administration of Mr. Stoddard.

All of the officers who held positions in the association last year were re-elected. They include J. Ford Johnson Jr., Secretary; J. Cheever Cowdin, Treasurer; F. S. O'Reilly, Assistant Secretary and Treasurer; Major Louis A. Beard, A. M. Collins, Prentiss N. Cooniey, W. Cameron Forbes, John C. Groome, W. Averell Harriman, Colonel Julian R. Lindsey, Devereux Milburn, Dudley P. Rogers, Robert E. Strawbridge, Harold E. Talbott Jr. and J. Watson Webb, Executive Committee.

In connection with the coming intercircuit tournament, it was decided to reconstruct the circuits as they are at present arranged. This decision was the result of the great size to which the midwestern Circuit has grown in recent years. It is planned to divide the midwestern division into two circuits, to be known as the Western Circuit and the Central Circuit. The former would include that section west of the Mississippi River bounded on the south by Oklahoma and on the west by Idaho. The Central Circuit would include the section east of the Mississippi bounded on the south by Tennessee and North Carolina, and including on the east the western part of Pennsylvania and New York and the State of West Virginia. Other circuits also may be changed, but this will be left to the decision of a committee appointed for the purpose.

100 Attend Dinner.

Members of the United States team, officials and delegates, gathered last night at the Hotel Biltmore to celebrate the victory of the American Big Four over the British last year.

Close to 100 guests attended to do honor to the United States team and to hear Chairman Stoddard pay official tribute to the men who carried on the best traditions of the game in this country by scoring one of the most decisive victories in the history of the classic.

In addition to Mr. Stoddard, Devereux Milburn, captain of the American team, also spoke. Mr. Milburn had the highest praise for the members of his team and also paid tribute to the fine sportsmanship of the English. One regular member of the team and two substitutes were unable to be present. They were Malcolm Stevenson, who was hurt in the first game and who is now in the South; Earle W. Hopping, a substitute, now playing in Florida, and Eric Pedley, the sensational young star from the Pacific Coast, who was also named as a substitute and is now in California.

Flamingo Polo Club, Miami, Fla., Feb. 2, 28; Eighth Corps Area, Texas, Feb. 15, March 1; Aiken Polo Club, Aiken, S. C., March 2, 14; Camden Polo Club, Camden, S. C., March 15, 30; California tournaments, March 21, April 15; Sandhills Polo Club, Pinehurst, S. C., April 6, 15; Bryn Mawr Polo Club, Bryn Mawr, Pa., May 15, 30; Whippany River Polo Club(Morristown, N. J., May 23, 30; Philadelphia Country Club, May 30, June 13; Meadow Brook Club, Whippany River Polo Club, Morristown, Hunting Club, Cedarhurst, L. I., June 20, July 11; Rumson Polo Club, Rumson, N. J., July 11, 28; Point Judith Polo Club, Narragansett Pier, R. I., July 25, Aug. 23; Myosotitas Polo Club, Eatontown, N. J., July 25, Aug. 8; Thousand Island Polo Club, Wellesley Island, N. Y., Aug. 8, 22; Dedham Country Club and Myopia Hunt Club, Mass., Aug. 15, 29; Miami Valley Polo Club, Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 29, Sept. 5; Onwentsia Polo Club, Lake Forest, Ill., Sept. 6, 19.

Ray Loses Rating as Best Miler For the First Time in 8 Years

For the first time in eight years Joie Ray, star runner of the Illinois A. C., is unrecognized as America's foremost miler in the 1924 All-American athletic team selections of Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary-Treasurer of the A. A. U. Ray, supreme as America's outstanding middle-distance runner between 1917 and 1923, this year is replaced by Ray Buker, another Illinois A. C. athlete, as the mile selection. Ray is named for the two-mile distance. Ray started his career as America's leading miler in 1915, when he won his first title at the distance. He won the title for the second time in 1917 and in the six successive years up to and including 1923 he successfully defended the honor. Last year, however, Ray had to bow to Buker in a race run in 4 minutes 24 8-10 seconds.

NURMI TO COMPETE IN NEWARK TONIGHT

Will Make an Attempt to Lower Record for 2¾ Miles—Ritola to Curtail Schedule.

Paavo Nurmi will seek additional athletic honors tonight. The star Finnish runner is scheduled to strive for a record at two and three-quarter miles in the feature event of the annual indoor athletic meet of St. Joseph's Catholic Club to be held in the 113th Infantry Regiment Armory, Newark. Nurmi will take to the track tonight prepared to assault the long-standing record of another great Finn, an athlete who in his day was incomparable, as Nurmi is now. Hannes Kohlemainen holds the record for this distance, a mark of 13:06 3-5, made in this city on Feb. 12, 1913.

Officials of the meet have announced that Nurmi will be opposed in his first Newark race by five of his own countrymen, all representing the Finnish-American A. C. His rivals will be Ilmar Pihl, Gus Fager, Gunnar Nilson, Carl Willberg and A. L. Tikkanen. The race will be held over a ten-lap track.

This event will be the feature of an attractive card. Among the other events are the one-mile Catholic college relay championship, the Metropolitan A. A. U. 500-yard championship, 70-yard handicap dash, Waldron 600-yard special invitation race, women's 440-yard relay race and the Metropolitan A. A. U. 2,400-yard relay title race.

Some of the prominent athletes scheduled to compete are: Loren Murchison, Newark A. C. sprint star; Clarence McKim, John Gibson, Walter Mulvihill, Leo Larrives, Paul Herlihy, Walter Gegan, Roy Haas, Vernon Ascher, Thomas Burke, Frank McCloskey, Vince Lally, Sid Leslie, Jack Sellers and Philip Granville, Canadian walker.

Joe Tierney, Holy Cross runner, and Willie Plant, America's leading walker, were entered for the meet, but withdrew. Tierney because he is on the disabled list with an injured ankle, and Plant because he requested to be excused in order that he might properly prepare for his race against Ugo Frigerio and George Goulding at the Millrose A. C. games in Madison Square Garden on Jan. 27 and 28.

That Willie Ritola, Finnish-American A. C. distance running star, is seriously considering withdrawing from important indoor competition was indicated yesterday when Coach Hugo Quist of the Finnish club entered his organization's track team in the games to be conducted under the joint auspices of the Morningside A. C. and the 102d Engineers Regiment in the 102d Engineers Armory on Jan. 30. In submitting the entry of Ritola among those of other Finnish club athletes, Quist intimated that the games probably would witness the last indoor appearance of Ritola for some time. Quist explained that Ritola does not desire to continue hard training for important races every few nights and plans to run only in a few more competitions in which the so-called small clubs will be favored with his activities.

Ritola is one of a team of Finnish athletes entered for the two-mile run, which will be one of the features on Jan. 30. Other Finnish club entries include Gunnar Nilson, local senior cross-country champion; Ilmar Prim, national five-mile title-holder, and J. Tikkanen, holder of the district's junior hill-and-dale title.

FORDHAM IS VICTOR OVER SWARTHMORE

Triumphs, 28 to 16, and Wins Fifth Straight Basketball Game of Season.

The Fordham University basketball team won its fifth successive victory of the season last night when it defeated Swarthmore College by the score of 28 to 16 in the new Fordham gymnasium. The game was the closest of the year for the Maroon and at the end of half time Swarthmore was leading at 9 to 8.

Fordham pulled gradually ahead in the second half. The Maroon was at a handicap without the service of Zakszewski, who was out on account of illness. With Cavanagh and Manning leading in the attack the home five gradually drew away from their opponents, though never to lead by so big a margin that Swarthmore could not have overtaken them. Price, who substituted at centre, was the outstanding figure on the Swarthmore team, both on the attack and in breaking up the pass work of Fordham.

RUBIEN ANNOUNCES ALL-AMERICA TEAM

WILLIE RITOLA UNPLACED

Four Men Named for Sprints, Ray for 2 Miles—College and Scholastic Teams Also Chosen.

The annual selections for all-America, all-college and all-scholastic track teams by Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary-Treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, published in Spalding's Athletic Almanac for 1925, were made public yesterday. On the whole, athletic followers are agreed the selections represent about the most formidable array of athletic talent available in the country. In his selections this year Secretary Rubien has departed from his custom of the past and has devoted more attention to including the most formidable representation in his selections rather than picking athletes for their individual brilliance. As an illustration, Rubien last year selected Loren Murchison, Newark A. C., for the 60-yard, 100-yard, 220-yard and 300-yard berths on his teams. This year Rubien has divided these position among four sprinters, his selections being, respectively, Chet Bowman, Charlie Paddock, Jackson Scholz and Murchison.

Where he picked Joie Ray for the mile and two-mile berths last year, Rubien this year selects Ray for only the two-mile, the distance at which Ray holds the indoor title and record of 9:08 2-5. Willie Plant, Morningside A. C. walker, who is regarded as the leading heel-and-toe athlete of the country, is named for the mile walk, whereas last year he was selected for the one-mile walk and seven-mile walk. Willie Ritola, Finnish-American A. C. distance runner, who was selected for the ten-mile run, cross-country and steeplechase positions on the 1923 team, is ignored in Rubien's 1924 selections entirely for the reason, undoubtedly, that Ritola's activities in American athletic activities last year did not warrant his inclusion on the team. Ritola left this country early last year to train in Finland to represent his native land in the Olympic Games at Paris.

On the 1924 team are fourteen holdovers from the 1923 team. Eight of these athletes are accorded the places on the latest team that they held in the 1923 selections. Matt McGrath, New York A. C. weight man, is selected again for the 56-pound weight event; W. I. Reed, Brown University, for the standing broad jump; Tom Lieb, Illinois A. C., for the 16-pound shot; Fred Tootell, Boston A. A., for the 16-pound hammer; Bob Le Gendre, Newark A. C., for the pentathlon; Clarence De Mar, Melrose Post, American Legion, Boston, for the marathon; Harold M. Osborn, Illinois A. C., for the decathlon, and Charlie Brookins, University of Iowa, for the 220-yard hurdles.

In addition to the changes affecting Murchison, Ray and Plant, Alan Helffrich, Penn State College star, is selected for the 600-yard run instead of the half-mile run, a position which is awarded to Schuyler Enck, another Penn State runner; R. Earle Johnson, Pittsburgh distance runner, is selected for the 10-mile run instead of the 6-mile event, and De Hart Hubbard, University of Michigan jumper, who was picked on the 1923 team for the running broad jump, is selected on the latest team for the running, hop, step and jump.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 20.—Outclassed in the first half, Yale staged a fine rally in the second half of the basketball game with Princeton tonight but could not overcome a big advantage gained by the Tigers early in the game and was defeated, 28 to 15, in an Intercollegiate League contest.

The Tigers' passing game and stone-wall defense held Yale to 1 point in the first half, while the men from New Jersey rolled up 14. Yale's only score in that period was a free toss from foul by Captain Dick Luman. Captain Cleaves was the star for Princeton in the first half. Toward the end of that period Princeton ran in many substitutes, and even the second-string men held Yale.

Starting the second half with the second-string players, Princeton failed to show to the best advantage and Yale ran up 10 points so quickly that the Tiger regulars were sent hurrying back into the game. From that point on Cleaves and his companions jumped the score up and finished with Yale fighting hard but making few points.

Cleaves and Hynson played brilliant basketball for Princeton, while Coleman and Luman did the best work for Yale.

The line-up:

Pointer Loses on Time Limit but Other Three Entries Score in Their Heats.

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., Jan. 20.—With better weather conditions prevailing, four more dogs of the twenty starters in the National Championship Association's Stake ran their heats today.

The pointer, Oklahoma City Jack, owned by Dr. George Blue, Montgomery, Ala., ran well at the beginning of his brace and in the first hour scored four bevies and several singles, all of which he handled faultlessly. His brace mate, the setter Jersey Pat, owned by Frank Reilly, Medford, N. J., was somewhat unruly and did not have as much success on game as Oklahoma City Jack, but in the last few minutes of the three-hour run he found and displayed form on a bevy.

Invader, pointer, owned by J. K. Ottley, Atlanta, and Fischel's Hossier Frank, owned by U. R. Fischel, Hope, Ind., were paired in the second and last brace. Invader could not be handled and was counted out of the race on the time limit. Hoosier Frank found five bevies of birds, but he showed only ordinary speed.

DARTMOUTH FIVE BEATS PENN, 22-16

Tallies Six Points in Last Two Minutes and Takes Third Straight League Game.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 20.—Dartmouth defeated Pennsylvania in a sensational Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League game here tonight that was not decided until the last two minutes of play. The final score was Dartmouth 22, Penn 16. This victory was the third straight for Dartmouth and enabled the Green quintet to keep the lead in the basketball race. Two field goals and two foul goals, with Picken and Friedman leading on the attack, were the points that brought victory to Dartmouth. At the end of the first half Dartmouth was leading by 14 to 9.

Going into the second half Penn opened up a powerful attack that was not checked until Penn had tied the count at 14 to 14. Close guarding kept the scoring down, and the next two points scored by each team were by fouls. The deadlock held until the closing two minutes, when the Green launched its winning attack. Picken was the individual star of the game, accounting for eight of Dartmouth's points, making two field goals and four foul goals.

Dey opened the game by scoring with a long goal from the field shortly after the contest got under way, and he repeated shortly afterward. Near the end of the first half the score was 8 to 7 in favor of the Green, when Captain Goas's team spurted and reached the count of 14 to 9 before the half ended.

The game was hard played and much roughness followed, with the result that many penalties were called.

M'GRAW EXPECTING HARD PENNANT RACE

Pittsburgh is the club the Giants will have to beat for their fifth straight pennant, in the opinion of no less an authority than John J. McGraw. In a fanning bee yesterday the Giant manager gave his views on next year's pennant race, based on events during the Winter, and it was his observation that the Giants can look for the most trouble from the Smoky City entry.

McGraw's forecast is that New York and Pittsburgh will fight it out for the lead, with Brooklyn and Chicago following the pack closely. Brooklyn, he said, will have about the same club as last year, but with the chance that the team will age suddenly in several vital positions. In McGraw's opinion the Cubs have not been strengthened by the deal with Pittsburgh, but may have enough strength to pass the Robins if Zack Wheat, Jack Fournier and Milton Stock suffer a slump from the increasing encroachment of old age.

As far as the Giants are concerned, McGraw expects to start the season with the same team that faced the Senators in the world's series.

"Barring the unexpected development of young stars," said McGraw, "I will stake my chances on the same outfit as last year. Of course, it is rather early to begin making predictions about the line-up. I may discover a youngster who will develop so sensationally that it will be impossible to keep him out of the line-up. I may play Kelly in centre field or I may station him at first base. Again, I may use Terry only against right hand pitchers and play Kelly at first base against the southpaws, using an extra outfielder to take George's place in centre when left handers are in the box.

No Trades Contemplated.

"But what I mean to say is that I expect to make no trades for new material. We will start the season with the same squad as last year, and it will be a question of placing the men where they will do the most good.

"The only exception to this is in the pitching department. There I have a number of young pitchers who may come through. I would say that the pitching staff is more in the air than any other part of the team. In Dean and Maun, for instance, I have two youngsters who may become real pitchers next Spring. Dean strikes me as a great possibility. He had personal troubles last Spring which weighed on his mind and ruined him as a pitcher. Now that this angle has been cleared up, I look for Dean to justify all the nice things that were said about him last April and May. He has everything which goes to make a good pitcher.

"Then there are Howard Baldwin and Walter Huntsinger and Kent Greenfield as possibilities. Greenfield was the best pitcher in the Eastern League last year, according to competent judges. We had him down South for a trial in the Spring. Baldwin pitched good ball on several occasions. Maun looks like a comer. We still have John Scott, and I look for Virgil Barnes to blossom out into a first-rate pitcher. He pitched a wonderful game for seven innings in the last game of the world's series.

"When we get to Sarasota we'll have about eighteen or nineteen pitchers on hand. The rest of the squad will be about the same. No new infielders, probably nothing new in the outfield and only a couple of new catchers in Devine and Hartley.

"Speaking of catchers, I look for Frank Snyder to get back the use of his throwing arm during the off-season. Something went wrong in his elbow, but it was nothing that could be fixed by tinkering with it. Snyder needs a rest, in my opinion, and I wouldn't be surprised if he is as good as ever next year."

Thinks Pirates Bettered Team.

According to McGraw, Pittsburgh got all the better of the Chicago trade—which opinion runs counter to that of even the Pittsburgh experts.

"Grantham will be a great help to the Pirates," said John J. "He will be a better outfielder than infielder and has punch and speed. Young Niehaus, the new first baseman, has great hitting power, according to all accounts. The Pirates should be speedier and stronger with the bat. Aldridge is a good pitcher who had trouble in Chicago and didn't do his best work. They tried to trade him for two years, indicating that something was wrong between him and the club.

"Cooper, I think, will not be a winning pitcher in Chicago. He is the sort of pitcher who lets the batter hit the ball, and the short fences in the Cub park will be bad for him. Grimm never was a good hitter in the pinch or a winning ball player, in my judgment at least.

"I think the Pirates will be dangerous. So will the Robins, but Fournier and Wheat are getting old. Stock is a big problem at third, and there is no guarantee that Jimmy Johnston's legs will stand up at his age. Vance will have to come through as big as last year to keep the Robins up in the fight.

"The Reds will be stronger with their infield additions, and their outfield and pitching are hard to beat, but I doubt if Jack Hendricks's team will be a real pennant contender. I don't consider the Cardinals, Braves and Phillies strengthened enough to cut much of a figure next season.

"One thing is sure—the fifth pennant will be tougher than the fourth. Every one gets a little harder. We had better spirit on the Giants in 1924 than in 1923, but a club that has won four straight flags begins to take winning as a matter of course. That's the big difficulty."

McGraw is planning to go to Florida next week

May we throw out a hint that this is saving time?

Substantial revisions of prices have made several thousand men's suits and overcoats $10 to $15 more interesting than they were.

THE MIRAMIR PURSE TO SLOW AND EASY

McGINN SCORES A DOUBLE

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 20.—Slow and Easy, E. B. McLean's chestnut filly by Colin—Shyness, this afternoon won the Miramir Purse, a dash of five and a half furlongs, confined to the three-year-olds, that featured the card at Hialeah Park. Williams had the mount, and the filly, under 108 pounds, ran the distance in the fast time of 1:06 3-5 over a fast track. She was one of the outsiders of the six that went to the post, paying $12.90 for a $2 ticket.

J. B. McGinn's colors were twice carried to victory, Muskeg winning for him in the third and Purity in the seventh. Two favorites came home in front, while Sandpile, which won the fourth, paid $79.90 for a $2 ticket.

The Miramir Purse was easily won, there being little of a contest. Slow and Easy, which ran second to Ball Gee on the opening day, broke into her stride and forced a fast early pace. The filly held command throughout and at the winning post was three lengths in front of Volante, the short-priced favorite. The Fair Play colt was in closest pursuit of the flying filly, but was not able to improve his position.

The Audley Farm had two strings to its bow in Dangerillo and Hobson, 5 to 1 shots. The former ran well to take third money, with his stablemate finishing fourth. H. P. Whitney's filly Bridesmaid, the second choice, was never able to get up into the contention.

Nellie Gray, C. W. Landers's gray filly, won her second race in as many starts here when she romped home at the head of a field of nine that ran the five and a half furlongs of the claiming race for four-year-olds and upward. The filly was the odds-on favorite. She was a little slow at the break, but Weimer rode her hard to take the lead. She was reated in front thereafter and had speed to spare at the end.

Fighting Cook Is Second.

G. W. Atkinson's mare Fighting Cook, which campaigned on the Canadian tracks and was making her first start here, was close up all the way and outlasted Who Knows Me. There was a battle for second and third money, as Fighting Cook took the place by a nose and Who Knows Me lasted to take the short end by a head from Flax. The winner carried 112 pounds and ran the distance in 1:06 2-5, paying $3.90 for a $2 ticket.

Only five ran the mile and seventy yards of the final race, but it resulted in a great finish in which Purity, under a fine ride by Stutts, was up to gain the money by a neck from J. A. Coburn's Wrangler. The latter was a head in front of Soggarth Aroon. The winner paid $12.20.

Wrangler outbroke the others when the barrier rose, raced down Soggarth Aroon, but was unable to withstand Purity's challenge. Soggarth Aroon, shuffled back at the start, was rushed through on the rail in the first half mile to take command and then tired. Hyperion, the public choice, finished fourth.

Sun Altos, the Lilane Stable's four-year-old gelding by Sun Briar—Los Altos, and the 5 to 4 favorite, easily ran off with the sprint of five and a half furlongs for maidens of three years and upward, first on the card. Under top weight of 118 pounds, the gelding had no difficulty in showing the way to the seven others in the field. Ambrose took him to the front with the rise of the barrier and he opened a commanding lead rounding the lower turn. He won by four lengths from A. Barkle's three-year-old filly Inver Maid, which was nearest the pace all through. L. A. Price's Grand Mariner raced down the Greentree Stable's Cup o' Tea in the stretch to take third money. It was the winner's first start since the Pimlico meeting and he paid $4.50 for a $2 ticket.

Three-year-old maidens ran the five and a half furlongs of the second race, the winner being the outsider Wish I Win, owned by J. J. Fahey, which paid $26.50 for a $2 ticket. The filly took command turning out of the backstretch and held on gamely when challenged. Golden Age moved up in the stretch to assume a temporary lead and then faltered, Wish I Win just holding on to gain the decision by a nose. Firmament got up to win third money by a head from Ben Franklin, which ran out entering the stretch and lost ground.

Musket Wins Handily.

The claiming gallop of a mile and seventy yards for three-year-olds and upward was an easy victory for Musket, second choice in a field of six. The son of Delhi and Lady Teresa picked up top weight of 116 pounds and ran the distance in 1:46 4-5. Parke had the leg up and gave the colt a good ride, keeping clear of interference all the way. He drew away entering the stretch and won in hand. The winner was second choice and paid $6.50. Composer took the place by three lengths from the 7 to 5 favorite, Lady Marian, which was crowded back on the stretch turn and pulled up lame.

The summaries:

Sun Altos, 118 pounds (Ambrose), $4.50, $3.20, $2.60, first; Inver Maid, 105 (Callahan), $3.50, $2.80, second; Grand Mariner, 110 (Werner), $17.20, third. Time—1:06 1-5. Red Sox Send Murray to Mobile.

BOSTON, Jan. 20.—Pitcher George Murray has been released outright by the Boston Red Sox to the Mobile club of the Southern Association, President Quinn of the Red Sox announced today.

Zivic, If He Can Make Weight, Will Seek Lightweight Title

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 20.—Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh, who knocked out Lew Tendler of Philadelphia in the fifth round here last night, will go after the lightweight championship recently vacated by Benny Leonard, if he can make the weight, James Bronson, Zivic's manager, announced today. Zivic weighed 144 pounds for the Tendler bout. Bronson said he would place Zivic in the hands of Jimmy De Forest, veteran trainer of boxers, for a period of thirty days to develop the local fighter's possibilities as a lightweight fighter.

"At the end of that time," Bronson said, "I expect De Forest to tell me whether Zivic can make the lightweight limit and still be himself. If his reply is favorable, then, with De Forest as his conditioner, I shall send him after the lightweight championship."

MIGHTY TAKES DASH AT ORIENTAL PARK

HAVANA, Jan. 20.—The three-year-old colt Mighty, owned by T. E. Mueller, which has been showing speed in recent trials, proved that he was ready when he ran a winning race in a five-and-a-half-furlong dash this afternoon at Oriental Park. E. L. Fitzgerald's Promising Laura was installed the favorite at odds of 6 to 5, but Yerratt gave Mighty a well-judged ride and got the Mueller colt home first. Mighty was hustled into the lead in the first quarter, and saved ground. He was under severe pressure to withstand the bold challenge of Promising Laura in the last furlong, but outgamed the filly.

A scant nose was the margin by which J. B. Partridge's Annie Lyle beat Winnipeg, winner of his last two starts here. Annie Lyle's victory came in the final race on the card, which was run over a distance of ground. The event was marred by a poor start in which the six starters all indulged in fractiousness, and it was Annie Lyle that got away last. The filly, however, moved up steadily and caught and passed all but Winnipeg before the turn into the home stretch, and in a terrific drive finally nosed out the Hudson horse.

EVER BOLD SCORES AT NEW ORLEANS

TRIUMPHS BY 4 LENGTHS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 20.—Ever Bold, H. C. Riddle's six-year-old gelding by Hesperus—Belle Mayes, this afternoon won his fourth straight victory at the Fair Grounds when he defeated four others to win the Victory Handicap, a gallop of a mile and a sixteenth for three-year-olds and upward. Fields had the mount, and Ever Bold took up 105 pounds and ran the distance in 1:51 4-5 over a heavy track. He was held at 7 to 2 in the betting.

McTague took the riding honors of the afternoon with a double, riding Caligula to win the second and bringing Isaman home in front in the seventh. Only one favorite rewarded his backers.

Ever Bold gained an easy victory in the handicap, although he looked anything but a winner in the early stages. He was far out of the contention during the first half mile. Then Fields got him going and he moved up with a rush. He drew away in the last furlong and was four lengths in front of the Rinkey at the winning post.

Rinkey was the 9-to-5 favorite. She made the early pace and then appeared to be beaten, but she came again in the stretch to take the place by three lengths from Mrs. A. Swenke's Red Wingfield. The latter moved into the lead just before reaching the stretch, but tired and only lasted to save the short end of the purse by a neck from Bradley's Toney.

W. S. Heaton's High Water romped away from five others to win the Arcadia Purse, a dash of six furlongs restricted to the three-year-olds. Harvey had the mount and gave the gelding a hustling ride. High Water was well up with the leaders and showed much improvement. In the final furlong he came away to win in a gallop, eight lengths separating him from the Holloway Stable's Tonnerre. C. T. Wilson's Doc McMahon came from far back in the stretch to take third money. The winner was not fancied at 7 to 1. Tod Renesor, the favorite, was through after half a mile.

POULTRY EXHIBIT WILL OPEN TODAY

The thirty-sixth annual Madison Square Garden Poultry Show will open today and continue through Sunday. Because this will be the last show in the old Garden the officials have been unusually active in their efforts to make it a success, and more than 700 exhibitors have entered from thirty-four States and Canada. Several of these exhibitors had entries in the first show in the Garden, and three judges who helped to make the awards at the initial exhibition again will be on the job. They are William J. Stanton of East Orange, N. J.; George O. Brown of Baltimore, and J. D. Drevenstedt of Northport, N. Y.

Lectures by poultry experts, furnished by the United States Government and five State agricultural institutions, will be given each day of the show at 2:30 and 3:15 in the afternoon and at 8 in the evening. These lectures will afford poultry students an opportunity to put in five days of intensive study and laboratory work, so that the show virtually constitutes a course in poultry husbandry.

The show will not be limited in interest to poultry fanciers, however, as the wide variety of fowls, cavies and pet stock offered for exhibition never fails to attract the general public.

RICKARD TO STAGE 4 BIG BOUTS HERE

Signs Berlenbach and Marullo for Jan. 30, Delaney and Slattery on Feb. 13.

FLOWERS ALSO IN SERIES

Will Face Berlenbach on Feb. 26—Delaney Also Contracts for Fourth Battle.

A series of light-heavyweight ring encounters which promise plenty of exciting action for boxing followers was announced yesterday by Promoter Tex Rickard for Madison Square Garden's future fistic dates. The series of four bouts will open on Jan. 30, when Paul Berlenbach, Astoria's hard-hitting boxer, engages Young Marullo, New Orleans light-heavyweight, who is regarded as one of the outstanding contenders for the class honors.

On Feb. 13 Rickard has arranged a match in which Jack Delaney, Bridgeport lad who conquered Berlenbach and Tiger Flowers, Atlanta negro, will engage Jimmy Slattery, clever Buffalo boxer, in a return engagement. This contest will be followed on Feb. 26 by a clash between Berlenbach and Flowers, who are slated for a fifteen-round tilt, according to Rickard. The winner of the Feb. 26 engagement, Rickard said, will be matched against Delaney for a bout to be held in the Garden in March.

Berlenbach and Marullo were scheduled to have fought at the Garden earlier in the season, but the contest was deferred when injuries overtook both boxers. Berlenbach sustained an injured hand and asked for a postponement, which was welcomed by Marullo, too, for he also was troubled with weak hands and sought the relief of a delay to enable his hands to grow stronger under treatment. They are scheduled for twelve rounds.

Delaney and Slattery clashed earlier in the season in a six-round battle which was won by the Buffalo lad on points. Their coming battle will be for six rounds also, because of the fact that Slattery is affected by the State Athletic Commission's minimum age rule prohibiting boxers under 21 years of age from engaging in bouts of greater distance than six rounds.

Delaney has been clamoring for this match since his last meeting with Slattery, confident that he can avenge the defeat he suffered when the decision went against him. In their last encounter Delaney attributed his defeat to the fact that he spent four rounds in a futile effort to land a right on Slattery's jaw which would dispose of the Buffalo youngster. Slattery's superb cleverness, speed and agility frustrated Delaney's efforts in this direction, and his clever boxing on the attack earned the Bison City lad a clean-cut triumph.

The Berlenbach-Flowers match on Feb. 26 is contingent upon Berlenbach scoring a victory over Marullo when the pair clash in the Garden on Jan. 30. In the event that Marullo is victorious the Crescent City boxer will be offered the bout against Flowers, with the understanding that if he beats the Atlanta negro also he will be awarded the proposed battle against Delaney in March, Promoter Rickard said.

Rickard expressed deep satisfaction over the success of his negotiations among these leading light-heavyweights. The fact that the two class champions, Mike McTigue, world's titleholder, and Gene Tunney, holder of the American title, are inactive so far as local ring competition is concerned has had no adverse effect upon the activity of the class, Rickard said, pointing to the record house which witnessed the recent Delaney-Flowers battle as supporting his contention.

Rickard disclosed that he will seek to arrange as an outdoor attraction next Summer a bout between the survivor of the Garden's light-heavyweight series and either Tunney or McTigue, subject to the approval of the State Athletic Commission.

GARVEY AND BRIGHT BATTLE TO A DRAW

Knockouts came in profusion and variety last night in the heavyweight fistic carnival held at the Pioneer A. C. Of six scheduled six-round bouts, five of which were among heavyweights, but one encounter went its scheduled distance. This was the feature event, in which Ed Garvey, South Bend heavyweight, who formerly was a football player at Notre Dame, and Dan Bright, English heavyweight, were the principals.

This bout was a comparatively uninteresting battle, which was declared a draw by the judges, Charles F. Mathison and Charles Draycott, and Referee Johnny McAvoy. Many of the critics thought the decision complimentary to Garvey, who appeared to advantage in only two of the six rounds. The Indiana boxer carried off the first and the sixth. The second was even, and in the third, fourth and fifth Bright appeared to have a decided advantage.

Garvey showed little to recommend him as a heavyweight title prospect. He carried the fight through the first round with characteristic wildness and a typical lack of effectiveness. Bright, retreating before the rushes of his rival, slipped to the ring floor at one stage of the battle, but was up immediately. Bright started to fight back in the second round and held his own in a session in which Garvey twice was warned for rough work. Vicious left hooks to the body through the third, fourth and fifth rounds had Garvey seeking the relief of clinches repeatedly, but the South Bend boxer rallied in the sixth session and carried the final round. Garvey weighed 218½ pounds and Bright 198½ pounds.

In the semi-final, scheduled for six rounds, Mike Burke, Greenwich Village lightheavyweight, knocked out Sammy La Salle, Brooklyn heavyweight, substituting for George Mulholland, in the second round. La Salle's seconds tossing a towel into the ring after two minutes of the second round when the Brooklynite was helpless on the ropes. Knocked down in the first round after he had floored his opponent, Yale Okun, East Side light-heavyweight, came back cleverly in the second session and knocked out Mel French of Brooklyn in their scheduled six-round battle. A terrific right to the jaw finished French after the second round had progressed 2 minutes 35 seconds.

Ed Keeley, Bridgeport heavyweight, knocked out Dan O'Connell of Bayonne in the third round of their scheduled six-round bout, the referee stopping the bout after 1 minute 15 seconds of the third round. In another heavyweight battle Jimmy Francis of Greenwich Village knocked out Howard Hall of West Hoboken in 55 seconds of the fourth round. Ruby Goldstein and Ed Market, junior lightweights, were the principals in the other six-round bout, which ended in a knockout victory for Goldstein in 1 minute 25 seconds of the first round.

Hoppe will meet Solomon in two blocks, each at 60 points to 50. The final block will be played tomorrow night. Hoppe lost to Solomon two weeks ago when he attempted to play him three blocks, 60 points to 45.

K. Suzuki, the new junior 18.2 balkline champion, who has been entered officially in the international 18.2 tournament which opens in Chicago on Feb. 23, will complete his preparation for the match by working daily at the Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. His schedule has not been announced, but he is expected to engage in a number of exhibition matches within the next two weeks.

Benny Allen will extend his stay in the metropolitan district when he concludes his six-game series against Charles Harmon, which opens at Lawler's Manhattan Academy tomorrow afternoon. Allen will return later for his six-game series against Frank Taberski.

CONCANNON BREAKS EVEN.

Joseph Concannon, representing Brooklyn in the National Championship Pocket Billiard League, and Benny Allen of Kansas City, divided their two games played in the tournament yesterday at the Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. In the afternoon Concannon was the winner at 100 to 20. He went out in eighteen innings and had a high run of 33. In the evening Allen turned the tables, winning at 100 to 55. This game lasted only thirteen innings. Allen's high run was 43, Concannon's was 26. Allen now leads in the series 3 to 1. The final two games will be played this afternoon and evening.

The afternoon game was marked by much safety play, and at the end of the twelfth inning the score stood at 18-18. Beginning with the thirteenth inning, Concannon began to play brilliantly, and in six turns at the table scored 82 points. He made his high run in the fourteenth inning and went out with an unfinished run of 28. In the evening game Concannon lost the bank, and after he had broken the balls Allen stepped to the table to run 43 balls, the best of the night. Concannon was never able to overcome this lead, which was almost exactly the margin of Allen's victory.

OTHER BILLIARD RESULTS.

Sam Garfunkle was the winner over Edward Marshall in the New York City three-cushion championship at Kreuter's Academy last night. The score was 35 to 21. Garfunkle made his total in fifty-two innings and had a high run of 6. Marshall's best run was 3. Tonight Henry Frantzen will play William Kranzer.

Tadao Suganuma, who lost the junior 18.2 balkline championship to K. Susuki, defeated Philip Paxton in an exhibition game at Julian's Fourteenth Street Academy last night. He made 200 points in six innings while his opponent was getting 29. Suganuma had a high run of 84.

Joseph R. Johann, national Class B 18.2 balkline champion, won the second game in the New York State amateur Class B championship last night at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy. The score was 200 to 169. Johann went out in twenty-seven innings. Lewis made the high run of the game, a string of 57, but Johann was more consistent and added steadily to his total. His high run was 31. Tonight C. P. Mathews will meet Joseph Beardsley.

Erich Hagenlacher, German 18.2 balkline champion, ran 200 points in 5 innings in each of two games played yesterday at the Fourteenth Street Academy. In the afternoon he defeated George Creswell at 200 to 12, making a high run of 120, and in the evening he defeated the same player again at 200 to 28 and made a high run of 93.

DORT BEATS PRATT IN CLASS C SQUASH

LARIGAN ALSO ADVANCES

Triumphs Over Burroughs by Score of 15-8, 15-6—16 Contenders Survive Third Day of Play.

Sixteen contenders for the national Class C squash tennis championship were left in the tournament at the conclusion of the third day of play yesterday on the courts of the Harvard Club. Harvard is represented by five of the contenders, the Yale, Columbia University and Princeton Clubs and the New York A. C. and the Crescent A. C. each have two contenders left and the one other is from the City A. C. Play will continue today and the field be brought down to the round before the semi-final.

F. W. Dort of the Harvard Club and E. R. Larigan of the Crescent A. C., the two outstanding favorites, won their matches in two games in the third round. Dort was closely pressed by Richardson Pratt of the Heights Casino before winning at 18—13, 15—4. The Brooklyn player made so strong a fight for the first game that it was only after it had been set extra points that Dort was able to take it. Pratt had all sorts of pace and control and mixed up his shots with nice judgment. It was only after the score had reached 13—all that Dort took command of the situation. He ran five points before his opponent could get one, and then went on to take the second game by a big margin.

Larigan had an easier time of it. The Crescent man was opposed by a clubmate, H. R. Burroughs, who yielded at 15—8, 15—6. R. L. Carter, the other leading player from the Heights Casino, figured in one of the best contests of the day. He lost to Yale Stevens of the Elis in three games, at 10—15, 15—7, 18—17. Carter played beautiful squash in the first game. Stevens came to the fore in the second game, which found his opponent tired, and swept through it in quick fashion.

Carter saved himself for the final chapter, in which the best squash of the match was brought out. Both men rose to their greatest heights in this game, and rally after rally was marked by the bitterest sort of competition. The score was set at 15—all, and the two men then alternated in winning points until the score stood 17-17. After a desperate struggle Stevens sent through a winning shot and Carter was eliminated, by a single stroke.

Another close struggle was waged between two Yale men. Francis Day gained his place in the fourth round at the expense of his clubmate, L. H. Sonneborn. This match also went to three games, and the loser again was the winner of the opening chapter. The play was very close in the first game, Sonneborn taking it after Day had threatened to set the game extra points. Day played better squash later, and Sonneborn was unable to maintain the pace. The final score was 13—15, 15—8, 15—9.

Among the other winners who experienced difficulty in advancing were G. C. Lyons of the New York Athletic Club, W. Reichert of the same club and F. M. Warburg of the Harvard Club. Lyons defeated Edward W. Kleinert of the Crescents after a three-game match at 15—4, 2—15, 15—12. Reichert eliminated L. F. Page of the Princeton Club and Warburg was the victor over M. Scott of Yale. M. Baron of the City A. C. added another worthy performance to his list when he defeated G. A. Brownell of Harvard at 15—6, 15—8, and C. J. Mason Jr. of Harvard put out S. P. Hunneweil of Yale at 15—8, 15—10.

Third Round—R. H. Reutter, Columbia University Club, defeated R. A. Leyendecker, New York A. C., 15—6, 15—6; J. C. Lyons, New York A. C., defeated Edward W. Kleinert, Crescent A. Clark, Harvard Club, 15—2, 15—8; Arnold Wood Jr., Princeton Club, defeated A. L. Noel, Gramercy Park Squash Club, 15—5, 15—2; Wendell Davis, Harvard Club, defeated Erle Gugler, Gramercy Park Squash Club, 15—4, 15—9; W. Reichert, New York A. C., defeated L. F. BRUMLEY WINS AT SQUASH.

E. R. Brumley of the Harvard Club reached the round before the semi-finals of the first national veterans' squash tennis championship yesterday on the courts of the Columbia University Club. In the second round he defeated E. W. Baker of the Gramercy Park Squash Club by the decisive score of 15—2, 15—1. The Harvard man had too much speed and control for his opponent, catching him out of position constantly and repeatedly using a straight wall smash for winning shots.

Two other matches were played yesterday, both of them in the first round. J. P. Leo of the New York A. C. was the winner of one. He defeated John Meehan of the Columbia University Club at 15—6, 15—17. In the other match Willis H. Putnam of the home club eliminated S. P. Hayward, a representative of the Princeton Club, at 15—1, 15—3. The match between Leo and Meehan was the best of the three. Meehan was slow to find himself in the opening game and made little headway. In the second game the Columbia player struck his stride. The score reached 13-all and a game of 5 was set. The two men alternated in winning points until Leo finally put over the winning shot to take the game at 18—17.

Interest in Renault Battle.

This match features a card of heavyweight encounters arranged by Matchmaker Lew Raymond. The semi-final of twelve rounds will be between Carl Carter, Cuban, and Sailor Tom Maxted of Newark.

Johnny Leonard to Face Drew.

Johnny Leonard, Allentown (Pa.) junior lightweight, and Johnny Drew of Worcester will clash in the main ten-round bout at the Commonwealth Sporting Club Saturday night. The semi-final ten-round bout will be between Georgie Doherty and Bobby Risden. In the opening ten-round encounter Irving Shapiro will engage Clark Anderson of Cleveland.

INTERCLUB CRUISE WILL START JUNE 16

TO SEE HARVARD-YALE RACE

Fleet Will Reach New London for College Rowing Classic—Many Prizes to Be at Stake.

The annual interclub cruise of the Larchmont and Indian Harbor Yacht Clubs will be held much earlier than usual this year and will take the joint fleet from Western Long Island Sound to New London in time for the yachtsmen to see the Yale-Harvard crew race on Friday, June 19. Announcement of the joint cruise plans were made yesterday by Drake Sparkman, fleet captain of the Larchmont Yacht Club, who said that the flag officers of both clubs favored the new idea. The interclub cruise, which of recent years has been notable for its fine racing, is generally held early in August in order that the Larchmont-Indian fleet may cruise eastward to the port where the rendezvous of the New York Yacht Club fleet is to be made. This year, however, the idea of racing to New London for the Yale-Harvard combat was decided on.

According to the plan worked out by the Vice Commodore and the fleet captains of the clubs interested, the rendezvous of the interclub cruise this year will be made at Larchmont Harbor on Tuesday evening, June 16. The following morning the racing starts will be made outside the harbor for the first day's squadron run from Larchmont to Moris Cove, the anchorage of the New Haven Yacht Club. This run will be for prizes offered by the Larchmont Yacht Club. On Thursday, June 18, the joint squadron will take part in a racing run from New Haven to New London for prizes offered by the Indian Harbor Yacht Club.

On Thursday night the joint fleet, which is expected to be a large one this year, will be anchored in New London Harbor, off the Hotel Griswold, and on Friday the yachtsmen will go up the Thames in launches and power yachts to see the great rowing classic.

A long-distance race has been decided on to bring the yachts back to their home harbors. This will be started on Saturday morning off Sarah's Ledge bell-buoy, outside New London harbor, and the course will be from that point to a finish line at Great Captain Island, off Greenwich and the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. Both the Larchmont and Indian Harbor Yacht Clubs will offer prizes for this race, the distance of which is about eighty-five nautical miles.

All the regular racing classes of the western Long Island Sound fleet, including the 50-footers, 40s, Larchmont 38-footers, 30s and schooners, are eligible for the interclub cruise, which this year is expected to be a very popular racing event. There also will be a special class for fisherman type yachts and a special class for all other yachts which have no regular competitors. Yachts enrolled in the New York, Larchmont, Indian Harbor and other recognized yacht clubs are eligible for the joint cruise.

Those in charge of the cruise plans are Vice Commodore Philip Johnson and Fleet Captain Drake Sparkman of the Larchmont Yacht Club and Vice Commodore Clifford D. Mallory and Fleet Captain Richard A. Monks of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club.

UNDERHILL BEATEN IN SQUASH RACQUETS

Is Eliminated in Third Round of Met. Title Series by Gilmore, 15-14, 15-10, 13-15, 15-7.

J. B. Underhill Jr. of the Racquet and Tennis Club, one of the ablest players in the metropolitan ranks, was eliminated from the metropolitan amateur squash racquets championship yesterday on the courts of the University Club. He was put out in the feature match of the day in the third round by R. W. Gilmore, one of the high ranking representatives of the University Club, at 15—14, 15—10, 13—15, 15—7.

All the brackets, with the exception of one, are now filled in the round before the semi-finals, and today Eugene M. Hinkle of the Harvard Club, runner-up for the title last year, will face L. McK. Miller of the Rockaway Hunting Club, semi-finalist last year, to determine the eighth survivor in the play. Tevis Huhn of the Princeton Club and A. G. McIlwaine of the Racquet and Tennis Club, semi-finalist last year, also advanced yesterday. Huhn won from W. A. Green of the Rockaway Hunting Club at 15—4, 15—5, 15—8, and McIlwaine defeated L. H. Whitlock of the Harvard Club, 15—9, 15—15, 15—9, 15—6.

Gilmore's steadiness was the undoing of Underhill. The University Club player made few errors, got back everything and made capital of drives along the side wall. One of his biggest point winners was a drop shot off the front wall. Underhill recovered more and more of these as the match progressed, showing nimble foot work and quickness to anticipate, but he was not quite as steady as was Gilmore and failed to come through in the pinches when the points meant most.

Gilmore came close to winning the match in successive games. In the third chapter he held the lead at 12—10 and needed only 3 points before Underhill should get 5. The Racquet and Tennis Club star tightened up at this stage and played so irresistibly that he overtook his opponent and captured the game, winning 5 points while holding him to a single 1. Gilmore was at his best in the fourth game. He worked his opponent out of position with the best of tactics, drove along the side with crushing power and was all over the court to make his returns. Underhill was outplayed by a big margin.

McIlwaine was steadiness itself against Whitlock. He used a drop shot with good results, and with the exception of the second game was always in command of the play. Whitlock gave a fine exhibition in the second chapter, maintaining a fast pace and making few mistakes.

Third Round—A. G. McIlwaine, Racquet and Tennis Club, defeated L. H. Whitlock, Harvard Club, 15—9, 15—18, 15—9, 15—6; Tevis Huhn, Princeton Club, defeated W. A. Green, Rockaway Hunting Club, 15—4, 15—5, 15—8; R. W. Gilmore, University Club, defeated J. B. Underhill Jr., Racquet and Tennis Club, 15—14, 15—10, 13—15, 15—7.

WANTS ALL PUPILS TAUGHT RELIGION

WOULD ENFORCE IT BY LAW

Plan Is to Take Children Out of Schools One Hour a Week for Church Training.

America is the most backward nation of the civilized world in providing week-day religious instruction for public school children, the Rev. Dr. William C. Schaeffer, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church, Allentown, Pa., declared in an address yesterday afternoon in the Lutheran Church of Gustavus Adolphus, 151 East Twenty-second Street, before the Lutheran Ministers' Association of New York.

Dr. Schaeffer has between 700 and 900 children in his own parish who receive religious instruction one day or evening a week under a salaried director and forty-two volunteer teachers. His church is open every afternoon and evening of the week for these classes, which range from a religious kindergarten up through grades for high school children. Dr. Schaeffer was introduced by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler, President of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of New York and New England, who was recently installed as President of the Ministers' Association.

"On the Jewish holidays not a Jewish child attends public school in the State of Pennsylvania, and in my country for about a month each year, when Roman Catholic children are being prepared for confirmation, they stay out many school hours," said Dr. Schaeffer. "Why can't the State permit all the children to be excused one hour early a week to go to their respective churches and receive religious instruction?" asked the clergyman.

"We have invited all the Lutheran ministers in the synods of Pennsylvania to fight for this cause. We expect to get the National Lutheran Council to propagate this cause. We want religious instruction of their own kind for all the pupils in our public schools. We do not want the unrest and fanaticism which often accompanies such an undertaking. We want to work quietly. We believe in the public schools, but we do not believe the public schools should teach religion. That would be against our Constitution. But we don't want an education that is Godless. We don't want to rear a pagan race. We must have righteousness and intelligence. Over against the public school we must have the week-day church school.

"All over Europe there is religious instruction provided through the State for the school children. In Italy they have it, in Austria they have it, Soviet Russia is doing it, although it is 'anti.' And here in America we have 18,000,000 boys and girls who are not in touch with religious instruction in any way for six days of the week.

"I am striking for my country. The time has come for the church to quit retreating. What we are going to do in Pennsylvania is to ask for an amendment of the school law which will allow localities where a majority vote for it to permit an hour a week of school time for religious instruction in the respective churches of the pupils," said Dr. Schaeffer.

Dr. Trexler announced that so far forty-eight churches in this city and North Jersey were maintaining week-day religious schools.

UNIVERSALISTS GIVE CHURCH COUNCIL $7,000

The Universalist Church gave $7,000 to the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America yesterday, notwithstanding that the Church is not a member of the council and is not eligible for membership by the council's constitution. The gift was made through the Board of Trustees at the Universalist General Convention at the Commodore.

The action of the Universalists followed a dinner Monday evening at which the Church started a drive for a $1,000,000 fund to be used for non-denominational Christian service. Contributions of $37,000 were obtained at the dinner. Arthur Nash of Cincinnati, a clothing manufacturer, gave $100,000 to be paid in five yearly instalments.

The Rev. John Smith Lowe of Boston, Superintendent of the Universalist Church, made the presentation address to Dr. Worth M. Tippy, one of the secretaries of the Federal Council. Declaring that all through its history the Universalist Church has insisted that beneath the diversities of belief and organization there is a deep underlying unity in all Christian religions, he urged all sects and nationalities to join in making Christ's law of brotherhood the universal practice of life.

"We have learned of your efforts," he said to Dr. Tippy, "and those of the association with which you are connected to promote brotherhood among industrial groups in this country. We wish to assist you in this important work."

Dr. Tippy said that the presentation was an excellent illustration of the spirit of brotherhood and good-will spoken of by the Rev. Dr. Lowe and promised that good use would be made of the money.

URGES CHURCH NEWS STUDY

Dr. R. J. Wade Advises Methodists to Cooperate With the Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Newspapers are showing increased interest in church news, and the church should reciprocate by studying the viewpoint of editor, reporter and press associations, Dr. R. J. Wade, Executive Secretary, told the World Service Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church at its annual session here today.

Eminent ministers and laymen from various States and several foreign countries attended. Business before the commission included discussion of budgets for church work in home and foreign missions.

"American newspapers," said Dr. Wade, "are printing more religious editorials than hitherto and are paying more attention to news of church and missions. They welcome cooperation from the religious organizations.

"Sane, safe, adequate, consistent publicity plays an important part in any worthwhile enterprise. To frown upon it is unwise, to omit it is weakening, to exalt it unduly is folly, but to use it skillfully is to expand."

1,275 at Lutheran Dinner.

The most largely attended dinner ever held by the Lutheran Society, Inc., of New York took place last evening in the Manhattan Opera House. There were 1,275 at the tables. Membership in the society is limited to men, but last evening was the annual ladies' night dinner. The speaker was Peter Schmuck, Chief Justice of the City Court. The toastmaster was Lewis W. Woehling of East Orange, N. J.

MRS. KNAPP URGES STUDY OF POLITICS

Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, Secretary of State of New York, told the members of the Quill Club last night at the Hotel Astor that the least efficient man in political life was "likely to be under less scrutiny than some of our best qualified women."

Mrs. Knapp stressed the need and comparative rarity of real statesmanship. "We should pay more attention to rewarding real statesmanship," she said, "than in recognizing office holders who give out petty patronage." Though women have only recently obtained the vote, she pointed out, they have always wielded tremendous influence in politics. The problem now, she said, is to give them training in real statesmanship. "We need to get the message over to our young women and young men that they must study politics as a science," she concluded.

J. Malcolm Bird, secretary of the Scientific American Committee, in speaking of "Mediumistic Frauds I Have Met," said that it was amazing to what extent apparently hard-headed persons succumb to the wiles of fraudulent mediums. "Most people come into a seance in an emotional state of mind," he said, "and thus give fraudulent mediums easy leads from which to work. A fraudulent process with these alleged spirit voices is to mumble so that they apparently say something without actually doing so. It is extremely easy for a person who is in the least credulous to read into these incoherent mutterings some message that he is eager to hear. One of the standard tricks of the medium is to have the sitter write questions on a card or slate. When this happens, it's time for the sitter to go home."

After describing several cases of fraud practiced by mediums trying for the Scientific American award of $2,500, Mr. Bird said that he believed about 90 per cent. of the mediums frauds. "They don't depend so much on the casual visitor for their profits as on their regular customers. Once a medium gets into your confidence, he can do anything with you that he wants. Widows are their particular sweetmeat, particularly those who have been left with money."

In many cases of this kind, the speaker said, the medium pretends to give a spirit message from the husband as to investments and, with the cooperation of a bucketshop, cheats the woman of her property.

CENTURY THEATRE TO BE HOME OF OPERETTAS

The Shuberts announced yesterday that they would devote the Century Theatre hereafter exclusively to "operettas and high-class musical productions." It will be patterned, according to the announcement, after the Theater an der Wien in Vienna, the Opera Comique in Paris, and the Berliner Theatre in Berlin.

The new plan, which is the result of the favorable reception accorded "The Love Song" at the Century, calls for a resident company of players, a resident corps de ballet, and a resident staff of stage directors, scenic artists and musicians.

THIRD VICTOR RADIO GROUP

Flonzaley Quartet and Two Singers to Broadcast Jan. 29.

Stars for the third Victor radio presentation on Jan. 29 were announced yesterday as Miguel Fleta, tenor, of the Metropolitan Opera House; Lucy Isabelle Marsh, lyric soprano, and the Flonzaley Quartet. None of them has ever broadcast before.

The program will be broadcast from Station WEAF, New York, and relayed by wire to Stations WCAP, Washington; WJAR, Providence; WFI, Philadelphia; WDBH, Worcester; WGR, Buffalo; WCAE, Pittsburgh, and WEEI, Boston. Its numbers include four selections by Fleta, "La donna e mobile" from Verdi's "Rigoletto," an aria from Bizet's "Carmen," "Mi Tierra" and "Ay-Ay-Ay." Miss Marsh will sing "Ave Maria," "The Sw allows," "Within a Mile of Edinboro" and "Beautiful Lady." The Flonzaley Quartet will play a movement from the Quartet in D by Haydn, "Music of the Spheres," by Rubinstein; "Nocturne," by A. Borodin and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," arranged by Alfred Pochon.

SEES MINISTRY GAINING.

More men are entering the ministry now than twenty years ago, according to the Rev. Dr. Bernard Iddings Bell, President of St. Stephen's College, who spoke last night at the midwinter reunion of the alumni of the General Theological Seminary at the Hotel Astor.

"They have found that the laboratory does not offer a solution to man's ultimate destiny," said Dr. Bell, "so they are thinking of the ministry. The thinker, not the sentimentalist, is being attracted. Twenty years ago the Church was regarded as outworn, but now it is being called upon to do a basic piece of work. The nineteenth century was a century of intellectual pride, therefore Christianity was able to do little. Now we are in an age of intellectual cynicism, which offers Christianity its opportunity. About the same world conditions exist now as at the time of Christ. Christianity took hold at that time because it offered a new technique for arriving at the truth."

The Rev. H. E. W. Fosbroke, Dean of the seminary, announced a campaign for $1,000,000 to provide for expansion of service of the institution.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TANGIER, Jan. 20.—The British and French Governments protested some days ago to Madrid against the dropping of bombs from Spanish airplanes in the Tangier zone. The Spanish Government on the other hand has complained that trenches have been dug in the Tangier zone from which the natives fire upon Spanish soldiers on the other side of the frontier.

Accordingly a commission consisting of French and Spanish officers commanding the Tangier gendarmerie proceeded yesterday to the frontier about ten miles from here to examine this latter complaint, but found the trenches in question were situated inside the Spanish zone and not in the Tangier zone at all.

While still on the ground near the frontier, but inside the Tangier zone, the group of Tangier gendarmerie officers and natives with whom they were conversing were bombed by a Spanish airplane and only escaped by beating a hasty retreat.

Royal Family Hear Puccini Operas.

ROME, Jan. 20.—The King, Queen, Crown Prince and other members of the royal family, together with many officials and prominent personages, last evening attended performances of the late Giacomo Puccini's first and last operas at the Constanzi Theatre.

Her Spoiled Son.

BROKEN LAWS, with Mrs. Wallace Reid, Percy Marmont, Ramsey Wallace, Jacqueline Saunders, Arthur Rankin, Virginia Lee Corbin, Eat Moore and Jane Wray; adapted from a story by Adela Rogers St. John, directed by R. William Neil; overture, "Dance of the Hours"; "Little Pills of Wisdom," an "Aesop Fable"; "Broadway Beauties"; Ethel Sweet, soprano; "The Way of a Maid," a comedy. At the Cameo.

"Broken Laws," Mrs. Wallace Reid's second production, which is holding forth at the Cameo this week, is a thoroughly sincere effort with a strong lesson for overindulgent mothers. It is produced with earnestness and restraint; the scenario writers, the director and the players having all contributed their part in making it a successful photoplay. It preaches, and there are minor pictorial failings, but we were agreeably surprised to observe that it contained none of the hokum and bathos which characterized "Human Wreckage," Mrs. Reid's other film effort. There is not even an attempt to cater to shallow minds by giving it a happy ending.

In the same row with us in the theatre was an elderly woman, who was much affected as the story was unfolded. She constantly sighed as the different developments passed upon the screen, and she was stirred deeply by the climax.

The story is based on one written by Adela Rogers St. John. Mrs. Reid impersonates Joan Allen, the mother who pets and pampers her boy, flinging aside the common-sense ideas offered by her husband. Mrs. Reid gives a fine performance from the first chapter, in which she refuses to permit the father to thrash the obstreperous and impudent child, to the last, in which she pleads with the Judge and jury to go to prison instead of the son, who has killed an old woman with his automobile.

Although he has to play the part of an incorrigible boy of 8, Pat Moore as Bobby adds considerably to the story by his acting. He is natural both in antics and expression. In the first sequence he misbehaves himself on Christmas Eve and his father punishes him by locking him in a room. Bobby however, escapes and for a time enjoys himself in somebody else's home where his parents are guests. He is the sort of precocious child who is proud of the fact that he has discovered that there is no Santa Claus. Little Jane Wray is cast as Patsy Heath, who is the same age as Bobby. She insists on believing in Santa Claus, but delights in emulating her mother in putting rouge on her lips. Bobby empties the dregs of whisky from a flask and gives it to Patsy, which fact is discovered by her father, played by Percy Marmont.

Arthur Rankin appears as Bobby eight years later. His father has died and his mother spoils him more than ever. She presents him with an automobile and on the day he receives it he is arrested for speeding. Joan manages to use her influence to make it merely a matter of fine in spite of the recommendation of the policeman that the offender be sent to jail.

Drinking and speeding are the laws that are broken. Bobby's last escapade is when he crashes into a vegetable cart when racing in his car away from a motorcycle policeman. An old woman is killed and the boy is arrested and eventually convicted of manslaughter.

Mr. Marmont has a minor rôle in this production, which is largely devoted to the indulgent mother and the selfish, spiteful son. The story carries a moral and is quite entertaining.

Fun and Thrills.

After sitting for more than an hour watching Tom Mix potting off stage-coach robbers and redskins in unerring fashion, one felt like approaching Forty-second Street and Broadway with discretion and stealth, as Mr. Mix in "The Deadwood Coach" has a habit of turning up most unexpectedly at the psychological moment. One fears that once in a while one of his shots might go astray, as he is singularly generous with his bullets and powder.

This film, which is the chief attraction at the Broadway, is a clever Western story, filled with anachronisms, action and streaked with fun. The audience yesterday afternoon laughed heartily every time Mr. Mix's aim proved fatal, and everybody was intensely amused when the redoubtable rider coolly peppered his victims either from the top of the stage coach, the roof of a house or the saddle of his beautiful horse, Tony. The story of this picture has been approached in a happy vein. One does not mind the Orphan (Mr. Mix) indulging his fancy with a repeating rifle in the days of the stage coach, any more than one questions the accuracy of his shooting.

"Get back to your sheep before I waste a clean bullet on you," says the fearless Orphan, who at that time had a very bad name. He is really one of those good bad men who eventually save the life of the Sheriff and capture or kill the bandits who plotted to steal a load of gold from the stage coach. The Orphan delights in his adventures, and loves nothing better than appearing on the scene of the fray when he is supposed to be many miles away.

On one occasion the Orphan hides in a trunk, and after the coach has careened down the hill he surprises everybody, including the bandits. During a desperate chase when he was taken to a stream the Orphan eludes the robbers by hiding under water. There seems to be nothing beyond this lovable Orphan, who on occasions when times are dull destroys a dinner with his bullets without harming any of the men in the shack.

The Orphan in his two-quart hat is a wonderful sight when Indians are on the war path. One can readily imagine that one Orphan is worth fifty other men in such a community, granted that he never gets off in his shooting as the golfer does at his game. Sometimes it struck one that almost as many men galloped away as had been there at the time of the battle, and yet one could have sworn that about fifteen of them bit the dust.

Mr. Mix is a captivating actor, who on horseback looks like a Centaur, and is very virile without any posing. He is the sort of Western star to whom one wishes all the luck he can have with his gun and with the lady fair who arrives with the plain old New England aunt. Sometimes during this picture one did wonder where the Orphan lived, and how he managed to look so trim at all stages of the story.

New Theatre for Coney Island.

Plans for a theatre to be erected on Surf Avenue in Coney Island, opposite Steeplechase Park, were announced yesterday by Edward F. Tilyou. The new playhouse will be situated between West Sixteenth and Seventeenth Streets and the building will include a ballroom, offices and stores. The theatre, which will seat 2,500, will be known as the Tilyou, and will be under the direction of the B. S. Moss Circuit, which is affiliated with the Keith-Albee organization. The entertainment policy has not yet been determined

The Surf Avenue plot has a frontage of 120 feet and a depth of 250 feet. Construction work has already been started and the new house will be opened in the Fall. Eugene De Rosa is the architect.

Al Jolson Ill; Matinee Omitted.

The customary Tuesday matinee of "Big Boy" at the Winter Garden yesterday was omitted yesterday owing to the illness of Al Jolson. The star appeared as usual at night, however. Two days after the opening of "Big Boy" Mr. Jolson contracted a cold and was compelled to cancel three performances, and it was explained that yesterday's inclement weather had brought a recurrence of his illness.

The suddenness of the star's illness made it necessary to turn away several thousand people at matinee time.

UNIFORMITY ASKED IN CLEAN BOOK LAWS

The National Association of Book Publishers, comprising sixty-three concerns, held its fifth annual luncheon and meeting at the Yale Club yesterday. About 150 members and guests were present. The speakers included Frederick Roy Martin, general manager of The Associated Press; Will Rogers and Carl Sandburg. John Macrae, President of E. P. Dutton & Co., was toastmaster.

Preceding the luncheon the question of book censorship was discussed. A statement on the subject was issued by the association, declaring: "No commonwealth would wish or is likely now to institute a censorship of books which would contemplate examination and suppression before publication. But every book is printed with full recognition by its author and publisher that it is subject to such restraint as is found in the existing national or State laws as enforced by the regular courts and officials of prosecution.

"Publishers should indicate their belief in and willingness to be responsible for each book, by putting their names on each title-page. Publishing standards should be such that a publisher's name on a title-page would mean that he honestly believes in the artistic sincerity of the book, and his advertising should indicate that it was offered for sale on that basis.

"Judgment on books, whether by societies for prosecution, or by trade or authors' associations for defense, are to be deprecated. Prosecution by private initiative has often meant prosecution without discrimination. Defense by organizations might mean defense without discrimination.

"The laws of the country as to obscene books might well be made more nearly uniform. It remained for the Massachusetts New York State law, which is overinvolved and confused by court interpretation, might be improved by paralleling the national statute which governs the case of mailing. Court procedure can be improved, so that cases against books would be handled under court conditions conducive to a fair decision.

"Expert witnesses should by no means be considered incompetent to testify. Not all writing is intended for the immature, and no State ought to consider restricting book publication to such volumes as are suitable for the immature. No book can be judged by a brief isolated passage, and no statute should make it imperative for the Court to do so. The intent or purpose of the work should be regarded."

John Macrae was re-elected President of the Association. Vice Presidents elected were J. W. Lippincott, MacGregor Jenkins, D. Laurance Chambers and Alfred A. Knouf. George H. Doran and George P. Bratt Jr., were re-elected Treasurer and Secretary, respectively. New directors elected were William Harse, Edward N. Bristol, Harry P. Burt, D. Laurance Chambers, John W. Hiltman and Casper W. Hodgson.

LARRY SEMON TO MARRY.

Larry Semon, the motion picture comedian, will be married here tomorrow to Dorothy Smith, known on the screen as Dorothy Dwan. Miss Smith is the daughter of Lieut. Col. George Smith, who died in France during the war. She has played leading rôles in a number of the Semon films.

Miss Smith will arrive here from Hollywood tomorrow morning and the ceremony will be performed late in the afternoon at the Little Church Around the Corner. The actor is appearing this week at the Palace Theatre.

Max Barnett in Piano Recital.

Max Barnett gave a piano recital at Town Hall last evening. He began with a Bach toccata and fugue, included a group of MacDowell pieces, a great deal of Chopin and ended with Paganini-Liszt's "Campanella." In a heavy program he displayed a hard and driving force, a rough and ready technique, which did not always take into account the smaller detail and the lesser nuances. In the first part of the concert he was at his best in the MacDowell compositions.

Miss Cady Plays "Primitive Music."

Harriette Cady, the pianist, played at the Princess Theatre yesterday a dozen examples of "primitive music" from as many lands, to which her loyal audience found itself the more inclined after struggling with the elements outdoors. Miss Cady's own settings of a Chinese lullaby and Spring song were applauded. The quaint selections ranged from Ireland's "County of Roscommon" to an Egyptian temple dance, airs of Java and Japan and in Inca dance of Peru.

MUSIC NOTES.

Oskenonton, the Mohawk Indian baritone, heard in London last year, will sing his tribal melodies and many American composers' arrangements of the red men's songs in a recital tomorrow evening at the Town Hall.

The Hampton Quartet of Hampton Institute appears in a program of American negro songs and spirituals at Grace Church, Broadway and Tenth Street, tomorrow night, when Robert Moton of Tuskegee will speak.

Rafaelo Diaz, the opera tenor, assists Ruth Deyo in an ensemble recital at her home, 5 East Fifty-first Street, tomorrow afternoon.

Louis Edlin, Cornelius Van Vliet and Clarence Adler appear at Joseph Adler's third musicale at 12 East Eighty-sixth Street on Friday.

Miron Poliakin gives the second of five violin recitals in the Carnegie chamber music hall on Saturday afternoon.

There will be a benefit performance at the Earl Carroll Theatre on Sunday night in aid of the United Home for Aged Hebrews. Eddie Cantor will preside.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

Flonzaley Quartet.

After traversing familiar ground in quartets of Haydn and Brahms the Flonzaley Quartet, with the assistance of the composer, gave the first public performance of Ernest Schelling's ("Divertimento") for string quartet and piano, last night in Aeolian Hall. Mr. Schelling's composition is in five parts, the third of which is for string quartet alone. "Le jet d'eau" is a fountain which flows in France, and it has tributary streams known as the Debussy and the Ravel. "Vocation Catalane" is composed in memory of Enrique Granados, composer of "Goyescas," and victim of the Sussex disaster during the war.

The music is of the material or in the manner of Catalonian folk-songs. The trio of small pieces for string quartet which make the third division of the work are respectively "Raga," "Gezal" and "Berceuse pour un enfant malade." The fourth episode called "Iriandoise," may be considered "A portrait of an Irish Lady"—gay as Donnybrook Fair. The fifth part, "The Last Flight," is inspired by a personal memory of the war, and the laconic dispatch, "Aviator X, who left on a perilous mission over the enemy's line during the storm, has not returned to the hangar and is reported missing."

This "Divertimento," composed in the Autumn of 1924 for the Flonzaley Quartet, is not to be taken too seriously. It is none too substantially composed and is for the greater part a piece which displays the pianist's virtuosity. The most valuable moments, musically speaking, are the trio of pieces for string quartet and, in a different vein, the "Iriandaise." "Raga" is founded, apparently, upon an Indian folk-tune. The same method is followed in the Persian piece, "Gazel." These two pieces are accompanied by an imitation of a drum beat upon the wood of the violin and 'cello. The Berceuse is simple, melodic, well composed for the stringed instruments, and it has mood. Mr. Schelling, the composer, appears in different aspects to his listeners. His "Iriandaise" is full of fun, an enlivening piece of music, brilliantly effective in performance. "The Last Flight" is descriptive. The music pleased the audience and the "Raga" was repeated. Mr. Schelling's masterly performance of the piano part was a conspicuous feature of the occasion.

The quartet of Haydn in D minor is the second of the set bearing the opus number 76. The quartet of Brahms was the one in C minor, Opus 51, No. 1—a work for the greater part of engrossing individuality and imagination, and in its highest estate the very essence of Brahms. It has his power and his lyricism; it has the poetic melancholy peculiar to this composer and melancholy not without solace, and beautiful as purpling hills in the twilight. Perhaps the finale is too extended. It would be ungrateful to cavil at that, with a composition which is so rich and which, as a whole, means so much.

The best playing was that of Brahms's quartet, when the ensemble had frequently the fine texture and intimacy of expression that are among the distinguishing characteristics of this justly organization. But these standards were not invariably maintained. Routine was felt in the playing of Haydn; there was frequent roughness of tone; more than once there was poor intonation.

OPERA BENEFIT TODAY.

Stars to Aid "Emergency Fund"—Next Week's Operas.

The Metropolitan this afternoon holds one of its two annual "house benefits," when the stars sing for those less fortunate among present or former artists and employes. All the singers' contracts provide one performance without pay, formerly a perquisite of the impresario, but now devoted by Gatti-Casazza to the "emergency fund." Puccini's "Butterfly," "Tosca" and "Bohème" furnish scenes in today's bill. The artists include Jeritza, Easton, Alda, Bourskaya, Gigli, Chamlee, Errolle, Scotti, Ballester, Ditdur and Rothier.

"Die Götterdämmerung" was rehearsed at the Metropolitan last night while a part of the company was absent singing "Andrea Chenier" in Philadelphia. Wagner's work will be revived at next week's Saturday matinee, the thirty-fifth opera staged this season, with a cast including Larsen-Todsen, Mueller Branzell, Taucher, Schorr and Bohnen. "Die Walküre," new tonight, is repeated next Tuesday in Brooklyn.

The thirteenth week, starting the season's second half, presents also a Monday "Fedora" and Wednesday matinee "Thais," both with Jeritza; Wednesday evening, "Rigoletto," Galli-Curci; Thursday, "Cosi Fan Tutte," Easton and others; Friday, "Dinorah," Galli-Curci, and Saturday night, "Gioconda," a benefit for the Italian Hospital, with Easton as heroine. Next Sunday's concert enlists Sascha Jacobsen, violin; Mario, Telva, Röseler, Tekatyan and Tibbett.

CZECH VIOLINIST IN DEBUT.

Young Edward Zathureczky's Brilliant Tone Gives Delight.

Eduard Zathurecsky, who inherits the shining melodies of Czechoslovakia along with the bristling letters of his name, appeared at Carnegie Hall last night in a debut recital that narrowly escaped postponement by the storm earlier in the day. It was no night for strings; but Bohemian pluck prevailed. When half through his formal program, the young man won brilliant tone at last from his fiddle and delight from his scanty house, both in a Bach adagio for violin alone and in Corelli's variations, which he gave as encore to the Pugnani-Kreisler prelude. Then he swept the strings from tears to smiles in Schubert's "Ave Maria" and the familiar "Zephyr" of his master, Hubay.

There will be later opportunity for judging Zathurecsky's merits in music less hackneyed, it may be hoped, than the "Devil's Trill," "Symphonie Espagnole" and similar uphill going at the start last evening. Young and ardent of temper, he is just turned 21. He stands with supple grace upon the stage, motionless save for the tossing head, short-maned, and the shoulders that tell the strength of a fine, free bow arm and of those tireless, trilling fingers.

No doubt remained of the real interest aroused on the part of his first audience, which had responded as slowly as the fiddlestrings. André Benoist, at the piano, supported well his artist's winning search for the violin's rainbows of tone.

CECILE DE HORVATH PLAYS.

Pianist Pleases in an Extensive and Ambitious Program.

A pianist of considerable attainment, Miss Cecile de Horvath, gave an interesting recital at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. Her program was extensive and ambitious. The first group gave the test of her powers and found her at her best. She differentiated her composers intelligently. The Liast Ballade, with which she started, was played in good form, an effervescent, brilliant technique joined to a sense of its poetical moments; a Bourrée by Bach was given neatly and with cheerful expression; a Gluck melody was found charming, while a sonata by Glasounoff had the rich emotional style of the Russian composer.

Her second group did not come up to the first in the manner of its performance; a "Ballade" by Debussy was its most taking number. Another number, not so taking, was the "Irish Washerwoman," by Leo Sowerby, a modern phantasia on a pretty and inoffensive tune.

AUTHORS WILL ASK LONGER COPYRIGHT

MANY CHANGES SOUGHT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Novelists, dramatists, artists, composers, screen writers and cartoonists will appear as members of the Authors' League of America before the House Patents Committee Thursday morning to urge passage of a bill changing the copyright laws so as to give further protection to their work.

Among those who will sponsor the bill are Will Irwin, Ellis Parker Butler, Jerome Kern, Augustus Thomas and Gene Buck.

The bill, which was drawn up by Thorvald Solberg, the Register of Copyrights in the Library of Congress and a foremost expert on this subject, was introduced by Representative Perkins of New Jersey, and has the backing not only of the Authors' League of America, but of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and kindred organizations.

Various bills have been introduced affecting the copyright laws, but whereas these generally sought to curtail the rights of authors, including the Dill bill, which would have thrown all musical compositions open to radio reproduction without cost, the new bill is actually an offensive by the authors themselves, who have decided that the time has come to ask for what they consider is due them.

Extends Life of Copyright.

Radical changes are proposed in the measure. For instance, the term of copyright protection is extended to the life of the author and fifty years after his death. In addition, the bill abrogates an existing law whereby an author can receive only two cents per record from a phonograph or piano-roll concern for the use of his composition. This law has been in effect since 1909, and the result of its application is that if three men write a song together they must split this mandatory two-cent royalty between them. The authors take the position that they should be able to make their contracts on the basis of what they think their output is worth.

Writing to Eric Schuler, Secretary of the Authors League of America, Mr. Solberg describes the main features of the Author's bill as follows:

"Protects all the writings of authors both published and unpublished.

"Vests copyright in the author of a work at the time when it is made, without formalities.

"Extends the term of copyright protection to the life of the author and fifty years thereafter.

"Provides for optional registration in the copyright office and notice of copyright on copies of the work.

"Adds to the subject-matter of copyright, phonograph records and piano-player rolls, choreographic works and works of architecture.

"Makes separable rights under the copyright law separately assignable (i. e., the right of publication, the right of public performance, &c., may be separately sold by the author and not merely licensed as heretofore).

"Abrogates the compulsory American manufacture of books in English.

Other Bills Are Pending.

There are now pending various bills dealing with copyright changes. Some of these which would enable the United States to enter the International Copyright Union are supplanted by the Perkins measure, Mr. Solberg says. The Dill and other bills proposing radio transmission without cost are inconsistent with the Authors' bill, according to his statement.

There also are bills aiming to protect designs by copyright instead of patent, but these are independent of the authors' bill and at the same time are not inconsistent with it. Representative Dallinger of Massachusetts has a bill suggesting a complete revision of the Copyright law. Mr. Solberg said that it covers the same ground as the authors' bill, but differs from it in a great many important details.

Gene Buck, the author of the Follies music for many years, President of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, and a member of the Council of the Authors' League of America, is in Washington to arrange for the hearing Thursday.

Among others who will be here to attend the hearings are J. Hartley Manners, Roi Cooper Megrue, Marc Connolly, Charles R. Harris, Harry Von Tilzer, George Ban Baker, Berton Braley, Sam Fellman, Harvey O'Higgins, Irs Schabelitz, Vincent Youmans, Silvio Hein, Con Conrad, Percy Wenrich and George Gershwin.

The authors will dine at the National Press Club tomorrow night and afterward will take part in a program at a smoker at the club. Gene Buck will preside.

$1,650 FOR AN OLD HOMER.

Book Printed in Florence in 1488 Sold at American Gallery.

A copy of the "Editio Princeps" of the works of Homer, printed in Florence in 1488, brought $1,650 last night at the sale in the American Art Galleries of fine books and manuscripts from the library of Miss Florence Sturdivant of Boston. Gabriel Wells was the purchaser. This was the highest price of the sale, which will end tonight, and which yielded $47,918 yesterday.

An illuminated "Horae," of the French school of the late fifteenth century, was bought by A. E. Swanson for $1,400. An illuminated Persian manuscript of five poems of Nizami was bought by Mrs. G. L. Koopman for $1,350. J. A. Gallagher gave $1,000 for a "National Edition" of the works of Charles Dickens. The same buyer gave $800 for an autograph edition of the works of Mark Twain, with a leaf of an original manuscript inserted.

Nathan Hale's autograph receipt book, used by him during the Revolutionary War, said to be the most important Hale manuscript ever sold at auction, brought $4,250 last night at the sale in the Anderson Galleries of Americana, from the collection of the late George B. Headley of Hartford, Conn., and the library of John D. Lindsay of New York. The Rosenbach Company purchased the manuscript.

The little book, of the autograph album type, is rich with interest, not only connecting Hale with his virile patriotism and his labors for the American cause, but also with his fiancée, Alicia Adams Ripley, to whom the book evidently descended after the execution of the patriot. The book includes ten pages of a diary in which Alicia tells of her marriage with Mr. Lawrence.

The original manuscript contract for the purchase by the Revolutionary Army of the great chain across the Hudson River to prevent the British ships from ascending during the Revolution was bought by Gabriel Wells for $510. The Rosenbach Company paid $525 for an autograph poem by Nathan Hale, written to Alicia Ripley, said to be the only one extant.

NOT ONE SAILING SHIP LAUNCHED IN 1924

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Lloyd's annual summary of mercantile shipbuilding of the world for 1924, issued today, shows the United States third in the list of shipbuilding countries. Aside from this, the figures merely confirm the conclusions based on quarterly returns already cabled to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The total output was 494 vessels of 1,439,885 tonnage, consisting of 425 steamers, 50 motor ships and 21 barges. Not a single sailing vessel was launched, a striking indication that the days of ocean vessels of this type are no more.

The British output represented more than 64 per cent. of the total, other figures being: Germany 190,852 tons, the United States 139,463, Italy 88,526, France 79,685, Japan 72,757, Denmark 63,937 and Holland 63,627 tons.

Lloyd's points out that the amount of shipping laid up idle has an important bearing on the question of finding profitable employment for the enormous tonnage now in existence. The latest figures published for all countries relate to July, 1924, when well over 6,000,000 tons gross were laid up, more than two-thirds of this being American tonnage. The United Kingdom figures, which then reached 700,000 tons, have since been reduced to about 570,000 tons.

CHANCELLOR LUTHER TO CARRY ON.

No one really expected that Dr. LUTHER, the new German Chancellor, would depart far from the foreign policy of his predecessor, Chancellor MARX. Yet it is a relief to learn that he is heartily in favor of complete and loyal execution of the London agreements respecting the Dawes plan. As he himself pointed out, no one who had played so prominent a part in framing them as he had could wish to embark upon a policy of repudiation. "I intend to go forward on the same road whereon I have started," he told the foreign correspondents, "safe-"guarding, of course, the interests of "my country in so doing. Germany "wants something politically positive. "The London compact is that." He deprecated the continued occupation of the Cologne area, although he doubtless is fully aware of the circumstances under which the occupation is being prolonged. But he made it clear that so long as he was at the helm Germany would continue on her present course, cooperating with the Allies, and that he would do all in his power to restore Germany to political as well as economic sanity. He will tolerate no trifling with the German Constitution, no effort on the part of the reactionaries to undermine the republic. His will be a policy of common sense, striving against the forces of disruption within and without.

This does not mean, of course, that there will not occasionally be sharp disputes between himself and the allied Ministers. But Germany has at last definitely committed herself to a policy of good faith and fulfillment and has put behind her the courses that led to such disasters during the last two years. This is important for the peace of the world. The often repeated assertion of the professional economists that the fate of Europe depended on saving poor Germany contained much truth. Germany, bent on playing her part fairly, is a great factor for good in world reconstruction.

Reports from financial sources in Berlin bear out this contention. Ever since Germany has been seriously at work rebuilding her own finances and living up to her agreements with the Allies her financial and economic situation has steadily improved. The cost of living has declined. Unemployment has steadily decreased. Trade has increased. Germany has begun to receive the capital which she needs in order to start her productive machinery again. The recovery has been much more rapid than her own people had expected. The revival of credit—political as well as financial—has been Germany's greatest need and is now becoming an accomplished fact. So long as she does nothing to impair her new credit she will find that her relations with the rest of the world will become increasingly easy and profitable.

LAW AND POLITICS.

It is well to remember that Attorney General OTTINGER'S opinion about the Hulbert case is only an opinion. It was asked by the Republicans in the Senate. It doesn't bind Governor SMITH, who can get plausible legal opinion to the contrary. The Attorney General holds that the Governor cannot appoint or designate a person to fill the office of President of the Board of Aldermen, vacant since April. The Board of Aldermen, acting as the Municipal Assembly, has no power, unless it is granted by the Legislature, to call a special election to fill the vacancy. "The Governor "must call a special election of the "voters to fill the vacancy." But the laws of 1907 leave to the Governor's discretion the proclamation of a special election to fill vacancies in elective offices.

Doubtless Governor SMITH will exercise his discretion. While the emergency act which the Governor asked of the Legislature on Jan. 12 has been put to sleep by the Republicans, the people of this town will have time to consider whether they want to be mulcted in the sum of $400,000 or upward for a totally superfluous special election. As Mr. OTTINGER reminds us, "in the mean-"time, and until the office is filled "by a special election, the Vice Chair-"man possesses the powers and may "perform the duties of the office of "the President of the Board of Al-"dermen." Isn't Mr. WILLIAM T. COLLINS capable of performing those duties? Mr. MURRAY HULBERT is in no need of "a vindication." Through circumstances honorable to his public spirit, he became technically disqualified. Controller CRAIG, the Lorelei whose singing has brought about all this rumpus, is a friend of economy. He can't want to charge the city so high for his diversion. Mr. COLLINS can continue to be Acting President of the Board of Aldermen.

The Republicans at Albany seem to think that they can embarrass the Democrats and "get a line on" the next municipal campaign by means of a special election. That is a thoughtful and noble way of recommending the Republican Party to the voters of New York. What, if any, ambitions or jealousies may lie under the rose or the cabbage of City Hall politics most of us don't know and don't care. In itself the matter is small potatoes and few in the hill and therefore worthy of the majestic Republican mind at Albany. Mr. CRAIG is an able and interesting, if often cantankerous, personage and official; but we don't happen to know anybody who wants to pay any part of the expenses of the performance which he put upon the stage and which the Albany Republicans desire to continue. It is a good enough show, but the tickets are altogether too high.

THE PRESIDENT AND FOREIGN RELATIONS.

The Constitution of the United States takes pains to define and to limit the power of the President, but two of the functions assigned to him cannot easily be circumscribed. He is made Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy. This involves the war powers of the President, which, as ex-President HAYES once said, have never been precisely described and which are capable of almost unlimited expansion and exercise. The other power of the Presidency which cannot be carefully hedged about and wholly confined within fixed bounds relates to the conduct of foreign relations. Here the initiative rests almost entirely with the President. As regards treaties he has the first word and also the last. He can commit the country to a course from which it is almost impossible to recede. At different periods and in various manners, Americans have learned how nearly unbounded is the power of the President in foreign affairs.

The ways in which this power can be exercised are as varied as human nature, and differ with the differing temperaments of incumbents of the Presidential office. With the method which President COOLIDGE prefers he has already made the people well acquainted. He moves quietly. Not for him the big patriotic gestures. He sees the end desired and pursues it without bluster yet with all needed firmness. It takes more courage to oppose jingo sentiments and to urge an unpopular policy upon Congress than it does to stand upon the ramparts and challenge invisible enemies. Mr. COOLIDGE has repeatedly displayed this sort of unpretentious boldness. He has just let it be known, for example, that he strongly desires ratification of the Isle of Pines treaty. He did it just at the time when voices were being raised in the Senate to attack the treaty as a wrong done to American citizens and a peril to the military interests and defense of the United States. Without noise or rhetoric the President throws the weight of his Administration behind this treaty.

Even more noteworthy has been the President's calm withstanding and defeat of those men in Congress who sought to arouse and inflame suspicion of Japan and to drag this country into a needless competition in naval armaments. It would have been easy, and it might have been temporarily popular, for the President to go along with this movement. But he saw it to be inconsistent with the larger policies and the greater national good which he has at heart, and did not hesitate to say that it was. Mr. COOLIDGE is committed to peace and to economy. His Secretary of the Navy told Congress that enlarged naval expenditures were against the President's resolute determination to cut down governmental outlay. In the question of elevating the guns on our battleships, there was the matter of rightful interpretation of the naval treaty to be considered, as well as economy, but on both points the Administration had its way when that great naval expert, Senator MCKELLAR of Tennessee, endeavored to reverse its announced policy.

It is evident that President COOLIDGE is quietly exerting an enormous influence with both houses of Congress in matters affecting foreign policy. He is doing it with a stanch adherence to his own convictions and with a disregard of possible political consequences that command the admiration of sober-minded Americans. They are, incidentally, getting from his successive acts in this department of government a fresh conception of the almost inexhaustible resources which the President has in guiding our relations with other countries.

PISTOLS AND CRIME.

"In this era of violence it is im-"perative that weapons be kept away "from criminals," says Governor SILZER of New Jersey in his annual message. Any thief, tough or loafer can have a revolver sent to him through the mails or by express, and no questions asked, if he has the price. The New Jersey Governor recommends that Congress be memorialized to enact a law prohibiting the use of the mails or the express companies for such a purpose. The Sullivan law keeps honest men disarmed, while criminals with concealed weapons prowl about the city, known by sight to the police, but never searched unless acting suspiciously.

Governor SILZER has something else to say that bears upon the prevention of crimes that come under the head of "banditry." He would amend the statute so as to do away with sentences for maximum and minimum terms. In place of the minimum term the Governor proposes release by the Court of Pardons upon recommendation made by the Board of Managers of the penal institution and the Judge who sentenced the prisoner. "Experience has taught us," he says, "that the maximum and "minimum sentence law is unsatis-"factory from all points of view and "is no improvement upon the earlier "system of fixed sentences." Can it be said that the punishment fits the crime when a footpad, hold-up ruffian or burglar, who has shot his victim, and perhaps others, can get out of prison after serving a minimum term and even less on the ground of "good behavior"? If crimes of violence are to be checked, punishments must be severe, certain and uniform.

In a letter to THE TIMES, a member of the Kings County Grand Jurors' Association urged that citizens be allowed to arm themselves and form vigilance committees to resist and deal with "bandits." The Sullivan act makes a lawbreaker of a householder or a citizen in peril of his life in unpatrolled streets at night if he arms without going through the complicated and dilatory process of obtaining a permit. The Sullivan act would stand considerable amendment, but a city of people carrying arms to protect themselves from "hold-up men" would be an armed camp, each man executing martial law for himself. The vigilance committee would amount to a proclamation that the system of Judges, prosecutors, juries and police for the protection of life and property and the administration of justice had broken down. When District Attorney WHITMAN convicted four gunmen of murder and they were electrocuted, one heard nothing of gunmen for a long time. It is such an example that should now inspire Judges, prosecutors, jurors and police. But they must have the aid of an aroused public opinion and the sanction of new legislation to deal with crimes of violence.

THE OLD ADAM.

Foreign observers who comment upon the dizzy pace of life in industrialized and machine-driven America have a piece of new evidence in hand. They can cite the case of the individual who last Thursday night kept an important business engagement in New York City, clambered into a Pullman for Chicago, carried through a difficult negotiation in the space of three hours on Friday night in that town, caught another Pullman for New York and put through a third difficult bit of business in that city on Saturday night. Out of an elapsed fifty hours this hustling business man spent forty-four hours on the train. What future for natural humanity, the foreigner will ask, is there for a country where man has been so mercilessly geared to the high-speed machine?

It happens, however, that the hustler in question is a man named NURMI and that his profession is devouring space with flying feet. His case shows how curiously the primitive manages to survive among the growing complexities of civilization. Taxicabs and Twentieth Century Fliers were utilized for the promotion of one of the most primitive of human exercises—running—just as other triumphs of modern invention are employed by Mr. DEMPSEY for the promotion of that other primitive exercise—fighting. If NURMI had missed his train he might conceivably have used an airplane. His engagements are made by telegraph, his achievements are recorded over the radio, his profits are probably transmitted to Finland by means of the complicated machinery of foreign exchange. NURMI'S manager presumably employs a secretary-stenographer who enters memoranda as follows: Jan. 31, Boston, 9:45 P. M., 3,000 meters in 8:26 4-5 guaranteed.

Despite the advancing triumphs of the machine, or perhaps because of them, man in America is not losing the aptitudes of the Stone Age, as he plainly is not losing some of its passions and appetites. Our young men run faster, leap higher and throw the weight further than young men did 500 years ago, and possibly 25,000 years ago. And they do it in large measure because of scientific training and diet. Science does not always conquer inherited instincts, but frequently enters into their service. Moslem pilgrims go by train to kiss the black stone at Mecca. Hindu agitators go about in automobiles preaching the destruction of machinery and a return to the spinning wheel. In the Congo forests stray gramophones may be playing in the rituals of Mumbo-Jumbo. Any day Mr. BRYAN may be using the radio to argue that the sun moves around the earth. It is not so very long ago that the nations were using every device of science for the primitive purpose of killing each other off.

OUR RAILWAY "ADVENTURE."

Director General DAVIS announces the closing of "the great adventure "of the Government in the field of "operation of the railroads." The final net cost to the Treasury is officially placed at $1,674,500,000. This is not to mention consequences eluding statement in dollars. The epitaph of one consequence is written in the resolve of the Federated Shopcrafts to call off the strike of 1922. Thus ends the attempt to nationalize the industrial troubles of the railways. It was our first national railway strike ordered to enforce national rules for working conditions. Government operation added 300,000 workers to the payrolls, made their wages a matter of politics and lowered their morale. By private operation more tons are moved with a reduced number of employes. The nationalization of both the railway companies and their labor relations is ended.

The wind-up was reached by give-and-take negotiations and agreement. The companies claimed damages, which they reduced. They asserted under-maintenance, but allowed expenditures in excess of necessity. There remain 6,000 or 7,000 claims for damages by private parties. The plaintiffs, having to sue the Government, will earn all they are likely to get. Government operation was a costly adventure, but it has been worth the cost if it convinced the people that it is expensive both in loss of service and in weight of taxes. State elections reinforce the inference from the national election. Minnesota rejected State grain elevators. California rejected State waterpower adventures. Washington refused to let cities sell electric power. Missouri and Oregon rebuked State insurance monopoly proposals. New York has defeated similar proposals repeatedly. Apparently, Americans believe today that Governments should undertake only such functions as must be discharged regardless of cost.

VAMPS AND SHEIKS.

From the rib of the Vamp the Sheik has been created, reversing the process in Genesis. Is it a triumph of feminism or only one more evidence of the evil influence of the movies? Good folk in California, who should know, if anybody, view the situation with alarm. Women's clubs and civic organizations are at one with prominent pastors in declaring that there is need of "more solidarity in the home and society," words of grave import, alike to Vamp and Sheik. Yet it may be that precisely this solidarity is the reason why girls and boys leave home to vamp it and sheik it. The field for speculation cannot be covered until youth gives full account of its impulses—which it is totally unable to do, especially since it has taken to thinking in complexes.

Youth has always been restless, venturesome, rebellious. And age has always viewed with alarm. Before the era of Vamp and Sheik was the period of the matinee girl. Does any one now remember that young heroine of H. C. BUNNER'S story who burned punk-sticks before the shrine of her idol, languished for him in green sickness, and finally took service as maid in his family? Observing the way he spoke to his wife when his voice was threatened by a cold, she reversed the foot-tub of mustard water on his head and did not stop to give notice. Before that, young folk were forever imagining themselves Romeo and Juliet, as ROSTAND'S little comedy has recorded, and with results equally innocent. Has anything changed beyond the name for this extravagance?

Yet something has changed. An art the medium of which is rhythmic speech has given way to prose and that to the "silent" drama. Popular amusement has forsaken not only poetry but all literature. Forsaking literature, it has forsaken life itself; for all the finer shadings of character and the deeper colorings of feeling can be uttered only in the spoken word. The passions that can be most potently conveyed to the visual sense are primitive, barbaric—brutal mastery in man and the lure of sex in woman. It is not for nothing that the modern idols are Sheik and Vamp. And this drama has extended its public from the literate few to the unlettered multitude. The wonder is that any parent, standing for the solidarity of the home and society, escapes the parricidal blow.

The concrete outlook is more cheerful. Spoken drama has never been so intelligent and so widely appreciated. Even poetic drama—ROSTAND and SHAKESPEARE—magnificently has its inning. The very decade that has seen the triumphal progress of the play of mute passions has witnessed a development equally amazing in the highest forms of musical culture. Picture galleries are thronged as never before. The worst that can be said by the pessimist is that the merely personal and emotional attitude in the world of art has slipped downward into the D and E class of intelligence, becoming a little more obviously what it always was, the moron's delight.

AN ANCIENT POO-BAH.

Three years ago not one person in a hundred thousand in America had ever heard of TUT-ANKH-AMEN. He was not even with "yesterday's ten thousand years." Now even the school children know of him. He has crept into the front page of the newspapers and has become a favorite character in college masques, a subject of discussion in women's clubs. His deep and secure entombment, though it buried him for three thousand years, brought him into a post-posthumous fame. The whole civilized world is awaiting Mr. CARTER'S further information concerning this engaging young King.

The temple of Ur of the Chaldees has lifted its face once more to its long-hidden deity, the moon, and many an every-day transaction of forgotten ages has come to the light of the sun, written in ledgers of clay baked fifty centuries and more ago. The Carthage that CATO wanted deleted has been dug up and again stands as a "sentinel in the desert." Hardly a week passes that some of the "wind-ing ways of hoary antiquity" are not brought to light and found to be not rough or barren but "strewn with flowers" of affection and of hope. Yesterday morning two Egyptian figures stepped out of a past more remote than that of TUT-ANKH-AMEN and took their places in the news of the day along with Bishops, builders of cathedrals, makers of treaties, Mayors and Aldermen of the present. The one "Qaar," by name, held five offices under the very shadow of the royal pyramids. The august list of these offices is as follows:

Head gardener of the pyramid of King PEPI II., Mayor of Pyramid City of Cheops, Mayor of Pyramid City of Mycerinus, Chief Purifying Priest of the Pyramid of Chephren and personal secretary to the King.

And five statues stand in his spacious tomb with no law to prevent and no controller to protest against the assumption of such a multiplicity of offices. Even our own Mayor with his signs of personal possession upon streets and parks and buildings is no such Pooh-bah as was this ancient Mayor who has reposed in obscurity for forty centuries by the side of the best-known monument on the face of the earth—and might have remained there in lasting oblivion if some enterprising American archaeologists had not happened that way.

Beside his tomb is that of his son, IDUW, who first appears as a child beside his father's statues as little IULUS with AENEAS. What an Aeneid theirs would be if they could but tell of their journey in their wooden funeral boats used by the dead in journeying across the firmament from East to West, as the sun, their deity, was supposed to move! They have at last found their way across the seas that are the "bath of all the western stars." But as they enter our coasts and the streets of our city at this season, they must feel the need of the prayer of bon voyage written in sight of their tombs: "May you be conducted upon beautiful roads."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Hope Comes From This Storm.

A determined seeker for the bright side of things could see yesterday's miserable weather as not wholly an affliction. Fair weather always follows storm, so there is more than a chance that this storm was just near enough to next Saturday and just far enough away from it to bring on a clear sky for the eclipse.

For once the professional star-gazers are confessing a desire for amateur aid. They want all the information anybody can give them as to the position of the line where the eclipse turns from partial to total, that being something which even the most expert have not been able to figure out with exactness. And there are other phenomena—shadow effects and certain "beads"—on which the lay observers are permitted and even requested to report.

No doubt they will do it. There is a good deal of scientific knowledge scattered through the general public these days as well as a vast amount of scientific ignorance. The army of amateur photographers will utilize fair weather if it comes, and there will be work for the radio enthusiasts as well in noting what differences in reception the moon's meddling may produce.

Intelligence Would Have Saved Him.

Whether GERALD CHAPMAN is "intelligent" is a question on which there are opposite opinions. Some point to the many actions in the man's career which reveal the exercise of both skill and courage in a more than ordinary degree, and they recall his carefully laid plots, carried out to success.

All this is true, of course, and if the contention were that CHAPMAN is a robber of a superior sort, very different from the petty pilferers that pass in endless procession through the police courts, it could not be contradicted. He differs from many criminals, too, in his ability, when he chooses, to be good-mannered and so notably courteous to women that one who was his nurse while he was seriously ill remembers him as in every way a perfect patient. His inclination, also, is to dress with taste as well as expensively, another divergence from the criminal type.

That this is intelligence depends upon the definition of that word, and on any definition the fact remains that in the making of his ultimate decision as to the conduct of his life CHAPMAN has demonstrated an amount and a kind of stupidity which is absent from many who lack his good qualities. Surely a man has little intelligence who deliberately undertakes to wage war on society. That is a conflict in which defeat is inevitable.

Since CHAPMAN fell into evil ways he has known no moment when he was not either in prison or in constant danger of going there the moment he was recognized by any of the many determined hunters who, near or far, were trailing him. That he committed murder up in Connecticut seems to be just a bit doubtful, and still more doubtful is it that he could be convicted if guilty, but murder long has been among the possibilities of his every-day life.

The assumption that intelligence can be used unintelligently is more than dubious, but that is the way that CHAPMAN has used his intelligence if intelligence must be ascribed to him.

He Knows Spring Is Coming.

This is not a time when worrying about wild flowers is particularly in order, as for some months past and for more than one to come they are safe from the ruthless automobilists and all the others who demonstrate their love of nature and beauty by destroying them. Nevertheless, it is pleasing to note that one member of the New York Assembly, T. CHANNING MOORE of Westchester County, does have the wild flowers on his mind in Winter as well as in Summer, and that as a result of it he has introduced a bill for their protection.

His proposal is that land owners shall be empowered to "post" their property against flower-pickers, just as they do against hunters and anglers.

They could do that now, however, in the shape of general warnings against trespassers, and it is to be feared that not many possessors of fields and woods care enough about wild flowers to specify them in their menaces of prosecution.

It hardly is to be expected that the wild flowers can be saved by legislation. Such laws would be even more difficult of enforcement than are those relating to prohibition, and the violators of them could not be convicted before many juries. The wild flowers can be saved from the extermination that threatens so many and the best of them by educating the public—by making people realize what it is they do when they disturb nature's balance—and by teaching them to see that they rob themselves as well as other folk when they doom to sterile death the blossoms on which the perpetuation of plants depends. Already not a few of the wild species are gone from parts of the country where they once flourished, and many more lead a precarious existence.

One thing in the way of legislation might help—a statute declaring illegal all commercial traffic in flowers not cultivated for sale. Most blossoming plants and trees, not close to large cities, can stand such picking as is done by individuals for themselves, but when they are gathered by the cart or car load for sale extermination is just around the corner.

A Land Not Wholly Desolate.

Not a few people must have been more than surprised when they read in THE TIMES yesterday a dispatch in which Dr. DONALD B. MACMILLAN referred to "standing remnants of 180 farms and twenty-four stone churches" in Greenland which he purposes to study in the course of his next expedition to the North.

The Greenland of explorers seeking the Pole—the Greenland of the Eskimos—the Greenland that supports life only at its edges and in the interior is covered by a layer of eternal ice several hundred feet thick—that is the only Greenland known to most inhabitants of happier climates. In that Greenland talk about farms and stone churches is only amusing. But there is another Greenland that is decidedly different—the Greenland that exists at and near the southern apex of the great island—the Greenland of the Vikings and of the modern Danes.

That other Greenland is not in the banana belt, by any means, and its Summers are short and its Winters severe, but it is not altogether sterile, and farming of a sort has been and still is done there. Several of the common vegetables grow and mature, and the region once did seem attractive to men who came from parts of Norway that were little if any less hospitable. Some centuries before the beginning of what we call American history ERIC the Red and LIEF his son both founded colonies of people who expected to better their condition in Greenland, and there is more than legend in the stories about those early adventurers.

These colonies were failures, economically, but for most of the time from those days to these Greenland has had a white population big enough to count, and at present not a little business is done there in products of mines and the sea. The little agriculture carried on hardly can be called farming, but the old-timers did attempt it, and it is their vestiges that Dr. MACMILLAN is going to investigate in search of really early American history.

WHAT THE OLD CLOCK TICKED.

"I fear—I fear my working days are o'er;
This morning, when the whistle blew at eight,
I showed, alas, ten minutes to the hour!
My mistress stared at me with pallid cheek—
'Ten minutes slow! I shall be late again!
I set it only yesterday—and see!
I'll have to buy a new one, I suppose;
I've had this one about—about five years;
Oh, well! It's served its time, and it can go.'

"She hastened madly out, and all was still Save for the measured beating of my heart.

"I've served my time—ah, yes, she spoke the truth;
Five years, through Summer's heat and Winter's cold,
I've been the monitor that ruled her life.
I've told her when to leave her cosy bed,
And dress and breakfast for another day;
She's boiled her eggs by me, and baked her bread;
When she was ill I told her when to take
The dose the doctor left; and all night long
I tried to make the endless hours pass
More quickly, for her sake, who longed for dawn;
I was not slow then—not once I skipped a beat,
Her fevered pulse and mine in synchrony.

"But now—I've served my time, and I must go;
Some other clock will tell her future hours;
May they be happy ones!
My hands are tired;
I feel, indeed, that I am quite run down!"

And when its mistress came back home at night,
The room was still—the good old clock had stopped.

FLORENCE VAN CLEVE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The airing of the views of certain Senators concerning the financial arrangements recently concluded at Paris is a fine example of the amateur statesmanship that characterizes sundry of our solons. Insisting always that the United States shall maintain its "sovereign" privilege of making its own point of view prevail, they apparently never take into consideration that international relations are mutual and that a bargain is always more valuable than an attitude.

To any one who is familiar with the situation that existed American participation in the Paris financial agreement was inevitable. By the joint resolution of July 2, 1921, all German property in the United States was retained until the German Government "shall have made suitable provision for the satisfaction of all claims" against it. The treaty of Berlin of Aug. 25, 1921, ratified in due course, carries that provision in its preamble and is regarded as carrying out the Congressional resolution. An agreement for a mixed commission to determine the amount to be paid by Germany in satisfaction of its financial obligations under that treaty was signed at Berlin, Aug. 10, 1922. The commission established thereby is continuously handing down decisions.

The property administered by the Alien Property Custodian has not been assigned to meet those payments, on the ground, urged in Congress, that private property should not be devoted to meeting public obligations. Two alternatives for getting the money remain, obtaining it from the German Government or by appropriating it by Congress. Congress having insisted upon the former method, the Administration naturally had to meet the situation as it existed. That situation was partly inevitable and part of our own making. The United States officially and unofficially had enough to do with the expert committee plan, commonly known by the name of the Vice President-elect, not to be able to repudiate it.

At the London Reparation Conference, July 16-Aug. 16, 1924, the French delegation on Aug. 2 proposed a conference of the Financial Ministers to allocate payments under the plan. On Aug. 5 Ambassador Kellogg, in a letter to the Secretary General citing the plan, moved to amend the French proposal so that the financial conference should deal with the distribution of German payments among "the Allied and Associated Governments." "The United States, under the terms of the experts' report, is interested in the question of distribution, and it should participate in the proposed Paris conference," wrote the American delegate. The American public approved that action at the time. The negotiators at Paris were unable to deal in ultimatums, so they produced an agreement that was the best obtainable in the circumstances. It profits no one to complain about it because it was not something else.

American practice indicates that the agreement reached is properly an executive agreement not subject to Senatorial advice and consent for its validity. The general rule has been that arrangements carrying out Congressional declarations of policy are not subject to Senate action. By the Constitution the President conducts American foreign relations. The Senate's advice and consent to treaties is enjoined on the theory that treaties change the status of the Government. No such situation exists in the present instance. The Congressional resolution of July 2, 1921, was carried out, so far as determination of claims was concerned, by the Mixed Claims Commission agreement of Aug. 10, 1922, which the Senate has admitted did not require its action. There is no more reason for the agreement providing the money in the only way it can be obtained from Germany requiring Senate action.

DENYS P. MYERS.

Boston, Jan. 19, 1925.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The alarming increase of crime committed by mere boys has been the subject of much thought and considerable writing both by amateur and professional criminologists. None of them, as far as my experience goes, has hit the nail on the head.

To change the Sullivan law so that the straight-living citizen can carry a gun might tend to lessen crime. It certainly would help to lessen human life—according to which had the drop, crook or good citizen. The chances would be in favor of the crook.

To give more pink teas and larger bouquets of beautiful roses to the convicts and shower them with all the comforts and luxuries of modern existence will be simply confirming the criminal element in their secret thought that they have fallen in soft. A red-blooded man has no respect for this sort of thing. Sycophants, rats and hypocrites respond handsomely to this treatment.

There is only one true way of stopping this rising tide of crime—from the inside of the dens of crime.

The citizens of New York will awake some day to read of the most daring hold-ups in private houses during the evening's entertainment of guests, and heaven only knows where all this will end if we do not take the necessary steps to stop the on-coming generations of youth from emulating the deeds of the older crook to whom all the young lads of the congested districts of New York and the larger cities of the country are giving their admiration.

Service clubs are about to be started in the congested districts of New York which will give men of criminal record a chance to do some good in the world, and many a so-called crook is anxiously awaiting the chance to serve the poor in his neighborhood. So through service the psychology of the worst districts in the city can be changed. Instead of the lads emulating the evil deeds of their elders, they will be striving to copy and outdo them in deeds of mercy and kindness.

The editorial in THE TIMES of this morning entitled "City Planning" is to my mind the best editorial I have read this year. It visualizes in concrete and simple language a reclamation of our city waterfront to the immense benefit of the business interests now improperly located there, and for the even greater benefit of the people of the city at large. An intensive study of the geography of Manhattan Island in relation to its industries, its homes and its recreation areas should be fostered by good citizens. Your editorial points the way.

Cars Exclusively for Women.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The managers of the Long Island Railroad have very thoughtfully provided cars on every train for the comfort of men smokers. The other cars are filled by men, who, strange as it may appear, sit while women must stand. Why cannot at least one or two cars be used for the exclusive use of women, who pay the same fare as men and who often are on their feet all day working in the city and who have their housework to do on their return home in the evening?

DELAYED JUSTICE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial "Delayed Justice" achieved a useful service in provoking an admission of responsibility from Senator Walsh of Montana for the ill success of the American Bar Association's years of effort to expedite and reduce the expense of trials in the courts. He answered his own objections by contrasting the American and Canadian practice in favor of the latter. That is what the Bar Association's bill will give to America.

The bill that the Senator has been successful in suppressing in committee has been approved by a unanimous American Bar Association eleven years in succession. It has been advocated by Presidents Taft, Wilson and Coolidge. It has been endorsed by forty-six State Bar Associations; the deans of the American law schools, all the law journals, the conference of Appellate Judges, all the United States Circuit Judges but three, nearly all the District Judges, the conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, the Law League of America, the conference of delegates from State, city and county bar associations, the Academy of Political Science, the National Association of Credit Men, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the Southern Commercial Congress, the Manufacturers' Association, the National Civic Federation, and in fact every important national organization. Over eighty Senators recently signed a questionnaire favoring the bill and substantially 80 per cent. of the House. President Coolidge recommended its passage at the present short session; the Steering Committee gave it a place.

Besides preventing the lawyers from improving the courts the Senator has done nothing himself and has withheld his valuable cooperation, sympathy and advice, to which they and the public are manifestly entitled. He has unwittingly been an obstructionist in the sacred matter of improving the administration of justice.

One who knows the great Western Senator finds difficulty in believing that he realizes the serious results of his conduct. A whole nation is suffering and justly complaining. The courts are losing their usefulness and the respect of the people. Instead of criticising, is it not his sacred duty either to allow the lawyers to act or to offer a better substitute?

There are three kinds of pleading and practice: (1) The old common law practice introduced into America from England but so modified by statutes as to be unrecognizable. (2) Code practice, made up wholly of statutes—that is, laws that are haphazardly altered or added to at every session of the Legislatures or Congress. This is the field code mistakenly referred to by Senator Walsh as being what the lawyers desired. On the contrary, it is what they condemn, because as much time is required in their consideration as the issue to be tried. (3) A simple, correlated system of scientific rules, just sufficient to present the issue, prepared with the approval of the Supreme Court by experienced practicing lawyers and presiding Judges, which is what the lawyers want.

The Senator claimed that the Federal practice was the same as the State. Congress split up the Federal courts into two parts, calling one the "equity side" and the other the "law side," with the same Judge sitting on the same bench at the same time in the same room. The rule system was adopted on the equity side, but Congress required the law side only to adopt the practice of the several States in which the Federal courts sat (Section 914). Obviously interference by Congress was not in order, for two masters could not be obeyed. The contrary has happened and substantially a distinct Federal practice has been enacted. Then another obstacle arose. Most of the States sensibly abolished the Federal distinction as to pleading and practice between law and equity. And so a Federal twin practice now has to conform to a unified State practice as best it may. So knowledge of State practice does not qualify a lawyer to practice in Federal courts. There are "Federal practitioners" at every bar.

There are also fundamental troubles. Every procedural statute must be obeyed by the Judge though injustice be done in his very presence. This is the most difficult thing for a layman to understand, because it defies common sense. One reason for so many appeals is the effort of the Judges to administer justice in spite of the statutes. That is why the administration of justice has become a secondary matter in trials. Statutory practice, with a dual Federal and State control of practice, is the trouble with the courts.

Senator Walsh defends the present plan because it has existed 135 years. Age never yet metamorphosed demerit into merit. England suffered longer than that and abolished it. On the subject of uniformity he admits that the lawyers' plan will bring it about in every Federal court. Since forty-six State Bar Associations, including both city and county lawyers, have adopted the principle of rules of court, including Senator Walsh's State of Montana, State uniformity will also follow. The evidence is overwhelmingly in its favor. Senator Walsh's complaint that the slight work of becoming familiar with the few rules would not be welcomed by lawyers is sufficiently refuted by their conduct. The Senator's implication is that the courts were created for the convenience of lawyers and not for the benefit of the people. He next complained that these rules would have to be interpreted. Regardless of the experience of England and Canada to the contrary, that objection might be conceded and a substantial gain shown, since substantially half the time of the American courts is now wasted in procedural disputes. These are rules, not laws. What English and Canadian lawyers and Judges have done American lawyers can do. After conceding the Supreme Court will not itself do the work, but will appoint a commission to prepare the rules, the Senator complains that the bill made no provision for one. Why should it? He objected that it provided no compensation. If the lawyers are willing to do the work, why should it? The Senator is momentarily unmindful that, upon the recommendation of Chief Justice Taft, the Bar Association's bill and program contained the very provisions he desires, except that for compensation. Somewhere in the Senate these provisions were omitted, and the lawyers accepted what they could get! The Senator can correct these defects on the floor if he allows the bill to be reported.

Senator Walsh's last words justify the belief that he has not read the American Bar Association's program. It reads:

It is desired to be emphasized that the statute will necessitate no alteration of the present procedure in any jurisdictional or fundamental matter. * * * It divides all procedure into two classes, viz.: (a) jurisdictional and fundamental matters and general procedure, and (b) the rules of practice directing the manner of bringing parties into court and the course of the court thereafter. The first class * * * prescribes what the courts may do, who shall be the parties participating, and fixes the rules of evidence and all important matters of procedure. This is by legislation. The second concerns only the practice. This is by rules of court. The legislative class provides what the courts may do, while the judicial class regulates the details of doing it.

An analogous distinction may be found between the duties of the Board of Directors of a railroad and a locomotive driver. Each is fine in his place, but dangerous out of it.

ASK FUNDS FOR ST. PAUL'S.

Reuter's to Receive Donations Here for London Cathedral.

Reuter's News Agency of London has undertaken the collection of subscriptions outside of the British Isles for The London Times fund to repair St. Paul's Cathedral and contributions from the United States will be received at Reuter's office, 383 Madison Avenue, here. Contributions will be acknowledged in American newspapers and the names and amounts will be cabled abroad regularly and appear in The London Times. The sum needed may approximate a quarter of a million pounds. A statement by Reuter's says:

"The main task of those responsible for safety of the Cathedral is strengthening the massive piers which support the famous dome. The piers when originally built were filled internally with rubble, mainly composed of old bricks left upon the site of the old cathedral after the Great Fire of London. The system of injecting cement under pressure into piers, so as to fill up the interstices and give new life to these enormous columns, has been tried with success and it is the only real and complete application of this process, some alternative which necessitates the present appeal."

FUNERAL OF MRS. EGAN.

Many Prominent Men Attend Services for War Correspondent.

Funeral services for Mrs. Eleanor Franklin Egan, war correspondent and wife of Martin Egan, a member of the staff of J. P. Morgan & Co., were held yesterday morning at 10:15 at the Church of the Incarnation, Madison Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street. Mrs. Egan died of pneumonia Saturday night at Rye, N. Y. The service was delayed fifteen minutes to permit the arrival of J. Pierpont Morgan and Herbert Hoover, who were delayed by the storm.

The Right Rev. Charles H. Brent, Bishop of Western New York, and the Rev. H. Percy Silver, rector of the church, read the service. Honorary pallbearers were Herbert Hoover, Major Gen. James G. Harbord, Edward W. Harden, Newton W. Gilbert, Frederick Hulse, Dr. R. H. Rullson, George Whitney, John O'Hara Cosgrave, George Barr Baker, A. E. Thomas, A. M. Anderson, Colonel William B. Causey of Norfolk, Va., and Wilmot H. Lewis of Washington, D. C. George Horace Lorimer, who was to have been a pallbearer, was prevented by illness from making the trip to New York from Atlantic City.

In spite of the heavy fall of snow, which turned to rain shortly before the service, more than three hundred people, many of them nationally prominent, assembled at the church to do honor to Mrs. Egan's memory. Among them were Thomas W. Lamont, John D. Ryan, Frank L. Polk, Walter Lippman, Melville E. Stone, Isaac F. Marcosson, William Brown Maloney, Charles Hanson Towne, Oscar King Davis, James Stanley, Kathleen Norris, Fred W. Underwood and Frank Munsey.

The service was simple and ended with the singing of "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Mr. Egan, grief-stricken, was unable to leave the church for ten minutes after the service. Robert Searing, a nephew of Mrs. Egan, accompanied him. The body was taken out to Fresh Pond Cemetery, Long Island, for cremation immediately after the ceremony. The ashes will be buried on the estate of Frederick Hulse at Monroe, N. Y., today or Thursday.

JOSEPH C. LEVI EULOGIZED.

Rabbi Stern Pays Tribute to Aged Lawyer at Funeral Services.

Funeral services for Joseph C. Levi, one of the oldest practicing lawyers in New York, whose death from an automobile accident occurred last Saturday, were held yesterday morning in the West End Synagogue, 160 West Eighty-second Street. Dr. Nathan Stern, rabbi of the synagogue, read the burial service and spoke the eulogy. There was also a Masonic service, at which Gordon S. P. Kleeberg, Master of True Craftsman's Lodge, No. 651, officiated.

"Old age is not always an unhappy period," said Dr. Stern, "but when it is glorified by the indomitable spirit, the abounding courage and the beautiful religious family and social ties which characterized the comrade whom we mourn, it becomes a sacred and transcendent blessing. Tragic as his end may seem, it nevertheless brings us comfort to know that it was unaccompanied with the pangs and griefs so often suffered."

A delegation of 125 members of the Masonic order attended the services, which included, besides members of True Craftsman's Lodge, representatives of several other lodges. The pall-bearers were Daniel Katz, Henry Wessel, J. Clarence Davies, Henry Marks, Charles Rosenthal and Morris Magner. In addition to the Masonic delegation, there were present representatives of several legal fraternities of which Mr. Levi was a member, as well as many friends and business associates.

Interment was in Cypress Hills.

EDITOR AGAIN ON STAND

Declares He Did Not Intend to Hold Plaintiff in Scorn or Try to Coerce Him.

Captain Harry Allen Ely, editor of The New York Tenant, a rentpayers' publication, resumed the witness stand yesterday at his trial in Judge Mancuso's part of General Sessions on a criminal libel indictment based on the complaint of Justice William J. A. Caffrey of the Municipal Court and declared that, when he called the jurist in an issue of his publication a nincompoop incapable of justice, he meant it only in a metephorical sense.

The editor was being examined by his attorney, Robert Ferrari, when he said: "It was not in my mind to hold him [Justice Caffrey] up to ridicule, contempt or public scorn, or as a means of coercion, but to point out to the public a situation which existed in his and other courts."

References were made by the lawyer in his examination of the defendant to words used in the publication which resulted in the indictment. He was asked to define these, and he said that "popinjay" meant a parrot, "Tom Noddy," a drink, and "fop," foppish in dress. The lawyer then asked him what he meant when he said in the article, "We are determined to drive you [Caffrey] off the bench," and he said that he didn't consider that the declaration was inflammatory, adding with a show of indignation, "It is known from one end of Manhattan to the other that these Judges do take political orders."

Lawyer Objects to Question.

"Who told you that Justice Caffrey was taking orders?" interjected Judge Mancuso.

Mr. Ferrari jumped to his feet with a vigorous objection, declaring he was opposed to the form of the question because Judge Mancuso was taking an active part in the case. When the Court overruled the objection Captain Ely replied that it was general comment about the court and reports to that effect had been brought to him by members of the Tenants' League. Then he said: "No Judge who is upright need have any fear of such an article. If not, yes."

The witness stated that he considered the article which appeared against Justice Caffrey as a statement of fact, and when a short time later Assistant District Attorney Panger asked Captain Ely if he had been put out of the officers' quarters at the munitions plant at Morgan, N. J., during the war, for cheating at cards, the witness indignantly replied: "Any man who says that is a liar. I left there because I didn't want to be associated with the gamblers there."

In the afternoon session Samuel A. St. Amant, a clergyman, was called to the stand for the defense. He said that he knew Justice Caffrey, and declared in reply to another question by Mr. Ferrari, that the jurist's reputation was "bad—very bad."

Judge Mancuso questioned him on his ordination and the witness replied that he had taken a correspondence course before his ordination in the Advent Reformed Church.

"Were you ever divorced?" asked Mr. Panger.

"I was divorced," the witness answered, "but never married."

"What do you mean by that?" pursued the prosecutor.

Awoke in Hospital Married.

"My divorce was based on a marriage that never took place," explained the witness. "It was a curious case. I was in a railroad wreck. They took me to a hospital in Brooklyn. When I came out of the anesthetic I found that I had been married to a woman I had never met before."

"Ah," interposed the Court, "sort of unconscious marriage, as it were."

"I never recognized the marriage," the witness went on, "but a lawyer for this woman—a lawyer who afterward served time in Sing Sing—told me I'd have to live with her or go to jail. I was not a minister at the time."

Another witness, Frank Sheridan of 97 Fort Washington Avenue, when asked by Mr. Ferrari about Justice Caffrey's reputation for intelligence on the bench, replied: "It's terrible, to judge by what's said about him."

The trial will be continued this morning.

HYLAN WINS FIGHT FOR OIL TANK CARS

Republicans, Opposing Plan, Ask If Tammany Is Interested in Filling Stations.

REPLY HITS STANDARD OIL

Democrats Say Change From Barrels, Made by Company, Will Cut Gasoline Price Two Cents.

Insinuations that Tammany leaders and the City Administration may be interested in the prosperity of gasoline filling stations and of the Yellow Taxicab Company were made at the Board of Aldermen's meeting yesterday by the Republican minority in a futile effort to defeat Mayor Hylan's bill to so amend a city ordinance as to permit the transportation of gasoline through the streets in tank vehicles instead of in steel drums of fifty-five gallons, the present method.

The Democratic majority retaliated by suggesting that the Republicans were playing into the hands of the Standard Oil Company, the manufacturer of the drums. After a stormy time the Mayor's bill was adopted by a party vote of 61 to 7.

Mayor Hylan contends that the new method of transportation will so reduce labor costs as to save $7,000,000 a year for automobile users of the city and save between $200,000 and $300,000 in the cost of gasoline used for city purposes. The change, he declares, will give to the people of the city the benefit of the two-cent drop in the prices now enjoyed outside the city.

Attack By Quinn.

The Republican minority insisted in vain on a public hearing. Alderman William F. Quinn, a west side Republican, in his attack on the proposition asked:

"Is it possible that Tammany leaders are interested in gasoline filling stations or, perhaps, is the Yellow Taxicab Company, desirous of selling gasoline to the citizens of the city? W may soon be in a position to give out some more family secrets."

The Alderman did not explain his innuendoes.

Alderman Francis D. McGarey, a Brooklyn Democrat, told the Republicans that when the proposed amendment was before the General Welfare Committee, Aldermen Harvey and Meyer, Republicans on the committee, did not suggest a public hearing. "They did not sign the committee report, however," McGarey added, "until they got information from headquarters. They were good Republicans and I don't blame them."

Aiding Standard Oil, His Retort.

Alderman McGarey accused the Republicans of "cheap politics," and of playing into the hands of the Standard Oil Company. He said Standard Oil controls the company that makes the steel barrels; also that Standard Oil had wrecked the Mitchel Administration thereon electing the present splendid" Administration.

"You know that this is a better Administration," he went on.

"I disagree with the Alderman," retorted Quinn. "I think the Mitchel Administration was the best this city has ever had."

"The voice of the people counts," said McGarey. "They re-elected this Administration, and they will do it again next Fall."

This assertion was greeted by hissing from the balcony and a few handclaps. "The chorus from the balcony does not sustain your assertion," commented Alderman John J. Keller, a Brooklyn Republican.

Alderman Quinn and Minority Leader John Wirth declared that tank truck handling of gasoline through the streets was dangerous and they desired to hear from the Fire Prevention Bureau and the Fire Department. Quinn recalled that twelve years ago he helped frame the ordinance requiring that gasoline be transported for "safety's sake" in steel drums. The Fire Prevention Bureau had strongly urged this, he said.

Budget Head Appears for Hylan.

Edward J. Buckley, Director of the Budget, who personally represented Mayor Hylan, told the Aldermen that New York was the only city in the nation that required transporting of gasoline in other than tank trucks. He said automobile users notice that they can buy gasoline 2 cents a gallon cheaper outside the city, and the reason was that oil companies had been obliged to use the burdensome steel drums in the city.

He pointed out that the Government uses tank trucks in supplying gasoline to postal vehicles in this city and that the Fire Department uses tank trucks for carrying fuel to motor apparatus at work on fires.

AIDS ARMY MAJOR WHO LED HIM 'OVER THE TOP'

Ex-Private Bauer to the Rescue This Time When Traffic Rules Involve His Late Superior.

Arthur Bauer, a former private in the A. E. F. and now a policeman in the Clinton Street Station, came to the rescue of a former superior officer yesterday, when Major Terry de la M. Allen of the Sixty-first Reserve Cavalry, living at the Army and Navy Club, came up in the Traffic Court before Magistrate Oberwager on the charge of driving an automobile without carrying his identification card.

There was a second charge, one of disorderly conduct against Major Allen, preferred by Patrolman John Walsh of Traffic B, who had arrested him. The Major's automobile, it came out at the hearing, had collided with a machine driven by Nathan Fink of 221 South Third Street, Brooklyn, at Fifth Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street, and Fink had pursued the Major through the park until both were stopped at Sixty-fifth Street by Walsh. The disorderly conduct, according to the testimony, was based on the Major's having had expressed his opinion of the arresting officer in the police station.

Major Allen pleaded guilty on both charges and was fined $5 for his remarks in the police station, but protested to Magistrate Oberwager over the treatment he had received. He declared that the police had not permitted him to telephone his friends to raise $500 bail and he insisted that he was reliable.

Magistrate Oberwager asked how he could prove his identity. Major Allen hesitated and then Patrolman Bauer, who happened to be in the courtroom, spoke up.

"I can vouch for him," said Bauer. "He led me over the top many times. He always brought me back safely, too."

Magistrate Oberwager suspended sentence.

LOYAL TO HER CITY.

"Mother May," who lives in Hell's Kitchen, at Twenty-seventh Street and Tenth Avenue, has had seventy-seven birthdays, but never until yesterday was that event celebrated with a party. The party was a success and everything was arranged to have "Mother May" go to live with her daughter on a farm out West, where there is peace and green pastures—but "Mother May" won't go.

The other residents of the New York Workingwomen's Hotel, where she lives, after having exhausted their persuasive eloquence, are impatient at her lack of appreciation. Her fellow-lodgers are scrubwomen in office buildings, theatres and banks. This is the way Mrs. Annie O'Neill, who tends to the Vanderbilt Theatre after the lights are put out, complained of the ingratitude of "Mother May":

"She won't go home to her relatives and a peaceful life because she says she's a New Yorker. She prides herself on being a loyal citizen of the metropolis. What has New York ever done for her but kill her husband in an elevator accident, take her three sons away from her and make her wor kherself sick? She says she owes it to her own city not to forsake it in her old age and is happy to die here."

The Salvation Army runs the hotel, once a saloon. It was the Salvation Army that was appealed to after the party to persuade "Mother May" to go. Captain Matheson visited the hotel just as Jane Taylor and other actresses were leaving after supplying the songs and music at the party. Captain Matheson sided with "Mother May." He told her New York would miss her too greatly if she were to leave and advised her to remain where she is happy.

FEW TENEMENT INSPECTORS

Former Commissioner Murphy Blames the Hylan Administration.

John J. Murphy, former Tenement House Commissioner, in the first of a series of conferences dealing with New York's tenement situation, held yesterday afternoon in the Community Church, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, said that there were fewer tenement inspectors in the city than there were in 1910.

Mr. Murphy, with lantern slides, made an extensive survey of tenement conditions and declared that the present city administration was remiss in improving them.

Miss Dorothy Carter of the Henry Street Visiting Nurse Service talked briefly about the housing problems of the lower east side and other congested districts.

BOSTON JURY IS REBUKED.

Judge Is Aroused by Clearing of Man Accused of Drunkenness.

BOSTON, Jan. 20.—Judge Elias B. Bishop of the Superior Court today rebuked a jury which after brief deliberation had returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of a man charged with drunkenness. Police officers had testified that the man was so drunk that he could not be booked at the station house until three hours after his arrest. Addressing the foreman, Judge Bishop said:

"I would put you out of here as quickly as possible."

Turning to the clerk of the court, he added:

JOSEPH HARRIMAN JR. SUED.

Woman Asks $2,650 and $750 for Apartment She Sublet Him.

Summons and complaint in a suit for $2,650 and for rent of $750 against Joseph Harriman Jr. was filed yesterday in the County Clerk's office on behalf of Mrs. T. Talbert of 110 East Fifty-fourth Street.

Mrs. Talbert alleged that on Oct. 15, 1922, she sublet her apartment for eleven and one-half months at $500 a month to Harriman, who occupied the premises until Dec. 1, 1922, and then gave her a check for $750, which was protested for non-payment. Subsequently the premises were let to Harriman's account for six months at $575 a month. She credited Harriman with $3,450, Mrs. Talbert alleges, but he still owes her $2,300, her complaint charges.

The plaintiff destroyed a set of china cups and saucers, she asserts, valued at $350. Each item is made a separate cause for action.

Naval Commanders Are Keeping Native Soldiers Out.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—A dispatch to the Navy Department today said that senior naval officers at Shanghai considered the number of troops there sufficient to keep the defeated Chinese forces out of the foreign concessions of the city.

The line for protection of the foreign settlements, established during the disturbances in Shanghai last Fall, will be reoccupied, the message added, and "such forceful measures as the occasion requires" will be used.

Summarizing the situation in the vicinity of the city, the message said the Shanghai-Nankin Railroad had been cut several times and rolling stock damaged, and that uncertainty prevailed at Nanking, where small British and Japanese landing parties were ashore. The American gunboat Pigeon was alongside the Standard Oil Company concession with a landing force held in readiness.

Falls in Train's Path; Lives.

Mrs. Minnie Liebowitz of 1,891 East Twelfth Street, Brooklyn, had a narrow escape from death yesterday when she slipped on the snow-covered platform at Kings Highway station of the B. M. T. subway. Fortunately, there was room enough between the tracks and the platform for her to crawl to safety as the train rolled in. She was extricated by the train crew and policemen and taken to the Coney Island Hospital. Her condition is not serious. Traffic was delayed seven minutes.

From the Founder's Writings

A man may give himself liberties, saying that "business is business." "I am bound to take care of myself" and "the buyer must look out for himself," but, in the long run, the seller will find that he is standing in his own light.

Uprightness is even better capital than executive ability.

RADIO TO HELP DRIVE FOR CATHEDRAL FUND

Movies in 55 of City's Theatres Also Carry the Message of St. John's Needs.

FUND LACKS $10,633,000

LITTLE BOY SENDS 3 CENTS

All Committees Now Actively at Work—Contributors Give Gladly to the Cause.

Emphasizing the importance of a great volume of small gifts, as well as a few big ones, to establish the community character of the drive for the completion of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, church workers and other volunteer solicitors of campaign funds went forth yesterday with the ambition to enroll at least 1,000,000 New Yorkers in the task.

The communicants of every parish in the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York were urged to arouse the interest of their friends and associates among the other religions in the project of helping to build a magnificent church which will embody the architectural beauty and spiritual force of America. Radio and the movies are to be used to carry the message of this cathedral of the New World to all people.

Despite the heavy snowfall, which kept many of the workers at home, the parish committees for Manhattan, the Bronx, Staten Island and Eastern and Central Westchester reported yesterday the collection of approximately $141,000. Added to the $128,000 reported on Monday by the six business men's, women's, arts and military and naval divisions, and the $4,100,000 announced on Sunday as raised in the preliminary campaign of private solicitation, the total of the fund reached approximately $4,367,000. This leaves $10,633,000 still to be raised to complete the $15,000,000 fund needed for the completion of the Cathedral.

Many Send Small Gifts.

Three important recruits were added to the list of committee leaders outside of the ranks of church members. E. H. H. Simmons, President of the New York Stock Exchange, accepted the associate chairmanship of the bankers and brokers' section of the business men's division and will line up the brokers to help build the Cathedral. L. F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson, accepted the chairmanship of the railroad and express company section, and Charles E. Arnott of the Vacuum Oil Company the chairmanship of the oil section.

The reports of contributions yesterday showed that many small gifts are coming from persons in other denominations as well as from Episcopalians, which is just what the sponsors of the campaign desire. Smallest of all the gifts was one of 3 cents from a boy whose orthography was not as good as his heart. This is how he addressed an envelope to Bishop Manning:

Bishop Manning
Amsterdam Avenue
And 112th Street
New York City.

Here is what he wrote in his letter:

Dear Bishop, shrdlau

I am a little boy an my name is Hermy. I want to sent all me money to help build the bg chorch.

HERMY UNGLAUB.

Enclosed was "all me money"—three pennies, carefully wrapped up in a paper package. Bishop Manning announced that Hermy's three cents would be used to help build the Children's Arch in the great Nave of the Cathedral, and that his name would be inscribed in the Golden Book which is to have a permanent place in a niche of the Cathedral—just as if he had given $3,000, or $300,000, or $3,000,000, instead of "all me money."

Not only poor children, but workingmen, the sick and dying, and those in far-away places, sent their mites to Bishop Manning.

Catholic Policeman Helps.

"One gift which especially pleased me," said Bishop Manning, "was from a policeman on the Broadway crossing opposite Trinity Church, who is a devout and faithful Roman Catholic, and a very good friend of mine. I have known him a good many years. He went into the church yesterday, and the sexton told me he left a gift of $10 for the Cathedral."

A workingman living in Clinton Street, Brooklyn, sent to Bishop Manning a money order for $5.40—his day's pay—with the following letter:

GILBERT W. WAMSLEY.

"I think that is a magnificent example," said the Bishop. "When the people get roused to the point of sending their gifts like that—one day's wages—it is time for the Protestant Episcopalians to push and push hard."

The Rev. Dr. Henry Mottet, rector of the Church of the Holy Communion, informed Bishop Manning that the Working Men's Club of his parish at its regular monthly meeting on Monday night had pledged itself to get 500 contributions outside of the church before next Sunday night.

Percy Litchfield, parish chairman of St. George's Church, announced a gift of $50 from the King's Daughters, a society composed largely of working girls and poor people. Two contributions of poignantly human interest, Bishop Manning announced, came from the Parish of St. Michael's Church. One was from an Irish girl and was in memory of her brother, who was killed in the World War, receiving the Victoria Cross posthumously for his heroism. Another was sent from a bedridden woman, dying in an institution, who sent for the parish chairman to come and get her contribution. When he went, she told him that she had been afraid she would die before he got there, and that she wished to have some part in building the Cathedral.

Contributions from two ministers of other Protestant denominations were announced. Bishop Manning, speaking to a group of church workers at a luncheon meeting in the Hotel Astor, said:

"To show how this thing is spreading beyond the limits of our own great city, here is a letter that came in to me this morning from Leeds, N. D., with a postal money order for $10 enclosed."

The letter stated that the writer was a Congregational minister who, at one time, lived in New England and other parts of the East.

Contribution From Texas.

A contribution of $1 was received from the Rev. Charles R. Nugent, a Presbyterian clergyman in Texas, who wrote that he was in straitened circumstances, but desired to have even a small part in the task of building the Cathedral.

H. F. Laflamme of the New York Federation of Churches told a meeting of church workers that the Rev. Dr. William B. Millar of the Federation, who spoke at the mass meeting in Madison Square Garden on Sunday night, found an envelope slipped into his hand after he finished his remarks. On opening it, Mr. Laflamme said, Dr. Millar discovered a contribution of $50 from a Jewish citizen, who said he was in sympathy with the movement, and wished to see the Cathedral finished within his lifetime.

Dr. John B. Walker, Parish Chairman of Trinity Church, said that a $500 gift made through his committee came anonymously and mysteriously. He said that when the Rev. C. R. Stetson, rector of the church, arose yesterday morning he found that there had been pushed under his front door an envelope containing a $500 note, but no card or anything else to show from whom it came.

Two meetings of church workers were held yesterday. Committees from parishes in central and upper Manhattan, the Bronx and Eastern and Central Western Westchester gathered at the Hotel Astor. Parish committees from lower Manhattan and Staten Island churches met at the State Chamber of Commerce, 65 Liberty Street.

At the Astor meeting $68,572.07 in contributions were reported by the parish committees, while Bishop Manning announced that Edward W. Sheldon, Treasurer of the campaign, had received $35,000 in yesterday morning's mail, sent directly to the Cathedral. The committee's meeting at the Chamber of Commerce reported the receipt of about $40,000 in cash and pledges.

Bishop Manning presided at the uptown meeting, which was attended by about 500 persons. The Bishop first introduced Canon H. Adye Prichard, acting dean of the Cathedral, who told an incident of Sunday night's mass meeting.

"An alien woman in the crowd outside of Madison Square Garden said, 'You Protestant Episcopals certainly can push.' We will need to do a little pushing ourselves on this work," said Canon Prichard.

"It is not only the Protestant Episcopalian Church that is pushing," Bishop Manning said. "Some of the other people are almost pushing us. That is the magnificent part of it—it is a case in which the spiritual strength of the city as a whole is in it. I am sure we all feel that after that meeting the other night the most 'doubting Thomas' could n't have any doubts left. There can be nothing but confidence and the realization of what this means to the whole community."

Justice Finch Makes Appeal.

Justice Edward R. Finch of the Appellate Division, speaking at the same meeting, appealed for the success of the Cathedral campaign for the sake of family life and world peace, which, he said, were both dependent upon the strength of the Christian religion.

Called on by Justice Finch, Chairmen of the parish committees made the following reports of gifts and pledges:

About 100 persons attended the meeting of parish committees from lower Manhattan and Staten Island in the Chamber of Commerce. Supreme Court Justice Thomas C. T. Crain presided. The principal address was by the Rev. W. Russell Bowie, rector of Grace Church, who said that the completion of the Cathedral would fill the city's need for beauty. "There is a truth in beauty that we need in this life and in this city of ours," he said, "and that the Cathedral will give us."

W. D. Dickinson, Secretary of the Campaign Committee and director of the campaign, said that a great number of gifts and contributions had been received at the Cathedral since Sunday night's mass meeting.

Dr. Henry Mottet of the Church of the Holy Communion, besides telling of the pledge of the Working Men's Club, said that his committee had distributed 4,000 envelopes among the communicants of the church. To each family, he said, went one envelope for each member of the family, "from baby to grandmother." He said that individuals of sixteen denominations were helping the drive.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—American tourists, of whom there were 135,000, left $202,500,000 behind them in France in 1923, establishing a record tourist year, according to statistics gathered by the French National Tourist Office. Only 10 per cent. came for business, and the rest for pleasure.

It is reckoned that each tourist spent $1,500, which seems to be a moderate estimate in view of the large number of purchases and souvenirs which most of them carry home.

The figures for 1924 are not available. Of the American visitors 50,000 arrived via Cherbourg and the rest were distributed among Havre and other Channel ports, coming from England.

SAYS TAFT LETTER WAS A FABRICATION

TESTIFIES AGAINST MEANS

Shortly after the trial of Gaston B. Means, former Government agent, and Colonel Thomas B. Felder was resumed yesterday before Federal Judge Lindley and a jury Hiram C. Tood, the special Government prosecutor, offered in evidence a letter written by Elmer W. Jarnecke to Colonel Felder on Jan. 20, 1923. Frank P. Walsh, of counsel for Colonel Felder, objected because it mentioned the names of George W. Wickersham, Attorney General in the Taft Administration, and Chief Justice Taft.

Jarnecke, who was indicted with Means and Colonel Felder on a charge of conspiring to obstruct justice and who has pleaded guilty, was in the witness chair at the time, testifying for the prosecution. Before introducing the letter Mr. Todd read parts of it, which made it clear that it referred to rumors alleged to have been current to the effect that certain attorneys could influence Government officials and that in bootleg circles it was rumored that Mr. Wickersham could reach Mr. Taft.

Mr. Walsh said that the two men mentioned in the letter were above reproach and that the mention of their names in such a proceeding was an outrage. He was sure they should be spared the affront of having their names dragged into the trial. Mr. Todd suggested that it was rather late in the day for the defendant to object to the bandying about of the names of prominent men. Mr. Walsh resented this statement and moved that a juror be withdrawn and a mistrial be ordered. The motion was denied and Judge Lindley advised counsel to restrain themselves.

Calls Letter a Fabrication.

The letter, which was admitted in evidence, reads:

Jan. 20, 1923.

165 Broadway,

Dear Sir:

In connection with the work that I was engaged in on my own responsibility in balancing up old scores with the bootleg rings, I had heard that you and other prominent attorneys could through back-door methods reach certain Government officials, and among the bootleg crowd it is rumored that Attorney Wickersham can reach Chief Justice Taft because of connections that he is supposed to have.

Can you stop the rumors? I don't believe them and I don't ink that anybody of any experience or learning does believe them. Those who do believe such rumors would also believe that you and other attorneys can fix and unfix juries, but they are the simple-minded and the others who believe it help to repeat such rumors do so with malice.

In regard to the rumor that I at any time ever said that you could or would through any connection or personal influence with Taft, endeavor to bear to stop any official proceedings is absolutely untrue. I have explained to anybody who asked me when and how I knew you, and that the first I heard you were going into the Mitchell case, and I first saw you in front of the Shoreham Hotel when I had stopped in the entrance there to get out of the shower of rain, and that we had then walked together to the Willard Hotel, where I was stopping, under the same umbrella.

The next time I saw you was when I looked you up in New York and when I asked you about appearing for some Chicago people who had been arrested in New York City. For this they gave me no money nor did they or you or anybody else write me anything. Yours respectfully,

ELMER W. JARNECKE.

Questioned by Mr. Todd, Jarnecke described the letter as a pure fabrication. He said the purpose of it was to clear Colonel Felder and Means of any suspicion that they had claimed to have sufficient influence to protect any persons against a Government proceeding.

Admits Affidavit Was Untrue.

Jarnecke, cross-examined by Mr. Walsh, told some parts of the alleged arrangement by which the defendants, who were convicted on a charge of having used the mailsto sell stock in a glass casket concern, had collected $65,000 to be used in preventing prosecution. Jarnecke said that Samuel Schmidt, Chicago jeweler, had given him $1,000 before he went to Washington to meet Means, whom he knew at that time only by reputation. When Jarnecke was asked about the money turned over to the glass casket defendants, he admitted that his affidavit in the proceeding instituted by Samuel Safir, a glass casket defendant, for the recovery of the $65,000, was made while he was in the hands of Means and Colonel Felder, and that it was mainly untrue.

Means and Jarnecke were convicted of violation of the liquor laws on July 1. Means was sentenced to the Atlanta Penitentiary for two years and fined $10,000 and the same prison sentence was imposed on Jarnecke, but the fine was only $5,000. Each was held in $25,000 bail pending appeal and Means was soon released on bail, but Jarnecke remained a prisoner in the Tombs until Oct. 4. During his confinement, he said, he lost his friendship for Means and has since been acting as an informer for the Government. Since he was released from the Tombs, he testified that he had been receiving $11 a day from the Government, $7 for his services and $4 for expenses. The trial will be continued today.

TELLS WIFE LOVE COOLED.

Husband's Letter Brings Her From California to Sue.

When Mrs. Hazel McKenzie Eno of 1,050 East Seventeenth Street, Brooklyn, visiting her mother in California, received a letter from her husband, Josiah W. B. Eno, a bond salesman, announcing that he no longer loved her she hurried East to find out why. Some of the things she alleged to have found were recited in affidavits filed in the Brooklyn Supreme Court, where Mrs. Eno has applied for divorce. Justice Hagarty reserved decision yesterday upon her petition for alimony and counsel fees pending trial.

Mrs. Eno said that she learned from friends that her husband had been living a "wild life." In fact, she had difficulty, she said, in convincing other people that she was the "real Mrs. Eno."

Children of August Jr. Have Mother, Now Mrs. Wing, as Guardian.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Plans for financing the construction of two bridges between Staten Island and New Jersey were up for discussion at a conference today among Speaker McGinnies, other legislative leaders and two representatives of the New Jersey Legislature, Senators Mackey and Pierson, who came here for the purpose.

At the last session of the Legislature an appropriation was made to enable the Port Authority to make a preliminary survey and an estimate of the cost of the bridges. The Port Authority is expected to file a report with the Legislature within a few days. The two structures will cost approximately $12,000,000, the expense to be borne jointly by this State and New Jersey.

Under the act creating it, the Port Authority has power to issue bonds, secured by prospective revenues from the bridges, to raise the necessary funds for construction. A suggestion that the State guarantee the bonds was rejected flatly by the New York legislative leaders, who, however, took a friendly view of a proposal that 75 per cent. of the bonds be sold to investors and be made a first lien against revenues, while the two States jointly take 25 per cent. of the issue, agreeing to wait for interest and redemption of the bonds until the claims of private investors have been satisfied. Thus, broadly speaking, the latter would have a first mortgage and the two Commonwealths a second mortgage on the receipts from tolls.

Bills embodying this proposal already are before the New Jersey Legislature, their passage being contingent on similar action by the Legislature of this State. It is probable that the legislative leaders here will await the report of the Port Authority before introducing the legislation.

Informal discussion was had also of a proposal for a new interstate bridge across the Hudson from West 178th Street, New York City, to a point in the City of Englewood on the New Jersey side. There is pending in the New Jersey Legislature a bill introduced by Senator Mackey which appropriates $130,000 for a preliminary survey of the approaches for such a bridge on that side of the Hudson.

It is urged in favor of this proposed new span that it would afford an easy crossing for motor vehicle traffic from New England to the West and South without further complicating the grave traffic problem in the crowded downtown sections of New York City. The bridge is being urged also because of a realization that the new vehicular tunnel now under construction will have from the start more traffic than it can accommodate, largely freight from the New Jersey railroad terminals carried in trucks to markets at the New York City end of the tube.

ANGRY WORDS PASS IN ALIENATION SUIT

AGREED UPON SEPARATION

Arguing Over Terms, Art Dealer Asks That Wife's Action Against Mrs. Pollock Be Dropped.

A heated altercation took place outside Supreme Court Justice James O'Malley's courtroom yesterday. James L. Clare, counsel for Mrs. Thomas M. Gerrity, whose husband is an employe of Knoedler & Co., Fifth Avenue art dealers, resented the remarks which had been made to him by Gerrity in court.

In court counsel for Mrs. Eugenia R. Pollock attempted to have Mrs. Gerrity agree to discontinue her alienation suit. Besides alleging that Mrs. Pollock had alienated her husband's affections, Mrs. Gerrity began suit for a separation, alleging improper relations between her husband and Mrs. Pollock.

Robert Strang, counsel for Mrs. Pollock and Gerrity, told the Court that an agreement had been reached whereby Gerrity was to pay his wife $500 a month alimony and $1,500 counsel fees. Mrs. Gerrity was to have certain pictures, one of which was said to be worth between $7,500 and $10,000, and was to release dower rights in all real estate her husband might own, except the Pelham home. The alienation suit against Mrs. Pollock was to be dropped and the separation suit undefended by Gerrity.

Counsel for Mrs. Gerrity refused to permit his client to stipulate the settlement on the record, Strang said. In arguing the motion Clare refused to produce any document containing the settlement. He said he had been approached by Gerrity's counsel, who wanted to adjust the trouble. He said he told Strang that he would dictate the terms.

Justice O'Malley directed counsel to submit all their papers by noon today, and refused to hear further argument.

Gerrity, who spoke sharply to Clare in court, was followed outside by the lawyer. There angry remarks were passed and seemed on the point of blows when a court officer stepped between them.

According to the papers, Mrs. Gerrity began the alienation suit Aug. 7, 1923, and the separation suit seven days later. She asked $250 a week alimony and $1,500 counsel fees.

In her affidavits Mrs. Gerrity said her husband was employed by M. Knoedler & Co. at a salary of $20,000 a year. He told her, she said, that he had an additional income of $5,000. The couple were married June 10, 1896, and have three children.

Early in 1923, Mrs. Gerrity said, she renewed an acquaintance with Mrs. Pollock, who had been introduced to her several months before. At a New Year's party in the Gerrity home her husband showed marked attention to Mrs. Pollock.

On the advice of Mrs. Pollock's husband she said she went to 409 Edgecombe Avenue, where she encountered Mrs. Pollock. Gerrity arrived later. He and Mrs. Pollock told their spouses that they loved each other dearly, Mrs. Gerrity said. From that time on Gerrity became abusive, and once attempted to strike her, she maintained. He was prevented by her son, who fought with his father until a neighbor separated them.

Then, said Mrs. Gerrity, she had her husband trailed and located him living at 500 Riverside Drive with Mrs. Pollock. Gerrity left his Pelham home last July, his wife stated.

PUPILS HELD IN RUM THEFT.

Said to Have Peddled Liquor Taken From Drug Store—Clerk Arrested.

Three 14-year-old schoolboys were charged in the Jamaica Children's Court yesterday with the theft of a $100 case of whisky from a drug store at 111th Street and Jerome Avenue, Richmond Hill. Francis Reehil, 18, of 8,711 113th Street, a clerk in the store, pleaded not guilty to the same charge in the Jamaica Magistrates' Court and was held in $1,000.

The schoolboys were William Harrison, 3,056 Fulton Street, Brooklyn; William Palmer, 9,162 110th Street, and Gustave Wendel, 8,755 111th Street, both of Richmond Hill. Justice William Young remanded them to the Children's Shelter, Brooklyn, for a week.

According to detectives of the Richmond Hill Station, Reehil stole liquor from the store cellar and employed the little fellows to peddle it at about 50 cents a bottle in the neighborhood. A number of sales were made to a person who in turn sold the liquor at a high profit, the police say. The boys, it is asserted, were surprised in the cellar by Joseph Heuther, the owner of the store.

MAY SUE CHAS. E. HUGHES.

Passport Denial to Woman in Maiden Name Stirs League.

The Lucy Stone League, an organization for perpetuating the maiden names after marriage, gave its fourth annual dinner last night in the Butterfly Room at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Three hundred persons were present.

The guest of honor was Mrs. Helena Normanton, who gave a stirring recital of her victory over England's ancient prejudices in gaining admittance to the bar and in retaining use of her maiden name after her marriage to Gavin Clark of London.

At the close of Mrs. Normanton's talk Miss Ruth Hale, President of the league, announced that a league committee had been named to consider the possibility of bringing suit against Secretary Hughes for damages for the infringement of an individual right. The league recently sent a protest to the Secretary over the refusal of a passport to a young married woman under her maiden name.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 20.—Lack of reserves forced the closing today of the Farmers' State Bank of Deer Creek, the State Superintendent of Banks announced. The institution was capitalized at $25,000 and had deposits aggregating approximately $100,000.

GIRL SHOT BY WIFE WAS A LIQUOR DECOY

VICTIM AT POINT OF DEATH

Woman Who Fired Five Bullets Into Her in Husband's Car Is Held Without Bail.

Louis Martinez, whose wife shot Mrs. Anna Permentee in his sedan Monday night, was released in $5,000 bail as a material witness yesterday after he had told Assistant District Attorney William P. Ryan that Mrs. Permentee's relationship to him had been only that of a decoy in his bootlegging operations and as a blind to divert suspicion from his activities.

Mrs. Martinez was arraigned, before Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan in Jefferson Market Court yesterday and remanded without bail for examination tomorrow. Detectives reported that Mrs. Permentee, who received five bullet wounds from the jealous wife, was at the point of death in St. Vincent's Hospital.

"Martinez told me," Assistant District Attorney Ryan said yesterday after questioning the husband, "that he had hired Mrs. Permentee about a year ago to act as a decoy in his sale of liquor to Pullman car employes in the Pennsylvania Station and the yards at Sunnyside, Queens. His statement in this respect was corroborated by Mrs. Elizabeth Permentee, mother of the victim of the shooting, with whom her daughter lived in a bungalow in Flatlands Avenue, Brooklyn.

"The husband said he had met Mrs. Permentee in a park in Brooklyn and that because of her impressive appearance he had engaged her merely to sit in his automobile while he was conveying liquor to his customers. Martinez said that Mrs. Permentee had never participated in the sale of the liquor, but that she knew why he had employed her. She usually drove the automobile, Martinez told me.

"He said that his wife also was aware of the reason for Mrs. Permentee accompanying him on his automobile trips, and that he had tried to convince her that there was no reason for jealousy. They had frequently quarreled, however. Martinez said he recently had made a trip with Mrs. Permentee to Tennessee in connection with his bootlegging activities, but declared that he had explained the purpose of the trip.

"The mother of Mrs. Permentee told me she knew of her daughter's employment by Martinez and had frequently urged her daughter to give it up for fear there would be trouble. The mother said that about a month ago her daughter acquiesced to her urgings, but that two weeks ago, on the pleading of Martinez, she had resumed her position."

Martinez wept yesterday when he spoke of his children. He said he was responsible for the shooting, but had done everything he could to avert trouble.

OFFERS NEW GUN INQUIRY.

McKellar Wants Coolidge to Tell Answers to Foreign Protests.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—President Coolidge would be asked to inform the Senate what steps have been taken with respect to foreign representations against elevation of guns on United States battleships under a resolution introduced today by Senator McKellar of Tennessee.

Pointing out that Chairman Hale of the Naval Affairs Committee had declared such a protest had been made by a foreign nation, Senator McKellar asked in the resolution that the President make it clear at what time a decision by the American Government in the matter might be expected, and whether any steps have been taken to submit the proposition to arbitration.

The Senate, by a vote of 45 to 22, refused yesterday to consider the question of elevation of guns on American battleships in connection with an amendment proposed by Senator McKellar to the Naval Appropriation bill.

President Coolidge is known to oppose gun elevation on the ground that such action, although not in the American view violative of the arms limitation treaty, might bring about a renewal of competition in naval armaments. It had been made clear previously that the work was not regarded by the United States and Japan as a "major alteration," forbidden by the treaty, and that Great Britain took an opposite view.

WORD PUZZLES IN SUIT.

The Graphic Seeks Stay Against Printing of Probable Answers.

The cross-word puzzle is about to come under the scrutiny of the law. On next Wednesday counsel for The Daily Graphic will argue in the Supreme Court of New York County for an injunction restraining The Bronx Home News from publishing probable solutions of the cross-word problems published in the Macfadden publication. Papers requiring The Bronx Home News to show cause why the injunction should not be granted were served yesterday.

The Graphic offers prizes for the solution of its puzzles and in the affidavits submitted by Joseph Schultz, attorney for The Graphic, it is alleged that the publication by The Bronx Home News of the probable answers "will diminish and divert a part of the enjoyment of profit from the puzzles." It is also alleged that the publication of the answers to the puzzles is an infringement on The Graphic's copyrights. The Bronx Home News maintains that while the puzzles are copyrighted, the answers are not.

CHAPMAN INDICTED FOR SKELLY MURDER

Connecticut Official Will Go to Washington to Make Plea to Get Convict.

ATLANTA SENDS DEPUTIES

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 20.—Gerald Chapman, the bandit held at Indianapolis for Atlanta Penitentiary officers, was quickly indicted by a Grand Jury here today for the first degree murder of Policeman James Skelly of New Britain Oct. 12, and tonight State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, preparing to leave for a conference at Washington, said he was confident that eventually Chapman would be delivered to Connecticut by the Federal authorities and would be hanged for the shooting of Officer Skelly.

Mr. Alcorn, who is a close friend of President Coolidge, has an appointment with Assistant Attorney General William J. Donovan, in charge of post office cases, and he believes that the Department of Justice will appreciate his claims that Chapman should be brought here for trial rather than remanded to Atlanta to complete his term of twenty-five years.

Mr. Alcorn does not think that Chapman's removal to Atlanta means the closing of Connecticut's claim, but rather that the Government wishes to lodge Chapman safely back in his legal home pending consideration of the murder charge here.

The most important testimony before the Grand Jury was taken from a court stenographer who read notes of an interview at the Hartford jail with Walter Shean, young business man of Springfield, who said he was with Chapman in New Britain. Shean was arrested on the street a moment or two before Chapman shot and killed Officer Skelly, according to his story.

Guard Chapman Closely.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 20.—Gerald Chapman was guarded closely in the county jail here today pending the arrival of deputy wardens who are expected from Atlanta.

Federal authorities planned to place Chapman in the custody of deputies without formality. It was said they expected no interference from two detectives who are reported en route from New Britain to obtain custody of the prisoner for Hartford on an indictment charging the murder of Policeman Skelly.

It is the plan of Federal officials to return Chapman to the Atlanta prison to complete a remainder of the twenty-five years in connection with the $2,400,000 mail truck robbery in New York City, Oct. 24, 1921.

At the jail it was said Chapman spent a restless night. He complained of illness, but refused medical attention. The number of deputies on guard was increased from three to seven.

United States Marshal Lindsey P. Meredith indicated that Chapman's removal from this city would be made as quietly as possible in order to avoid any interferences by accomplices who might attempt to effect his release.

"Dutch Louie" Shooting Revived.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Gerald Chapman is believed to have participated in some robberies in this section. One of those in which he is said to have had a hand was the freight car robbery at Newburgh Junction last Spring in which "Dutch Louie" was shot and badly wounded by Oscar Miller of Goshen, member of the Erie detective force. Louie is now in Atlanta Penitentiary, a cripple. The one who is believed to have been Chapman escaped.

POLICE MAKE MYSTERY OF LARCENY ARREST

Inquiry Said to Be Still Under Way—Wife in Dark as to Cause.

Moses Turman, 28 years old, of 1,047 President Street, Brooklyn, was locked in a cell in Police Headquarters last evening on an indictment charging grand larceny. The police maintained secrecy about the case. Turman was arrested in the late afternoon when he appeared in District Attorney Banton's office in the Criminal Courts Building. It was said that the evidence on which the indictment was returned had been presented by Assistant District Attorney Richard C. Murphy.

Mr. Murphy had left the District Attorney's office before Detective Sergeants Kane and Flood appeared with the prisoner. It was understood that instructions had been issued not to reveal the details of the charges, lest disclosures might interfere with the investigation which is still in progress.

The young wife of the prisoner, when questioned last night about his arrest at her home, tearfully declared that she was in the dark about the matter. She said that a short time before she had been called on the telephone by somebody at Police Headquarters and informed that her husband was "being detained for the night."

"I wanted to know why he was being detained," she said, "but all the man would say was that 'You'll be told all about it in the morning.'"

Turman gave his occupation as a clerk. When Mrs. Turman was asked the name of his employer, she said: "I shall not say anything about him or his affairs until I learn why he has been arrested. As a matter of fact, I don't know much about my husband's affairs—he never told me anything about them."

SEES SLIGHT TO HUNGARY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 20.—One of the largest Hungarian newspapers, the Pesti Hirlap, attacks the Austrian Monarchist Party for demanding that in the event of a restored Hapsburg monarchy Hungary should recognize the cession of Czechoslovakia to the Czechs, or of Pest, commonly known as Burgenland, to Austria, and should recognize the independent status of Nieoatia.

In other words, the paper says, the Austrian Legitimists desire to dictate to Hungary another Treaty of Trianon, which would leave Hungary in its present mutilated condition and deprive the Magyars of their hereditary leading position.

Obviously the idea of the Austrian Legitimists is to retain the independent national states created by peace treaties, the editorial remarks, as autonomous units in a new empire under a Hapsburg ruler and as a single economic entity. This arrangement would not unite dismembered Hungary, and the Austrian Legitimists are not for the nation, but for Hapsburg, the newspaper concludes.

College Burns in Newfoundland.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Jan. 20.—Methodist College, one of the largest educational institutions in Newfoundland, is a smouldering ruin today, following a fire of unknown origin which broke out last night and burned until early today. The building was valued at $200,000. Accommodations for 900 students were provided by the college.

Says Mme. Rappold Disfigured Apartment and Asks Damages

Mme. Marie Rappold, Metropolitan Opera star, was described as a poor interior decorator by Mrs. Isabella Vernon Cook yesterday when she told a jury before Supreme Court Justice McGoldrick why she should not be compelled to return a deposit of $800 paid to her by the opera singer for a three years' lease of the Cook apartment.

Mrs. Cook, who studied painting in Paris, said that her apartment at 29 West Sixty-seventh Street was in perfect condition when she rented it to Mme. Rappold on Oct. 1, 1919. The ceiling and walls were in silver and gray, but Mme. Rappold, she asserted, "disfigured" them by applying decorations of her own selection. She said the kitchen was blue and yellow, with flocks of bluebirds on the walls, and that Mme. Rappold had ruined this effect. When she had spent every cent she could spare in decorating the apartment, Mrs. Cook said, she felt that it was a place fit for an artist.

Municipal Court Justice Jacob Panken, Mrs. Cook said, told her she was entitled to the deposit because of the alterations made by Mme. Rappold. She denied that the opera star had been kept waiting after Oct. 1, 1919, to take possession. Through counsel she has asked $500 damages from Mme. Rappold. The case will continue today.

AMY WREN RESIGNS; BLAMES OTTINGER

OBJECTS TO TIME BOOK

Complains of "Filthy" Office and Low Pay—Says Kings County Is Ill-Treated.

Miss Amy Wren, Republican colleader of the First Assembly District in Brooklyn, announced yesterday that she had resigned the position of Deputy Attorney General to which she was appointed by Attorney General Ottinger on Jan. 5. Miss Wren protested against the treatment accorded her in the office of the Attorney General and charged discrimination against her as a woman and against Kings County as a political issue.

"The Attorney General was advertised from one end of the State to the other for giving a job to a woman—myself," said Miss Wren in announcing her resignation. "The publicity was all good. And what did he do for women? He gave to me the meanest and lowest paid job that was in his power to give out. My pay was $3,500. No other Deputy was appointed at this pay, and many were appointed at several hundred that amount. I was the only Deputy without a private office.

"I was put into an ill-ventilated, inside, overcrowded room with three women stenographers and no room there was not even room for a chair to be placed alongside my desk for any one who came in to see me on business of the office, and I was told that I was to have charge of the files—clerk of the files. Because of the filthy air two of the three girls were out sick during the first week that I was there, and I, myself, was home sick three days last week—the first time that I have been at home sick in years.

"My law experience extends over a period of twenty-three years. It is an indignity and an insult to the women of this State to give me that pay and that job. As I

ASTOR LAND BOUGHT FOR SILK BUILDING

PLAN 20-STORY STRUCTURE

Julius Tishman & Sons to Erect It, Adapted to Needs of Fabric Men Moving Into Neighborhood.

The estate of the late Baron William Waldorf Astor, which has been liquidating its real estate holdings in this city for several months, sold 18, 20 and 22 East Thirty-fourth Street and 15, 17 and 19 East Thirty-third Street yesterday to Julius Tishman & Sons, Inc., operators and builders.

The plot, which has a frontage of seventy-five feet on Thirty-fourth Street and eighty feet on Thirty-third Street, with a depth of 198 feet, will be improved at once with a twenty-story commercial building designed especially to meet the requirements of the silk trade, which is centred in this section.

On the site just sold by the Astor estate, which is opposite the Thirty-fourth Street entrance to B. Altman & Co., there are six old two, three and four-story buildings covering a plot containing 18,550 square feet. The cost of the land and building, according to the buyers of the plot, will involve about $3,000,000.

Plans are now being prepared for the new structure, which will adjoin the southwest corner of Thirty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue, property recently purchased by Belding Brothers, silk manufacturers. They are preparing plans for the erection of a tall building for their own occupancy. Cheney Brothers, also silk manufacturers, have recently taken a twenty-one-year lease for the entire store floor, basement, second and third floors in the seventeen-story building now being erected on the southwest corner of Madison Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street.

Upon the completion of these large structures and the occupancy of space by the most prominent silk manufacturers, the new centre of the silk industry, it is believed, will be established at Thirty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue.

The new Tishman building will have its main entrance on Thirty-fourth Street and a freight entrance on Thirty-third Street. It is expected that the structure will be ready for occupancy about June 1, 1926. Pell & Tibbits negotiated the transaction. Brown, Wheelock, Harris, Vought & Co. have been appointed renting agents, and are now negotiating for the leasing of part of the store space to a prominent banking institution and a number of floors to silk manufacturers and silk factors.

Several weeks ago the Baron Astor estate sold the block front on the west side of Madison Avenue, from Thirty-fifth to Thirty-sixth Street, to a syndicate headed by Robert M. Catts, as a site for a twenty-five-story commercial building. Plans for this structure, which will contain a private street or roadway, have been prepared by Warren & Wetmore, architects. The roadway, which will run through the heart of the building from Thirty-fifth to Thirty-sixth Street, on the street level will be as high as the first story of the building, and will be flanked on either side with adequate loading and unloading platforms and freight elevators. Trucks delivering or receiving merchandise in the building will not be subject to the present hazard of street blockade. They will not use city curb lines or obstruct sidewalks with merchandise and will do nothing to aggravate present traffic congestion on the street and avenues near by.

Another huge commercial structure is to be erected on the Park Avenue front of the old car barn site on the east side of Park Avenue between Thirty-second and Thirty-third Streets.

Just Hear It!

Hear the Ware Type TU. Your dealer will be glad to give you a demonstration. Or drop in at some friend's and listen to his Ware.

Your own experience will tell you more about the Ware than could pages of printed matter. The Ware tone will tell you what the Ware does, just as it has thousands of others.

For it's the tone—the natural sound of the human voice or of musical instrument—that's selling so many Wares—tone, along with exceptional performance, beauty of the cabinet, ease of operation, and moderate price.

So Hear the Ware and the Tone Will Tell You

Type TU, illustrated, is a wonderful set in appearance, performance and price. Cabinet is a beautiful console in brown mahogany or walnut. Because of the unique Ware principle of reflexing one tube, you get the full range of a four-tube set. Circuit is the famous Neutrodyne. Dry-cell tubes and dry-cell batteries mean ease and decided economy of operation. All batteries are enclosed in cabinet, which also houses a sweet-toned loud speaker. Extraordinary popularity of Type TU will soon mean a scarcity. Better see your dealer at once. Note the moderate price—made possible only by large production—$125.00, without accessories.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

With the business done on the Stock Exchange the smallest since election, except for the two days before Christmas, prices continued to slip off fractionally. There were few changes of any consequence, either upward or downward; on the whole, it was the most apathetic business day since the year began. It should still be kept in mind, however, that this is entirely normal, in a market which had been rising rapidly up to the end of the old year without any new developments in the general situation to add special stimulus in the later stages of the advance. The stock market ordinarily moves in this dead-of-Winter period much as general business does.

Judged by the volume of railway freight in motion, however, distribution of merchandise of all kinds is holding at a remarkably high level. Yesterday's weekly car-loading report was the first to measure fairly the new year's tendencies; the two preceding statements had covered the holiday weeks. This latest statement, for the week ending Jan. 10, breaks all precedent for the current month. The largest weekly loadings in any previous January were the 895,000 cars of the month's third week last year; the current report shows 932,807. Until last year, no such weekly figure was ever achieved before the end of March; even in 1920 it was not matched until the Winter wheat was moving in July.

Outside the Stock Exchange, the reaching of a new high price for the season in the wheat market was the main point of interest. Call money declined to 2½ per cent.; foreign exchange hardly moved.

The German Reichsbank's weekly statements are interesting nowadays, both because of the process of building up the gold reserve and because of the movement of note circulation, with the incubus of a depreciating currency shaken off. In the second week of January, which is now reported on, the bank added $2,600,000 gold to its reserve, making $83,300,000 increase since the bank began purchasing foreign gold last June. This substantial addition is usually ascribed to the proceeds of the German Government's external loan. That was an essential factor in the task, but it should be remembered that $41,000,000 of the foreign gold purchases had been made before the loan was floated, which occurred in the middle of October.

Note circulation at the Reichsbank, which stood on Dec. 31 at 1,941,000,000 reichsmarks, was reduced in the next two weeks to 1,646,000,000. This is the normal working of an elastic currency: it corresponds to the reduction of $124,000,000 in our own Federal Reserve notes during the first half of this month. But there was no such January reduction in the inflation days of 1923, when the German Government was being run with the Reichsbank's printing press; there was then a weekly increase of two or three hundred billion marks.

The fact that the circulation at the end of last December should have stood, measured in the new reichsmark values, at the highest point reached since the war, has caused some surprise. But the 1,941,000,000 reichsmarks of circulation then outstanding compares with some 2,500,000,000 at the end of December, 1913, from which figure it was reduced to 1,925,000,000 in the next three weeks and to 1,734,000,000 in February. Germany's present gold-value paper currency is smaller than before the war and is not, as the Reichsbank issues then were, supplemented by gold and silver coin in free circulation.

TUESDAY, JAN. 20, 1925.

Abundance of supply, while inquiry continued light, made money charges again easier. Stock Exchange demand loans declined to 2½ per cent., with outside trades at 2@2¼, the opening and renewal figure being 3. Time money market was very active, particularly for the four months' maturity, which was strongly bid for at 3% per cent., and loaned there, compared with trading at 4, heretofore. Ninety-day accommodation was also offered at 3¾, and taken in good size amounts, while five-six months' remained offered at 4, with the bid at 3¾ per cent. Business money markets were firm and without variation in discount.

WARBURG FORESEES GOLD ENDING CHAOS

1924 BEST YEAR OF BANK

Paul M. Warburg declared yesterday at the annual meeting of the International Acceptance Bank, Inc., at which the best year in its history was reviewed, that it was now "only a matter of time before we may see the pound sterling placed on a basis of free convertibility into gold," with other countries following England's example.

F. Abbot Goodhue, the President, called particular attention to the great assistance received by the bank from its stockholding and associated friends and institutions abroad. Their advice and cooperation, he said, enabled it to proceed with confidence in granting foreign commercial credits at times when conditions were particularly hazardous.

Mr. Warburg, who is Chairman of the board, said that the bank felt justified in hoping a solid structure might rapidly spring up from the foundation carefully laid by the Dawes plan.

"Just as inflations and economic disintegration spread over Europe like a contagious disease," he continued, "so we may expect the healing process to spread gradually from one country to another.

"From this point of view, Austria's Germany's and Hungary's accomplished stabilization means more than the re-establishment of social and economic order in these three countries. It means that the era of wildly fluctuating exchanges is approaching its end and that soon we may hope to see king gold bringing once more under his control the printing presses that had threatened to drown Europe in a flood of paper currency. The battle in this regard was actually won when Austria, Germany and Hungary were once more placed on a gold basis."

After expressing his expectation as to the pound sterling, Mr. Warburg remarked that France, Belgium and Italy probably would determine promptly the new levels on which to stabilize their respective exchanges.

"It is realized by all that this will not be an easy matter," he added, "and that such steps will require courage and a willingness to accept the necessary sacrifices.

"It is likely that in the process of redistributing our excess holdings of gold, which would be entailed in a general return to unrestricted gold standards by other countries, the Federal Reserve System would find a new opportunity of demonstrating its worth."

George Stuart Patterson of George H. McFadden & Bro., Philadelphia, was elected a director. The senior officers were reelected and the following appointments made:

John E. Shea, Controller; C. B. Hall, Assistant Vice President; W. T. Kelly, Assistant Vice President; M. W. Williams, Auditor; E. A. Carter, Assistant Secretary; R. W. Proctor, Assistant Treasurer, and W. T. Sheehan, Assistant Treasurer.

STOCKHOLDERS CALLED TO VOTE BANK MERGER

Stockholders of the Metropolitan Trust Company have been called to meet Jan. 29 to vote on the proposal to consolidate that institution with the Chatham and Phenix National Bank. Under the proposal announced by Samuel McRoberts, President of the company, the stockholders will exchange their shares for stock of the proposed institution to be known as the Chatham and Phenix National Bank and Trust Company. This will be on the basis of two shares of Metropolitan stock for three shares in the consolidated institution. As these terms are considered favorable, officers of the company and principal stockholders are said to anticipate no delay in ratification.

A number of appointments by banks were announced yesterday. The National City Bank's Board of Directors made Harry E. Henneman assistant Vice President, and Kenneth W. Banta, William M. Fulkerson and William G. Price assistant cashiers.

Trustees of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company re-elected Clarence H. Kelsey as Chairman of the Board and Clinton D. Burdick as President. John T. Egan, in charge of the company's business department, 176 Broadway, was elected Assistant Secretary. At their annual meeting, stockholders elected as trustees Frank Bailey, Edward T. Bedford, Charles S. Brown, Clinton D. Burdick, Ranald H. Macdonald, William E. Knox, Frederick W. Rowe, S. Brinckerhoff Thorne, and William H. Wheelock.

The National Surety Company announced the re-election of all officers and directors. Joseph T. McGee and M. O. Garner were named general counsel, and Arthur H. Fayers was named managing director of the fidelity claim department.

The New York Indemnity Company announced the election of E. Roland Harriman as a director. All officers and directors were re-elected.

Brooklyn Commerce Chamber Asks Funds to Obtain Counsel.

The Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce has sent notices to many of the large concerns of Brooklyn calling their attention to the proposed increase in freight rates by trunk line railroads out of New York to New England and asking contributions toward a fund to fight the proposal. The chamber declares that if the increases, ranging "anywhere from 10 per cent. to 60 per cent," go into effect, the concerns "will find their merchandise will be unable to compete in present markets because of greater landed costs of these markets."

New England shippers, the notice says, have already raised $6,000, "with more pledged, to protect their interests." Buffalo and Rochester have contributed $25,000, Manhattan $20,000 and Queens $5,000. The chamber asks $10,000 from Brooklyn concerns. The first hearing in the case will be held on Feb. 4 at Washington. The money will be used to employ counsel. A general investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the rate structure of the railroads is pending.

National Surety Surplus Increases.

Gross premiums of $27,381,574 in 1924, an increase of $1,224,116 or 4.6 per cent. over 1923, were reported yesterday by the National Surety Company at its annual stockholders' meeting. Net premiums were $17,007,057, a gain of about $500,000. After paying $300,000 in dividends, the surplus of the company increased $2,067,436.

HUNGARIANS SEEK LOAN.

Negotiations are under way, banking circles say, for a large loan to the Rima Steel Corporation of Hungary. F. J. Lisman & Co., bankers of 20 Exchange Place, are reported to be in charge of the plan. Formal announcement later in the week is expected.

The Rima concern is one of the largest in the steel industry of Middle Europe. It was originally formed in 1881. Some 12,000 workmen are employed by it in iron and steel manufactures, the mining of ore, coal and limestone, and in lumbering.

Should the financing go through, it will represent the third loan of importance and size to the steel masters of Europe within a few months and the first industrial financing for Hungary in this country. The "economic fuel" needed by Middle Europe steel plants is being provided by the sale of bonds to American investors. These bonds represent a full, closed first mortgage on the properties.

To Redeem $4,750,000 Gold Notes.

Announcement was made yesterday that the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad has called for redemption on March 1 of its $4,750,000 of 6 per cent. secured gold notes due March 1, 1930. The notes will be redeemed at par and accrued interest. Officials said there would be no new financing, although $5,000,000 of improvements are contemplated during 1925.

Have You Considered the Inevitable Future for the Industry of

A New Industry—Already Well Established—But Still In Its Infancy—

This is the age of electricity, and its adaptation to refrigeration was a natural development. The constantly increasing popularity of electric refrigerators proves that they will, in a short space of time, be adopted universally. It is inevitable. They are no longer a novelty or an extravagance. They stand for hygiene and efficiency.

The field has hardly been scratched as yet when we consider that every ice-cream store—restaurant—dairy—butcher shop—florist—grocery store—delicatessen—apartment house and private home is a potential buyer. The present position of the industry is analogous to that of the automobile industry twenty-five years ago or the radio industry five years ago. The field for expansion is larger and the industry has more stability because its product is not a luxury or a novelty but a public necessity filling a crying need. There are only a few outstanding companies in this coming industry and their growth should be phenomenal. New fortunes will be made by a new generation—this generation.

We have compiled a pamphlet on the industry, treating specifically of the market possibilities of the stocks of some of the leading companies. We shall be pleased to furnish a copy upon request.

TRADING IN STOCKS TAMEST IN MONTHS

BUOYANCY NOW MISSING

Pools and Professional Operators Have Become Cautious About Large Offers.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange fell yesterday to the lowest rate of any day since the election, when the bull market started. The turnover was 1,153,211 shares for the five-hour day, a figure which has been exceeded at least three times in the two-hour sessions of Saturdays since the bull market started. One cause of the slowing down was the storm, which kept many people out of the Wall Street district, but another factor of equal importance was that the market appears to have lost its buoyancy and that pools and professional operators, interested in advancing stocks, are cautious about putting in very large orders. Liquidation of some stocks in the estate of the late Daniel G. Reid was reported a market factor.

Trading was so dull yesterday and in such small lots that many times during the day the ticker stopped entirely for as long as a minute or so between quotations. Most of the sales, too, were in lots of 100, 200 and 300 shares. And since the Wall Street machinery has been geared up to a market of 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 shares, the slow trading of the day appeared even slower than it was.

There was no break in the market. Prices merely sagged lower, the industrial issues declining with the railroad shares. There were two or three distinct rallies during the day, but these were not of sufficient importance and strength to pull the market out of the doldrums, and a loss of .67 was established for the day on the railroad shares and of .69 on industrial, fifty representative stocks reflecting a decline of .68 for the day.

In the late afternoon there was exceptionally good buying in the so-called "rich men's" stocks, that is, issues which sell around $150 to $200 a share. But this buying, too, was on a small scale and did not rally the market very far. So far as a canvass of the brokerage houses in Wall Street disclosed, the storm did not have any material effect on outside communication with Wall Street. There were no reports of wire trouble.

RAILWAY PROTESTS VALUATION FIGURES

St. Louis-San Francisco Officials Declare $186,337,065 Is Far Too Low.

Officials of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Company declared in a statement yesterday that they would protest the $186,337,065 valuation of their property by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Not only will they declare that the valuation is too low, but they propose to show that the price fixing and depreciation methods used by the commission in its findings are unfair and unjust. It is pointed out that the valuation barely covers the funded debt and leaves little or no book value for the common stock, which during 1924 earned approximately $12 a share.

The protest by the St. Louis-San Francisco, to be filed by the middle of September, will contest practically every section of the tentative valuation report of the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is, however, considered only as one step in a long legal fight which the St. Louis-San Francisco is proposing to make on its valuation. The railroad has claimed a valuation of $429,000,000, but this includes a number of subsidiary lines not yet valued by the commission, as well as some $54,000,000 of improvements made by the company since 1918.

"The company will particularly protest against the price fixing and depreciation methods used by the commission in its findings," says the statement. "Although the valuation was made as of June 30, 1918, the commission used prewar prices in effect from 1909 to 1914 in determining the value of each piece of property or equipment, and further, they have depreciated the property from time of construction to date of valuation approximately $40,000,000, although the property was greatly improved during this period, and has appreciated instead of depreciated in value. The depreciation arrived at in connection with equipment was in addition to the depreciation that the company had written off monthly, the commission's figures being over and above the depreciation that the company had set up on its books.

"Since June 30, 1918, the valuation date, the additional investment in road and equipment amounts to over $54,000,000, which sum must, of course, be added to the tentative valuations of the commission."

COLUMBIA GAS & ELECTRIC.

Net earnings and other income of the Columbia Gas and Electric Company for 1924 were $13,720,131, compared with $11,483,534. The year was the most successful in the history of the company, according to a preliminary report issued yesterday by Philip G. Gossler, President. Gross earnings of the company for the period was $26,727,581, compared with $21,002,989 the previous year.

In his report to stockholders President Gossler said that satisfactory progress was being made on the Miami Fort generating station and that a new 20-inch gas main from the western terminus of the main line from West Virginia to Cincinnati had been constructed.

American Wholesale Earnings.

The American Wholesale Corporation reports gross sales of $28,561,023 in 1924 as against $32,600,408 in 1923. After all expenses and estimated reserves for taxes, the company reports net income of $1,080,734, against $1,848,583 in the previous year. The net income for the year 1924, after allowing for preferred dividends, equaled $5.67 a share, earned on 96,504 shares of common stock outstanding, against $13.79 a share earned on 96,904 shares outstanding at the close of 1923. The company reports a profit and loss surplus of $2,771,128 as of Dec. 31, 1924, after adjustments, as against one of $2,268,794 at the close of 1923.

Baking Plants Change Hands.

The properties of the Consumers' Baking Company, with plants at Paterson and Harrison, N. J., have been acquired by the Continental Baking Corporation, according to a statement issued yesterday by George G. Barber, Chairman of the board. Richard Meyer, President of the New Jersey companies, will remain with the Continental organization.

Hide & Leather Meeting Adjourned.

The special meeting of the stockholders of the American Hide and Leather Company has been adjourned until Feb. 3. Then more details of the company's recapitalization, ordered by the New Jersey courts in connection with the injunction hearings in the suit of Clarence H. Venner, will be presented.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Italian Lira Sags Further—Sterling and Continentals Dull and Heavy—Session Quiet.

Foreign exchanges were easier all around yesterday, the Italian lira being particularly heavy and sagging to a new low on the present movement, to 3.00¼ cents, a 5-point decline from Monday's final. Local agencies of Italian banks made an effort to halt the reaction in the forenoon, but once this buying ceased the way was reopened for fresh selling, which forced the rate lower.

Business in sterling and the Continentals was small, with consequent narrow fluctuations. London checks moved over a range of five-eighths of a cent, closing at $4.77¼, for a decline of ⅛ cent from previous close. French francs yielded two points to 5.39 cents, likewise the Belgian, Holland and Scandinavian currencies.

Far Easterns and South Americans were steady.

TEXAS CO. MEETS INCREASE

Reports From Wortham Field Say That Production There Has Begun to Wane.

The Louisiana Oil Refining Company, formerly the Invincible Oil Corporation, and the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, announced yesterday advances of 10 to 20 cents a barrel in Smackover crude oil. The advance was met by the Texas Company.

Under the new schedule the Louisiana and the Standard companies are paying $1.15 a barrel for crude of 28 gravity and $1.10 for 26 to 27.9 gravity. The price for 25 to 25.9 gravity was unchanged. All grades mentioned are of the Smackover light crude.

Advices were also received that the smaller companies in the mid-continent district another 10 cents a barrel. The field have advanced crude oil in that district another 10 cents a barrel. The smaller companies are paying as much as 35 cents a barrel above the price offered by the Prairie Oil & Gas Company and the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company, the two largest purchasing agencies in the field. In view of this situation, it is expected that the two companies mentioned will soon announce an advance in mid-continent grades.

According to the information, the Champlin Refining Company and the Balance Refining Company are now paying $1.60 a barrel for Tonkawa crude, an advance of 10 cents a barrel. The two companies have been taking oil at the rate of 16,000 barrels daily from the Tonkawa field.

The New York News Bureau received a dispatch from Fort Worth, Texas, saying that crude oil production in the Wortham field dropped to 138,000 barrels from eighty-six wells, a decline of 6,000 barrels, compared with the report received on Monday and of almost 30,000 barrels from the peak level reported from seventy-three wells last Thursday. The drop of 6,000 barrels was recorded despite the fact that three new wells were brought in.

It was further reported that sixty-one more wells are to be drilled into the sand this week, but of this number six are expected to be dry holes. It is also expected that fifteen of the wells will show initial production of about 500 barrels per well and the balance between 1,200 and 1,500 barrels. Several wells in the field are said to be showing basic sediment and water.

The opinion is expressed that the Wortham field has exhausted its influence on the crude oil market and that it may be looked upon as a thing of the past. On Dec. 7 the daily average production of seven wells was 4,574 barrels per well. On Jan. 4, 1925, the daily average of twenty-seven wells was 3,835 barrels each, while the most recent field report shows that eighty-six wells produced an average of about 1,600 barrels each.

DIVIDEND DECLARED ON RADIATOR STOCK

EXTRA ON PLATE GLASS

Pittsburgh Company Declares 5 Per Cent. Quarterly in Addition to 2 Per Cent.

Directors of the American Radiator Company declared yesterday a regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share on the common stock, payable March 31, to stockholders of record March 14. This is the first dividend to be paid on the company's common stock since the distribution of a 50 per cent. stock dividend paid on Dec. 31, and is equal to $1.50 a share on the old stock. The directors yesterday also declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock, payable Feb. 16, to stockholders of record Jan. 21.

An extra dividend of 5 per cent., in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent., was declared yesterday on the stock of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company. The regular dividend is payable April 1, and the extra dividend is payable Feb. 15.

The Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain and Ireland, Ltd., according to dispatches received in Wall Street, declared a final dividend of 7½ per cent. and a bonus of 7½ per cent. on the ordinary shares for the year ended Oct. 31, making a distribution of 22½ per cent. for the year, against 20 per cent. in the previous year.

Directors of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share on the capital stock, payable Feb. 16, to stockholders of record Jan. 30. It was expected that a statement covering earnings for the year 1924 would be issued following yesterday's directors' meeting, but it was explained that this statement would be delayed for a short time, due to the taking of inventory by the Bassick-Alemite Company, which was acquired by Stewart-Warner last year.

The Melville Shoe Corporation yesterday announced the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. on the company's preferred stock and 50 cents a share on the common stock, both dividends being payable Feb. 1, to stockholders of record Jan. 23.

Directors of the Beech-Nut Packing Company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the Class B preferred stock, payable April 15, to stockholders of record April 1; also the quarterly dividend of 3 per cent. on the common stock, payable April 10, to stockholders of record March 25.

LIQUIDATING REID STOCKS.

The selling in certain prominent speculative stocks on the Stock Exchange, which resulted in a reaction in prices, was due, according to reports in the financial district yesterday, to liquidation of speculative accounts formerly held by the late Daniel G. Reid, tin plate king, who died last Saturday.

Among the stocks being liquidated for the account of the Reid estate, Lehigh Valley, American Can, General Motors, Reading, New York Central and a few of the speculative issues were mentioned. In addition to the sales taken on the Stock Exchange floor, it was reported that several large pools operating in certain stocks have negotiated to take over Reid's speculative holdings privately, rather than have them dumped upon the market.

Live Stock Markets at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—An early advance of 10@15 cents in hog prices, due to much smaller receipts than expected, 30,000, was mostly lost before the close, as leading packers again refused to follow advances. Shippers took about one-third of the day's arrivals. About 18,000 were carried over unsold, with 38,000 estimated for tomorrow. The top was $11, with the day's average price up 10 cents, at $10.30. Leading packers held off in buying fat lambs until the last and were able to fill their wants at 25@35 cents decline after an early advance of 10@15 cents. An early top of $19.25 was out of line with the late market. Aged sheep were scarce and unchanged; receipts were 15,000. Beef cattle were generally slow and steady, with receipts 11,000.

Warns Insurance Bonus "Sellers."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Warning to war veterans that bonus insurance policies cannot be sold and at present have no loan value was issued today by Director Hines of the Veterans Bureau. He said reports of attempts to sell certificates had reached him. After two years the certificates may be used as security for a loan. Persons who buy the insurance certificates also were warned that a veteran, if paid to designate a beneficiary, might later designate another under the law.

U. S. LEADS WORLD IN USE OF COTTON

The United States is the world's largest consumer of raw cotton. For one purpose or another Americans use about twice as much as the next nearest country, notwithstanding that Great Britain, which consumes half as much cotton as this country does, possesses about 56,000,000 spindles, against 37,000,000 in place in the United States. American per capita consumption of raw cotton amounts to about 30 pounds yearly, according to E. T. Pickard, chief of the Textile Division of the Department of Commerce, a figure far outdistancing the country of next importance, and by no means wholly attributable to the demand for clothing or goods for personal and household use.

"Cotton itself, and the by-products thereof, are used for many purposes apart from those of a more intimate character," Mr. Pickard writes in Commerce Reports. "The artificial silk, artificial leather, photographic film, celluloid, electrical and automobile trades, any many others have been contributory factors in bringing the per capita cotton consumption up to the thirty-pound figure.

"Being the world's largest producer and consumer of raw cotton, the United States today is in the incongruous position of being an important import market for foreign cotton cloths. When one realises that in the calendar year 1923 we imported close to 220,000,000 square yards of cotton cloth, a figure approximately half the quantity of our total exports of that item, the significance of the statement is emphasized. It is true that the total imports of cotton cloths into the United States for the first nine months of 1924 have declined somewhat, but, on the other hand, that class of goods with which are are mostly competitively concerned — unbleached goods—is being received in increasing quantities monthly.

"There are two ways in which the gap between the volume of our imports and exports of cotton cloths may be widened. The first is to reduce the quantity of imports—a question of economics, technique, mill adaptability and, possibly, tariff adjustment. The other method is to increase our exports—a task involving not alone a strong appeal, but requiring a will to achieve, backed by the sympathetic support of mill executives and selling organizations.

"To participate successfully in foreign trade one must have a background of facts and current information on various markets, and, assuming that those cotton-goods houses which desire to institute or expand an export business have either gained or hired experience in foreign trade, I will not touch upon those various and varying factors which define the difference between the passive, apathetic exporter and the go-getter. On the other hand, I merely propose to offer some figures indicating some of our important markets.

"For the first nine months of 1924 American exports of cotton cloths amounted to 335,000,000 square yards, approximately 12,000,000 less than we exported in the same period of 1923. The present movement, nevertheless, seems to be on the increase, and, considering informal reports of prospective business and orders in hand, it is reasonable to conclude that at the end of the year 1924 some advance over the exports of 1923 will be recorded.

"When we think of exports of cotton goods our minds naturally turn toward such conventional and time-honored markets as Latin America and the Near East. Is it realized by very many that in one month we shipped unbleached cotton cloths in amounts of 163,000 square yards to Greece, 54,000 to England, 80,000 to some of the Balkans, 1,154,000 to Canada, 751,000 to Salvador, 350,000 to Jamaica, 457,000 to Haiti, 1,261,000 to Chile, 390,000 to India, 94,000 to British East Africa and 80,000 to the Canary Islands? Is it realized that our exports of cloth to Egypt, the Netherlands East Indies and Singapore—to mention but a few—are practically nil, whereas the imports of cotton cloths into those countries represent their chief item of business?

"Even in bleached goods we have shipped in certain months 68,000 square yards to Newfoundland and Labrador, 42,000 to China, 24,000 to Japan, 13,000 to Palestine, 95,000 to Australia, 36,000 to French Oceania and 187,000 to British East Africa, exclusive of those countries which may be regarded as major outlets.

"Do we realize that in one month we exported 55,000 square yards of printed goods to England, 754,000 to South America, 2,355,000 to Cuba, 215,000 to Venezuela, 40,000 to British India, 36,000 to China, 2,961,000 to the Philippines and 68,000 to French Oceania, while smaller quantities, which might be increased with some little effort, have gone to Korea, Japan, Egypt, Liberia, British Guiana, Greece, Bulgaria, Norway and other destinations?

"In colored goods we have a similar catalogue and, in some phases, even more interesting. I venture that comparatively few of our producers and exporters appreciate that we export piece-dyed cotton goods more or less regularly to Denmark, Finland, Greece, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, England, Labrador, India, Ceylon, Straits Settlements, China, the Netherlands East Indies, Hongkong and the Belgian Congo.

"This country, under present conditions and those likely to prevail in the immediate future, has a capacity to produce at least 20 per cent. in excess of domestic requirements. There is no magic in the process. On the other hand, determined effort consistently applied will, I am sure, yield the same results in the United States as have been experienced in Italy, where last year more cotton was consumed than ever before in the country's history, where for more than two years there has been freedom from strikes and lockouts, and where, by the application of will and industry, exports have been increased from approximately 20 per cent. of the total production two years ago to approximately 50 per cent. of the production this year."

NATIONAL AMERICAN BANK IN NEW HANDS

MOVE BY TEXTILE INDUSTRY

It was announced yesterday that the National American Bank, 8 West Fortieth Street, had been acquired through purchase of a controling interest of its capital stock by a syndicate headed by Chester A. Braman, President, and Robert Westaway, Treasurer of A. D. Juilliard & Co., Inc., Barron G. Collier and Lamar Hardy.

As in the case of the National Butchers and Drovers' Bank, which has gone into control of textile interests, the National American Bank has been absorbed by the trade to which it catered primarily under its former ownership. The transaction was said to mark another milestone in the growth in importance of the textile industry in New York City. Since the war this industry has gone forward so rapidly as to require banking services within the trade itself to take care of the expansion.

Ownership of the National American Bank was turned over to the new owners yesterday. Changes in the directorate to permit representation by the owners will be made tomorrow at the annual stockholders' meeting. This meeting was scheduled for last Tuesday, with other national bank meetings, but was adjourned because of the impending change. Julian M. Gerard, now President of the bank, will in all probability be named as his own successor, it was said, and no general change in administration is contemplated.

A. D. Juilliard & Co., Inc., is one of the largest commission houses and textile manufacturers in the United States, having a capital of $35,000,000 and owning large cotton mills in the South, silk mills in New Jersey and woolen mills in New England. New York headquarters of the company were recently moved to 40 West Fortieth Street after sixty years' location in the downtown dry goods district. Chester A. Braman, head of the company and of its eight mill corporations, is a trustee of the Bowery Savings Bank and a director of several industrial corporations. Mr. Westaway has been with the Juilliard firm for a number of years.

Mr. Collier is President of the Street Railways Advertising Company and of the Florida Railway and Navigation Company, a director of the Empire Trust Company, and also of many industrial concerns.

Lamar Hardy came into prominence principally through his office of Corporation Counsel under the late Mayor John Purroy Mitchel. He is an attorney, a trustee of the East River Savings Institution, director of the Chelsea Exchange Bank and Cosmopolitan Bank, and is the legal representative of a number of corporations.

Southern Railway's Income Rises.

ASSOCIATED GAS AND ELECTRIC COMPANY within the last few weeks has added to its public utility system the properties shown above. This system now serves a combined population of over 500,000 in New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Kentucky, Tennessee, New Hampshire, Vermont, Ohio and Maine.

ASSOCIATED GAS AND ELECTRIC COMPANY is a New York Corporation formed in 1906 and its constituent properties have a long record of continuous successful operation—the largest for over 72 years. Its consumers of electric light, gas and miscellaneous services in these nine states now exceed 112,000.

Its present gross earnings of over $8,000,000 annually represent an increase of approximately 80% since 1919, reflecting both the expansion of the field of operations and the intensive development of the territories served. The Company's net earnings have increased in even greater proportion and at the present annual rate of nearly $2,600,000 show an advance of 100% since 1919.

As a result of sound expansion and efficient management large equities have been built up for all the Company's securities and the margin of earnings over dividend and interest requirements has steadily increased.

The record of Associated Gas and Electric Company is a chronicle of sound and steady growth, both in physical property and earnings. Its financial structure is conservative and the investment merit of its securities has been firmly established.

LOS ANGELES BONDS DRAW SIX BIDDERS

First National Bank of New York Said to Have Made the Highest Offer.

TO BE ANNOUNCED TODAY

Rumors of Two New Public Utility Issues, Each to Carry $20,000,000.

The offering by the City of Los Angeles of $11,000,000 of new bonds drew bids from six banking syndicates. The award was complicated by the different coupon rates mentioned in these bids, and up to a late hour there was doubt as to which syndicate would win. The one headed by the First National Bank of New York, according to late advices, had tendered the high bid, and it was said that this bid had been accepted, although formal announcement was not expected until this morning.

Reports were heard yesterday that two new public utility issues, each of $20,000,000, were contemplated. These were said to be for the Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company and the Jersey Central Power and Light Company. Confirmation in both instances was lacking.

A new issue of $500,000 Omaha, Neb., 4½ per cent. bonds is made today by W. A. Harriman & Co., Inc., and Kean, Taylor & Co. The bonds are due as follows: $100,000 on Jan. 15, 1931; $200,000 on Jan. 15, 1940, and are priced to yield 4.20 per cent.

Estabrook & Co. are offering $242,000 of 4½s per cent. bonds for the same maturity. This issue matures on Feb. 1, 1945, and is priced at 104 to yield 4.20 per cent.

Dillon, Read & Co. and Hemphill, Noyes & Co. announced yesterday that the issue of $2,500,000 Consolidated Cigar Corporation three-year 6 per cent. gold notes offered by them had been sold.

Maturities of the new issue of $1,250,000 Baltimore County, Maryland, 4½ per cent. public school and road bonds offered by Alex Brown & Sons of Baltimore were sold yesterday to be Feb. 1, 1927-1949. The bonds are priced to yield 4.10 to 4.15 per cent.

Offering of $912,000 North Dakota rural credit 5 per cent. bonds due at intervals from Jan. 1, 1935, to Jan. 1, 1950, at prices to yield 4.50 per cent., is made by Eldredge & Co., Stevenson, Perry, Stacy & Co., Wells-Dickey Company, the Minnesota Loan and Trust Company, the Minneapolis Trust Company, Lane, Piper & Jaffray, Inc., and the Merchants Trust and Savings Bank of St. Paul.

A block of $500,000 United States Government Panama Canal Loan registered 2 per cent. bonds priced to yield 3.13 per cent. is offered by J. A. Sisto & Co.

C. W. McNear & Co. are offering $200,000 Calcasieu Parish, La., 5½ per cent. bonds due Oct. 1, 1932-1943 at prices to yield 4.80 per cent.

COLOMBIA'S PLACE IN COFFEE EXPORTS

If a flock of sheep in Abyssinia, long ago, had not eaten of a certain herb when it was green, and shown by wild gambols unseemly to a staid group of muttons that they had found a source of exhilaration, perhaps then the world would never have known of coffee. This is the legend of the discovery of coffee; but it is a far cry from that time—in the fifteenth century—when sheep were the procurers of coffee, to the present when the production and the shipping of the bean is a vast and well organized industry. It is in the interests of coffee growers in Colombia, South America, that Samuel Williams is now in the United States. During Mr. Williamson's stay in New York City he will be at Hotel Pennsylvania.

"I have come," explained Mr. Williamson, "as an agent of the Minister of Industries in Colombia, to consult with the officers of Information and Propaganda maintained by my country in the United States. After investigating conditions here, I will go to Europe, where I will stay about a year, spending the time chiefly in England and in France.

"The purpose of my visit to these countries is to find out in what condition coffee should be shipped in order to be best received by the people; to discover how it should be treated, and how packed to suit market conditions."

From the last complete figures available, those of 1904, Colombia seems to have the honor of second place of the countries of the world in the amount of coffee exported. In that year she sent out to other nations more than 130,000,000 pounds of coffee, thus outstripping all competing producers except Brazil.

"Our coffee crop this year will not be so great as had been anticipated," continued Mr. Williamson. "We had expected to have our production reach the goal of 2,000,000 bags, but due to the dry weather in the early growing months our expectations will not be fulfilled. About 1,600,000 bags will be the amount grown.

"Four varities of coffee are grown in Columbia—Bogata, Medellin, Girardot and Buiaramanja. The distinctive characteristic of the coffee of our country is that it is mild. The mildness or strength of coffee is due somewhat to the conditions under which it is grown, but more particularly to the process of cleaning and drying. If the beans, which are of a soft, semi-translucent texture are not thoroughly dried, fermentation sets in, and thus causes the acid taste which distinguishes 'strong' coffee.

"When I refer to drying the coffee, I do not mean roasting it. This can only be done a short time before the coffee is to be consumed, otherwise the aroma of the coffee is lost. All the coffee is shipped from Columbia in its raw state, and in this condition the best quality of the bean is known by its pear-like, greenish tint.

"San Francisco, New Orleans and New York are the chief ports to which coffee is sent from Colombia. The first named city is growing vastly in importance as a receiver of coffee from Colombia. Shipment is made from Beunaventura, on the Pacific, to which city a railroad has just been built across the mountains from the South, where the coffee is grown. Consumption of coffee seems to be increasing rapidly in the United States, and the amount taken in by San Francisco, particularly, has grown tremendously within the last few years. The United States uses nearly one-half of the coffee exported from the producing countries of the world, and the consumption per capita is the largest of any other nation outside of Norway, Sweden and Holland."

Sponge Iron Process Established.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The Bureau of Mines announced today that experiments at its Seattle station in the production of sponge iron had reached the "point where it is believed that industrial applications of the process can be safely considered for the production of sponge iron as a metallurgical re-agent for precipitation of copper, lead and numerous other metals from solution."

NEW FOREIGN LOANS ARE EXPECTED HERE

CUBA PLANS BOND ISSUE

Contemplated New East-West Highway Will Cost About $40,000,000.

Negotiations were reported yesterday to be under way for several new foreign loans. The City of Hamburg is said to be in the market for a loan of about $10,000,000. It was reported that a short-term credit would be extended initially, as in the case of the City of Berlin loan, to be replaced later by a long-term issue. Two German industrial loans said to be impending were for the Haniel and Siamen's groups of Germany.

Poland and Rumania also were reported as probable borrowers.

Bankers heard yesterday that a bill had been introduced in Cuba to provide for the construction of a new east-west highway, the cost to be defrayed through the insurance of $40,000,000 of bonds. The project has been under consideration for about two years. The chief beneficiaries would be tourists and shippers, who could augment their rail delivery services by means of motor trucks for short hauls. As in the case of past Cuban loans, it is expected that New York bankers will await the approval of the State Department at Washington before negotiating to underwrite the proposed issue.

Poland's Efforts for Loan.

WARSAW, Jan 20 (Associated Press).—"Poland is negotiating direct with the Dillon-Read group of financiers in the United States concerning a $50,000,000 loan, to be amortised during a period of twenty-five years," said Vice Finance Minister Klaner today after Premier Grabski had made a report to the committee of the Diet at a secret session concerning the loan.

"The interest," M. Klaner continued, "will be 8 per cent. per annum, while the emission rate of the bonds will be considerably higher than previously mentioned. The loan may be given to Poland in two instalments, the first to be paid immediately after signing the contract and the second not later than Aug. 1, 1925.

"The loan cannot be used in any case for budget purposes, but only for investments and giving credit help to industrialists and agrarians. It is obvious that the loan in passing through the Bank of Poland will serve as backing for increasing the present amount of currency in circulation. Payment of interest and amortisation instalments are guaranteed by revenues from Polish sugar excises."

The cities of Warsaw, Cracow and Czenstochowa have also obtained a loan of $10,000,000.

The Cabinet today accepted the conditions of the consolidation of the Polish debt to Great Britain as agreed upon at a recent conference between delegates representing both countries.

Southern Iron Leases Property.

At the annual meeting of the Southern Coal and Iron Corporation in Roanoke, Va., yesterday, plans were approved for increasing the concentration mills at its Rittenhouse Gap iron properties to a 2000-ton daily basis. Negotiations for leasing its 7,700-acre Catawba iron properties in Virginia to the Pulaski Iron Company of Philadelphia were concluded.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Cash markets were firm yesterday, relatively few changes being reported on the day's business. The steadiness in the grains was attributable to the fact that after rushing widly forward during the last week, a temporary halt in the buying wave had brought the advance to a halt. Groceries, provisions, metals and textiles were all firm.

Following are the cash prices for the principal commodities in the wholesale market at the close of business Tuesday, a week before and a year ago. Prices are those of the New York cash market, unless otherwise indicated:

If your estate is chiefly in fixed assets

7 ways a business man can protect his family and property

PROMPT and well considered action is indispensable if an estate, consisting chiefly of real estate, business interests and other fixed assets, is to be protected from serious loss upon the death of the owner.

Two especially important points are involved:—

1 Income and inheritance taxes may, within one year after the owner's death, require the disbursement of ready cash in large amounts for which no provision has been made.

2 Fixed assets left without a plan for their preservation must, as a rule, be sold, and the proceeds partitioned into fractions for the heirs. In this case there is always a risk of serious sacrifice in value.

The hazard of leaving an estate unprotected is so great that you will want to refer to this helpful booklet and Guide Chart today. Write, telephone or call at the bank.

Among our "Seven Ways to Protect Your Family and Property" you will find three provisions which entirely solve these problems—Plans No. 1, No. 2 and No. 5. Whatever your situation, one or more of these plans will help you.

OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK

BROAD and BEAVER STREETS

115 BROADWAY 20 EAST 45th STREET

Why you should make a will

1. Only by a will, can you designate to whom your property shall go; preserve any part of it, such as real estate or a business interest, in existing form; and protect principal and insure income for your beneficiaries.
2. If you die without a will, your property will be liquidated and distributed according to the laws of the State, and your family will be involved in the intricacies of court procedure at the very time when these details are most distressing.
3. But even if you make a will, there are more than thirty technical steps involved in the settlement of an estate which must be taken by whomever you designate as executor.
4. As a practical man, will you load this responsibility on the shoulders of your wife or a son or a friend? Or will you give it to a financially responsible corporation—a group of men in the business of executing wills and administering trusts?
5. The Equitable was founded primarily to act as executor under wills and trustees of inheritances. It can settle your estate and protect your family faithfully, wisely, and economically.
6. But if you should wish to bring in the intimate knowledge and personal interest of an individual, you may make The Equitable co-executor and trustee to provide the professional experience, financial responsibility, organization, and uninterrupted service necessary to the complete discharge of the duties which you some day must pass on to others.
7. Although the drawing of a will is a legal service which this Company as a corporation cannot render, there are personal and practical questions concerning the disposition and management of an estate upon which our advice may be useful to you.
8. For example, if you already have made a will, or contemplate making a new one, we shall be glad to review its provisions from the business and administrative standpoint, and all information in our possession is available to enable you to determine the best provisions for your lawyer to incorporate therein.
9. Our booklet, "How to Protect your Estate and your Family" will be mailed on request together with our "Will Memorandum," which outlines in a convenient form all the points to be covered in a will. But you are invited to come directly to any of our offices and talk to a trust officer—in entire confidence and without obligation.

How to make a will with the least trouble

Just send for our outline of points to be covered in drawing a will and fill in the spaces.

Then give it to your lawyer.

COTTON IS STEADY IN QUIET TRADING

Professional Covering Brings Rise After Selling From the South.

FOREIGN ADVICES DISTURB

After a slight early advance, cotton moved within narrow limits yesterday and ended 7 points lower on January to 5 points higher on October. Trading continued the smallest of the season, with a limited outside interest. Census figures showed 494,000 bales of linters produced to the end of December, compared with 402,000 last year. As the total crop of linters amounted to 670,000 bales last season, this was taken as an indication of a substantial increase in linters as well as lint cotton this year. Cable advices stated that there was a talk in Manchester that the Federation of Master Spinners would recommend a return to shorter working hours in Lancashire. Exports aggregated 40,000 bales, 4,000 being shipped out of the local stock.

Routine price fixing by domestic mills furnished sufficient demand in early trading to carry May to 24.20, or more than a quarter of a cent from low figures of the previous day. This rally brought some Southern selling and the execution of January orders which supplied contracts. The selling of January was in part by houses that took up actual cotton on contracts earlier in the month and evidently were re-tendering a portion not wanted. Private advices from England on the volume of forward business had an unsettling influence later in the session, May working back to 24 cents before meeting resistance. This represented the extreme range for the day, as professional operators covered during the afternoon, which brought prices back to previous closing levels. There were more January contracts for sale, which left that month at a slight loss in the final trading.

Another storm swept over Atlantic Coast regions, bringing heavy rains in sections east of the River. Almost no rainfall was reported in Texas, Oklahoma or Arkansas. Government records for Texas show a total precipitation for October, November and December of 3.12 inches, compared with a normal for this period of 7.17 inches and 13.29 inches during the corresponding three months last year. With the exception of 1917, when figures showed only 1.60 inches received, this represents the extreme deficiency in moisture reported during the past thirty-seven years.

HUNT D. G. REID'S WILL.

Order Granted Also to Open Vault for That of E. M. Morgan

Surrogate O'Brien issued orders yesterday to open private safe deposit vaults in a search for the wills of Daniel G. Reid, noted financier, and Postmaster Edward M. Morgan.

Mr. Reid's will is thought to be in his vault at the Astor Safe Deposit Company, 501 Fifth Avenue, and Postmaster Morgan's at the 144th Street branch of the Chatham and Phoenix National Bank. Robert Walker, attorney for Mr. Reid, and Mrs. Frances J. Morgan, widow of the Postmaster, received the orders.

FOR BETTER PRODUCTION.

Improved Methods of Making Resin and Turpentine Inaugurated.

Resin and turpentine producers are adopting better methods of operation that will reduce waste, correct abuses in the industry and improve the quality of the products as a result of the naval stores' demonstration work at resin and turpentine stills throughout the South, according to reports coming to the Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture.

The bulk of the resin and turpentine produced in this country is made at the smaller places, where wasteful methods of operation and improper methods of handling have gradually grown up. Often two or three gallons of turpentine per charge, valued at $2 to $3 a charge, are lost because of inadequate or faulty methods of handling. For a one-still plant this would amount to from $6 to $9 a day, and the loss would increase in proportion to the number of stills in operation.

Overheating the still or improper straining will so affect the color of resin as to lower it two or three grades, and as the color of resin is a basis for its grading and price the loss incurred may amount to $2 to $5 per charge, or a loss of $6 to $15 a day. The field work of the season just closed was carried on at individual stills where demonstrations were given adapted specifically to the still under consideration.

DROP IN PER CAPITA CROP.

U. S. Population Gains Faster Than Agricultural Production.

Crop production in the United States is not keeping pace with the annual increase in population, according to figures just released by the United States Department of Agriculture. Total crop production has increased 13 per cent. during the last twelve years, but production per capita has increased only 5 per cent.

The mass of crop production in 1924 as measured by the index number is 113 per cent. of the average for the five-year period 1910-14, and in 1923 the figure was 110 per cent. The index of crop production per capita in 1924 is 95 per cent. of the average for the five-year period, and in 1923 the index figure was 94 per cent.

There was a decrease of about one-fifth of 1 per cent. in acreage of crops from 1923 to 1924, but production in this period increased 1 per cent. The trend of crop production per capita has been lagging since about 1915, with the exception of 1920, the department says.

HEAVY SALES HALT NEW RISE IN WHEAT

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—All deliveries of wheat sold at a new high for the season today, and while there was immense profit taking, the close was strong, with net gains of ¼@⅝ cent. It was a market in which individual operations counted for little and commission houses were active on both sides. The demand for domestic wheat other than from mills was slow, with sales of 200,000 bushels or more hard Winter at the Gulf, Italy being the buyer. Kansas City sold 115,000 bushels of wheat to mills, and in two days one mill there sold 40,000 barrels of flour, part domestic and part export, including some to Germany, the first direct business in some weeks.

Those who watch the action of the wheat market closely say that as explanation is in order as to the cause of the sudden increase in the foreign buying of cash wheat from the Southern Hemisphere.

There were intimations today that part of the buying was to fill large flour orders for Russia by Germany, and Russia was also said to have taken large quantities of Argentine product, but the figures mentioned for the latter country were too large to be believed.

At the same time the action of the market has shown that there was something more back of the immense buying than prospects of a delayed movement from Argentina, Australia or India.

Some traders are talking of a "corner" in wheat, but there is no evidence of anything other than a very tight world's situation, in either the American or foreign markets. Argentine wheat prices, c. i. f. Europe, have gained around 10 cents on American in as many days. No. 2 red sold up to 99.17½ at St. Louis and $1.06 was paid at Kansas City, while the basis at Minneapolis was 1 to 6 cents lower.

Primary arrivals today were 855,000 bushels; week ago, 1,041,000; last year, 594,000. Shipments were 798,000 bushels; week ago, 658,000; last year, 442,000.

Deferred futures of corn sold at a new high for the season early, but the market was under pressure from longs throughout the day and closed ⅛@¼ cent lower; May leading. Country offerings to arrive were large, and it was reported that Argentine corn was offered at $1.35, c. i. f. New York, duty paid.

Argentine acreage is 9,159,000 as officially reported, compared with 8,461,000 acres last year and the condition is 82.

Cash demand continues slow, with the basis steady to 1 cent lower as compared with May.

Primary arrivals were 1,187,000 bushels; week ago, 1,575,000; last year, 1,180,000, and shipments, 570,000 bushels; week ago, 605,000; last year, 604,000.

Oats closed ⅛@¾ cent lower and showed a heavy undertone throughout the day. The South has 1,880,000 acres sown in Fall oats, compared with 1,988,000 acres last season, when 61.9 per cent of the total area was Fall sown. The condition Dec. 1 was 73.9 against 90.3 in 1923.

Perlman-Sirovich Vote to Come Before January Additional Grand Jury.

As the result of a communication received yesterday by District Attorney Banton from Representative Nathan D. Perlman, Republican victor in the contest last election day in the Fourteenth Congressional District, the prosecutor ordered Chief Assistant District Attorney Pecora to subpoena again the ballots used in the Twenty-eighth Election District of the Eighth Assembly District for inspection by the January Additional Grand Jury in its investigation of frauds charged by George Rosken, a Republican tally clerk.

Mr. Perlman's letter was written on Saturday in Washington and refers to the reported reluctance of Mr. Pecora to open the ballot boxes and present them to the Grand Jury for inspection, lest a complication arise with the Congressional committee which may be appointed next March at the opening of the next session of Congress to investigate charges of irregularities made by Dr. William I. Sirovich, Democratic opponent of Mr. Perlman.

Mr. Perlman in waiving any claims along that line insists that the ballot boxes be opened. He also demands that the prosecutor subpoena before the Grand Jury "every election official of the Twenty-third Election District in the Congressional District where my Democratic opponent claims mutilations and election frauds, so that body might have before it not only the rams of a wicked mind but also the facts and the legal evidence."

Mr. Banton wrote to Mr. Perlman that he had instructed Mr. Pecora to obtain the necessary Supreme Court order and Grand Jury subpoena for the production and opening of the ballots before the Grand Jury.

Approves Niagara Power Purchase.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 20.—The Public Service Commission has approved the proposed purchase of capital stock of the Niagara Electric Company by the Niagara Falls Power Company. The power company told the commission that it would improve the road, extend the business and acquire riparian rights in the lower Niagara River through the purchase.

POWER INQUIRY REFERRED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Without a record vote, the Senate referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce today the resolution offered Dec. 29 by Senator Norris of Nebraska directing the Federal Trade Commission to investigate allegations that a power trust controls many public utility and power companies. The committee was instructed to make a report to the Senate in six days.

The resolution instructs the Trade Commission to report "the present degree of concentration and interlocution in the ownership, control, direction, financing and management, through legal or equitable ownership of stocks, bonds or other securities or instrumentalities, or through interlocking directorates, or holding companies, including trade associations, or through any other device or means whatsoever, of power companies, transmission companies, public utility companies and other companies and associations (not including telegraph companies and common carriers by rail, water or air), engaged in what is commonly known as the public utility field of business, and the extent to which banks and trust companies and companies manufacturing electrical equipment and apparatus, are interested in public utility concerns."

PUT OFF TAXI FARE CUT.

Aldermen Delay Action Pending Hearing Sought by Drivers.

Pending a public hearing, the date of which is to be determined later, the Board of Aldermen deferred action yesterday on the proposed amendment of the motor vehicle code to cut the maximum taxicab mileage rate 20 per cent and to abolish double tariff taxicab meters.

The proposed amendment was favorably reported out of the General Welfare Committee last week. A large number of taxicab men have requested the public hearing. It is proposed to make the maximum 40 cents a mile. The present figure is 50 cents for the first mile and 40 cents for each succeeding mile.

Urges Codification of Customs Laws.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20.—The necessity of a revision and codification of the customs laws was brought today to the attention of President Coolidge by Judge George R. Young of the Customs Court of Appeals. The matter will be placed before Congress at the December session.

$71,000 STOLEN BONDS RESTORED TO OWNERS

Alfred Tyrrel, chief adjuster for the National Surety Company, said yesterday that with the aid of detectives of the Old Slip Station the company had recovered $71,000 of bonds stolen from three Wall Street concerns in November. The amount of stolen securities that had not been recovered was approximately $1,000,000, he said, some of the Liberty bonds having been missing for years. About 50 per cent. of all such losses from burglaries, hold-ups and other thefts remain unrecovered, according to surety men.

Mr. Tyrrel revealed that in many instances recoveries are effected through "go-betweens" who, having served their terms for bonds thefts, are induced to give information regarding the whereabouts of stolen securities. He said one of these "go-betweens" several days ago offered to deliver $400,000 in Liberty bonds at 10 cents on the dollar. Mr. Tyrrel expects to recover these bonds as a result.

"To recover stolen securities it is essential that we work with the underworld as we know it in the financial district or its environs," said Mr. Tyrrel, who has been in the business of tracing for surety companies stolen bonds and stocks for more than thirty years.

Of the recoveries and arrests following the three November bond thefts in the financial district, $6,000 of Republic of Cuba bonds stolen from a messenger of Solomon Brothers & Hutzler were recovered; $42,000 of securities stolen from Hentz & Co. were recovered, and all but $2,000 of $35,000 of Republic of Cuba bonds stolen from a messenger of Rhoades & Co. have been recovered.

Cuts Lighting Rate in Queens.

ALBANY, Jan. 20.—The Queensborough Gas and Electric Company proposed a reduction from 12 cents to 10 cents per kilowatt hour for lighting and small power use in a schedule filed today with the Public Service Commission, the rate to become effective if approved, on meter readings from March 1. No change would be made in the minimum charge of $1 a month. The company serves the Fifth Ward of Queens and the town of Hempstead, Nassau County.

HEARING ON COMPENSATION

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 20.—The first public hearing of the joint legislative committee which will investigate the delays in the payment of workmen's compensation claims will be held at the Capitol Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Senator James L. Whitely of Rochester is Chairman of the committee. The other members are Senator Bernard Downing, Democrat, of New York; Assemblymen Charles D. Miller, Republican, of Genesee, and Russell G. Dunmore, Republican, of Oneida, and Peter A. M. Cardile, Democrat, of Kings.

All persons who have suggestions as to how the payment of claims can be expedited by the State are urged to lay them before the committee. Another hearing will be held in New York City the latter part of next week.

The resolution creating the committee was introduced by Assemblyman Miller, and was in line with the Republican legislative program. While the Democratic members of both houses voted in favor of the resolution, they contended the investigation was needless, saying the only reason for delay in the payment of claims is that the Legislature in past years has not appropriated sufficient funds to employ more workers in the Labor Department.

CAN'T READMIT CANADIANS.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Jan. 20.—Should Canada re-admit to citizenship former Canadian citizens who have received naturalization papers in other countries without imposing on them the five-year probationary period set by the laws of the British Empire, these persons would have citizenship rights only in Canada and not throughout the Empire, Secretary of State A. B. Copp said today in commenting on the movement to amend the Naturalization act.

The proposed amendment would eliminate the probationary period, which was fixed by decision of an Imperial Conference.

"Canada could enact a local Naturalization act, but the effect of such naturalization would insure only within the limits of Canada," said Secretary Copp. "For the same reason Canada could readmit expatriated Canadians, but they could have British nationality only in Canada. If this were done, there would be two kinds of nationality in Canada, one which conferred rights on the holder throughout the British Empire and elsewhere and the other limited to Canada."

SEEKS TO CURTAIL DISTRIBUTION COSTS

TRAILING A BOX OF APPLES

Somewhere Between the Grower and the Eater $3.82 Is Used Up in Service.

The pronounced discrepancy between the price the farmer gets for his products and the price paid by the ultimate consumer has been made a subject of study by the United States Department of Agriculture. This difference in price, in the case of many products, has increased in the last decade. Various explanations have been offered to account for the increase. The Department of Agriculture believes most of these explanations are incorrect because they are founded upon unreliable data.

It is often charged that the margin between prices paid to farmers and the prices exacted from consumers largely represents an unfair profit taken by distributing agencies. Studies made by the department, however, have shown that the profits taken by middlemen are an insignificant part of the total spread. Such profits seldom amount to more than 5 per cent. of the consumer's price and generally they are less than 3 per cent.

The department found that it is the cost of furnishing distributing service rather than the profit taken by the distributers that widens the spread between producers and consumers' prices. Distribution costs, it is said, amount to about 95 per cent. of the spread. This has been demonstrated by investigations which the department has made to show what portion of the retail prices accrues to each agency in the marketing chain in the case of several important commodities. It has been shown that service costs incurred in the distribution process affect consumers' prices much more than those prices are affected by fluctuations in the farm value of agricultural products. A study recently made into the margins and costs of the marketing of apples grown in the State of Washington affords a typical illustration.

Thirteen fruit shipping associations consented to furnish data regarding boxed apples marketed in the New York district. Each box of extra fancy apples brought $5 in an average retail market. The grower received only $1.18 out of this price. Out of the $1.18 he had to pay such expenses as the cost of boxes, paper, nails, labor, overhead charges, &c., amounting altogether to about 40 cents a box. Consequently the grower only received 78 cents a box after all of these expenses were paid.

From this 78 cents he had to subtract all of his expenses of production, which include such costs as pruning, spraying, irrigating, thinning, fertilizing, picking, equipment maintenance charges, hauling to central packing houses, taxes and interest on investment in orchards and equipment. These returns, it must also be remembered, apply only to the best apples, as even smaller profits were realized from the fruit of an inferior grade or smaller size.

It will be seen, therefore, that after all expenses are met the Washington grower's share of a box of apples sold in this city for $5 is pretty small. The question naturally following is: Do the transportation men engaged in seeing that this box gets to the consumer are relatively better? On this point the department does not express a definite opinion. It does, however, figure out the share of the final price which goes to defraying the cost of distributing it and it throws some light on the forces that determine the varying shares.

The retailer is credited with taking $1.87 or 37.4 per cent. of the total retail price. This is not a net profit but a gross margin. Before realizing a net profit he has to pay for the drayage in moving the box from the jobber's warehouse to the retail store, clerk hire, delivery costs, interest, credit expenses, losses from unpaid accounts, shrinkage in quantity or quality of apples, cost of wrapping material, building costs, such as rent or taxes, insurance, depreciation, &c., and other items. The chief function of the retailer is the distribution of the boxed apples to consumers in lots of less than one box. Where he must make many sales to get rid of one box his expenses are, of course, increased.

The jobber's margin is made up largely of unavoidable distribution costs. On the apples covered in this study the jobber's margin was 40 cents, or 9.8 per cent. of the total retail price. The jobber, the department points out, is very necessary to the marketing of boxed apples. He has to buy apples in central wholesale markets, transfer them to jobbing centres at his own expense, and sell them to retailers. Similarly the wholesaler, who buys in car lots and sells to jobbers in less than car lots, has to pay storage charges, unloading and handling expenses, charges for delivery to jobbers' trucks, credit expenses, and losses due to shrinkage of fruit in cold storage and in handling.

Transportation charges took 80 cents, or 19 per cent. of the total $5 retail price. Shipping organizations' market campaigns averaged 27 cents., or 5.4 per cent., of the total retail price. This margin included not only the expenses incurred in assembling and shipping apples, but also charges levied by outside agencies for selling functions. Service costs, in short, were the main cause of price spreads at every stage in the process of distribution.

Accordingly the department is making investigations to find out how these prices may be reduced. They are affected by the efficiency of methods used in handling commodities, and important influence is the business environment in which any particular distributing process is done. Another factor is the adequacy of facilities used. It has been figured out, for example, that about 25 per cent. of the trucking charge for handling fruits and vegetables in New York City is due to idle time occasioned by the use of unsuitable facilities.

Service costs, says the department, are the important point of attack in the study of price spreads. The line of advance would seem to be in the direction of improvement of handling facilities, speeding up sales processes, effecting economies in packing, transportation and handling in wholesale and retail markets. In other words, more efficient service at each stage in the marketing process offers a better prospect of increased returns to the grower than a lessening of net profits to wholesale jobbers and dealers, since these profits are only a fraction of the total price spread.

OPTIMISTIC OVER TRADE.

Dress Fabric Buyers in Convention Consider Outlook Good.

A keynote of optimism for the dress fabric trade was pounded yesterday at a meeting of the Wholesalers' Association of Dress Fabric Buyers, held at the Waldorf-Astoria in connection with the twenty-first annual convention of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association. "Merchandising of Textiles" was discussed by Charles Coolidge Parlin of the Curtis Publishing Company and "The Rights of Buyers and Sellers," by Felix H. Levy of the New York bar.

Topics on which there were general discussions incited "How Buyers Take a Place in the Distribution of Dress Fabrics?" led by Joseph H. Wells of Baltimore; "Guaranteeing Fast Colors That Are Not Fast," E. S. McKenny of Minneapolis; "What Can Be Done by Manufacturers and Converters to Help the Wholesaler Distribute His Goods" Jackson Fairbairn of Tacoma, and "Where Are We Wholesalers Headed?" W. G. Fatrick of Salt Lake City.

The meeting was opened with an address by President George H. Aufderheide of Pittsburgh, who declared that conditions in the trade justified an optimistic outlook, an opinion in which he found general concurrence among the other members.

Mr. McKenny was elected President to succeed Mr. Aufderheide.

Tailored Blouses Coming Back.

The tailored blouse has received a fresh impetus for Spring by the two-piece suit that has recently made its appearance in the Fifth Avenue shops. Tailored silk blouses are shown in many colors for the new season, as against the white ones that dominated last Spring's showings. In silk broadcloth, radium and crepe they are shown with pipings of contrasting color, and they are further trimmed with buttons and small tailored pockets. Sometimes they boast of a pleated jabot, although fine tucks are more frequently seen. Sleeves are long and the cuffs are small. There is also a reappearance of pique vests with sleeves, according to the United Waist League of America. These are belted in the back and are similar to those that were so successful last Spring. Collars are usually round and close fitting, although the pointed neckline is by no means absent.

Medium-Width Belts Will Lead.

The present call for women's belts in this market fulfills the prediction made some time ago that the 2½-inch width would be the one most favored for Spring. White belts are most in demand right now, many of them being wanted for Winter resort wear. Buyers, however, also think well of belts showing combinations of white with suede in pastel shades or with gold kid. The combination of white with black patent leather is also liked. Perforations and the interweaving of strands of contrasting colors are the usual means of elaboration. For sports wear attractive belts of about 1½ inches in width are offered by the manufacturers. They are shown in red patent leather or some other color in a glossy finish, and the edges are sometimes bound with a piping of contrasting color.

Spinners on Wool Stability.

Spinners of woolen and worsted yarns, in the belief that hand-to-mouth buying has created a better balance between demand and supply, are hopeful of an assurance that wool values will show no marked change. If such confidence materialises for the remainder of the year, it would mean a general covering on the part of the using trades, and re-establish advance buying. With present operating and overhead costs, spinners see no profit in operating at 40 to 60 per cent. of capacity. Of raw wool, the spinners remark the scarcity of quarter-bloods, this resulting in larger imports of these wools. Ruling prices on domestic quarter-bloods are near a parity with prices abroad, plus the duty. Half-bloods, on the other hand, are quoted 20 cents a pound higher abroad, inclusive of duty, than the same grades here.

More Spring Orders Coming In.

Retailers of late have been somewhat more active in placing cap orders for Spring, it was said yesterday. Their stocks are low and, with the indications favoring another good cap season, the manufacturers are counting on a considerable volume of business to develop between now and March 1. Smooth finish cashmere caps are leading, the patterns running to neat invisible plaids. Orders have been about equally divided between the eight quarter and the one-piece top, with interest in the former stronger than for some time past. Fawns, grays, powder blue and London lavender are the preferred colors.

Cap Textile Jobbers Organize.

For the formation of a central credit bureau and to work in unison in the prosecution of fraudulent bankruptcies, jobbers catering to the cloth hat and cap manufacturers have organized as the Cap Textile Credit Association. Maxwell Hyman of L. Hyman Company, President of the new body, said yesterday that a substantial amount of money has been pledged for the work of the association, and steps have been taken to investigate several recent failures. The membership comprises wholesalers of silks, woolens, cotton goods, leather sweat bands, cap visors and allied lines which sell to the cap trade. The association plans to held weekly meetings. Isaac Finkelstein of L. Finkelstein & Sons, is its Vice President, Simon Shevell, Secretary, and William Lederer of Fox, Lederer & Co., Treasurer.

Artists Will Aid Fashion Show.

A committee of well-known artists will play a quite prominent part in the forthcoming Spring fashion show of the Retail Millinery Association of America, which will take place at the Hotel Astor on the evening of Feb. 5. The committee, which is headed by Heyworth Campbell, includes Frank Alvah Parsons, Charles Dana Gibson, Leo Lentelli, Henri Creange, Gifford Beals and several others. It will select the models who will wear the hats, on the basis of beauty of face and figure, carriage, &c., and, on the night of the show, it will act as judge. The style authority of the hats to be shown will be vouched for by a committee headed by Mme. Helene Velka. Mlle. d'Alroy, a well-known French stylist, will appear in several specialty numbers.

Gray Goods Trading Very Small.

Trading in gray goods here yesterday and the weather could be described in a single word—sloppy. Practically all of the business done was in scattered lots for near-by trading, but prices continued firm. In the printcloths there were sales of 38½-inch 64-60s at 9¼ cents and 38½-inch 60-48s at 8¾ cents. Most of the limited business in the sheetings took place in the lightweight goods. Actual sales included 36-inch 5-yard sheetings at 8⅞ cents and 36-inch 6.15s at 7¼ cents.

Higher Prices on Cheviots.

All lines of men's cheviots are withdrawn by the Lymansville Company, it was announced yesterday, owing to the volume of business booked for March and April deliveries. Within a week or so, the firm added, the Fall opening of these weaves will be held, with prices about 15 cents a yard higher. Effective today, all women's wear lines of cheviot twills of the concern are advanced 15 cents per yard on the average.

Withdraws "Rayona" Application.

Notice of withdrawal of their application for trademark registration of the word "Rayona" has been served upon the United States Patent Office by Neuburger & Co., Inc., importers. It had been the intention of the firm to apply the name to their rayon yarns but, following a conference on Monday in which S. A. Salvage of the Viscose Company and Lew Hahn, Managing Director of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, met with members of the concern, the latter decided to withdraw their application. The firm members, according to a statement issued yesterday, believed it to be to the general good that no individual house should have trademark rights on any term which might be in conflict with the word "rayon" for artificial silk.

Amoskeag Flannels Priced.

Thirty-six-inch flannels for the jobbing trade were opened for 1925 yesterday by Jarvis, Loomis & Dunbar, selling agents for the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, on the same basis as they opened the goods for the cutting-up trade 30 days ago. That was 1 cent a yard less than the same fabrics were priced last year. On the 27-inch flannels, both plain and fancy, a reduction of 1 cent a yard from last year's levels was made. Two new Amoskeag fabrics, 36-inch "Merino" part-wool shirtings and 36-inch "Woodsman" shirtings, were also included in the opening.

Wages Cut in Bay State Gauze Mills

WEAVERS RETURN TO WORK.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Jan. 20.—The 250 weavers at the Potomska mills late this afternoon voted to return to work tomorrow morning upon the management's agreeing to an adjustment of piece prices which were in effect preceding the 10 per cent. wage cut which went into effect yesterday.

The weavers are a majority of the men on strike here. About fifty loom fixers from the same mill, who caused work yesterday, were ordered back to work by the union this morning, although they were instructed to hold themselves in readiness to quit if strike breakers should be employed.

The mill management offered to readjust the prices paid on certain classes of fine goods. The weavers had declared that the changes made in these prices recently, together with the general wage reduction announced for yesterday, amounted in effect to a double wage cut.

ASKS LONGER TERM FOR SON

Mother Thinks Three Months More in House of Refuge Would Help Him

Mrs. Mary Lamberto of Willow Street, Yonkers, appeared in Yonkers City Court yesterday and pleaded with Judge Charles W. Beste to use his good office in having the term of her son, Dominick Lamberto, age 19, in the House of Refuge on Blackwell's Island lengthened three months.

The youth was sentenced some months ago from Yonkers City Court because he was habitually in trouble with the police. Now that his sentence is about up, the mother feels that it would do the boy good to remain there three months longer. She requested that he be allowed to transfer from the tailoring department to the electrical department, so he can learn that trade.

Judge Beste referred Mrs. Lamberto to the court Probation Officer, who will take up the matter with the authorities in charge of the institution.

LAYS CRIMES TO JURIES.

Jersey Judge Reads Report on Dry Cases That Were Thrown Out.

Judge Newton H. Porter of the Common Pleas Court of Essex County, N. J., addressing the Grand Jury for the second half of the December term, said yesterday that the chief blame for infractions of the prohibition law and crimes of personal violence in that county rested upon the jurymen last year.

Reading from a report submitted to him by John G. Bigelow, the County's Prosecuting Attorney, Judge Porter declared that of the 304 prohibition cases, 224 were thrown out. Mr. Bigelow's report said that these dispositions were made arbitrarily by the jury's business committee without letting the evidence go to the full jury.

BANK CLEARINGS KEEP ABOVE BILLION MARK

Heavy bank clearings, which this month have established a record for the New York Clearing House, continued yesterday. For the fifteenth day since Dec. 30 last clearings exceeded $1,000,000,000.

Yesterday's total was $1,130,000,000, and, including this figure, the total for the month to date was $19,939,000,000, against $15,062,000,000 for the same period last year. The record total of clearings in New York's history, also a world record, was established on Jan. 2, when exchanges were $1,665,000,000.

The increase was attributed to increasing demand and use of funds by the nation's business. This was in line with the report issued by the Federal Reserve Board for December, which said that in the latter part of 1924 money in circulation had increased by more than $300,000,000 in response "to an increase in payrool requirements of industrial establishments, with the increase in their activity, and to larger volume of business at a somewhat higher level of prices." Another barometer of the upward turn of business was shown in the Federal Reserve Bank of New York condition report for 1924. This showed in December a sharp increase in the bank's gross earnings.

FUND FOR TEMPLE CROSS.

Young members of Methodist churches of the city have subscribed $25,000 for the cross that is to stand on top of the Broadway Temple, the skyscraper church that is to be erected on Washington Heights. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of the Chelsea Methodist Church and originator of the temple idea, made the announcement last night after a meeting of the Executive Committee, in charge of the project at the Union League Club.

He said that the committee had approved the plans for the temple as outlined by the architect, Donn Barber, who designed the Cotton Exchange Building.

RAIL CONTROL COST US $1,600,000,000

PRIVATE SUITS NEXT IN LINE

Between 6,000 and 7,000 of These Ahead, Says the Administrator's Annual Report.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20.—How the Government reduced the claims filed by the carriers against the Railroad Administration growing out of Federal control from a total of $1,013,389,502.12 to $768,003,274.33 is told in the annual report of James C. Davis, Director General of Railroads.

Despite this saving of more than $245,000,000 in the liquidation of these claims, the report shows that the cost to the Government of control of the railroads during the period of Government administration, and the six months' guaranty period following, was $1,674,500,000.

When Federal control ended Feb. 29, 1920, the carriers began filing claims for $1,013,389,502.12. The Railroad Administration, on its part, set up tentative claims against the carriers aggregating a balance of $438,130,811.74.

"These balances," said Director Davis in his report, "represented the disputed items respectively contended for by the carriers and the Railroad Administration. Included in the carriers' claims were items for undermaintenance of way and structures aggregating $341,825,400.62, and for undermaintenance of equipment $335,685,197.38.

"In the railroad administration claims against the carriers there was a total claim for excess maintenance expenses, including both way and structures and equipment of $309,614,100.24. These items of maintenance were the most important and the largest involved in the controversies arising in the liquidation.

Four Years of Adjusting.

"The adjustment required separate settlements with 371 systems, many systems representing more than one independent company. In making these adjustments the Director General allowed the creditor lines $243,647,196.91, and there was collected from the debtor lines by the railroad administration $195,072,295.17. The excess allowed over amounts collected was $48,574,901.74.

"The adjustment was completed without litigation in about four years, and it was made within the appropriations originally granted by Congress for that purpose.

"In addition to the claims of the carriers whose property was taken over, there are some 6,000 or 7,000 private individual lawsuits pending, and some assets of the Government in the field which are still to be collected. While these separate controversies are small in comparison with the settlements that have been heretofore made, the aggregate of same runs into some millions of dollars. It will take some time, with a greatly reduced overhead, finally to close up all of these controversies.

Federal Cost Itemized.

"In this connection it may be of interest to state the entire cost to the Government for the period of Federal control and the six months' guarantee period immediately following Federal control:

"The loss of the Government during the period of Federal control aggregated	$1,123,500,000
"The expenses of the guarantee period are estimated by the Interstate Commerce Commission at	536,000,000
"Amount required to reimburse small deficit roads (short lines) under the provisions of Section 204 of the Transportation act, estimated by the Interstate Commerce Commission at	15,000,000
"This makes a total of the loss and expenses of the Government during the twenty-six months of Federal control and the six months' guarantee period of	$1,674,500,000.

"The foregoing indicates that the great adventure of the Government in the field of Government operation of the railroads as a war measure is about concluded, and that the liabilities have been practically all paid."

PROTEST BOULEVARD LEVY.

Taxpayers Tell Estimate Board Committee It Is an Imposition.

Brooklyn and Queens taxpayers appeared yesterday before the Committee on Assessments of the Board of Estimate and protested against the proposal that a 70 per cent. assessment be levied against them for construction of the Conduit Boulevard, which is to run through the two boroughs and extend to Amityville, thirty miles down Long Island.

Joseph A. Guider, newly elected President of the Borough of Brooklyn and Chairman of the Committee on City Planning, said he sympathized with their complaint and would do all in his power to aid them.

The delegation argued that putting the burden of the levy upon their shoulders would be an imposition, as the boulevard would be an improvement used by all the people of the city and also by motorists from Connecticut and New Jersey. They also pointed out that the thoroughfare is to run through the length of Nassau County, and that it will extend to Amityville, which is almost at the Suffolk County line.

The hearing adjourned until a date to be announced later.

WOMAN HELD AS A THIEF.

Florence Morgan of Plattsburg Says Husband Wasn't Generous.

Mrs. Florence Turner Morgan of Plattsburg, N. Y., a handsomely gowned woman of 42, well known in her home city, was held in $500 bail yesterday by Magistrate Jean Norris in the Women's Court on a charge of petty larceny made by Adelaide G. Burke, a store detective of Lord & Taylor.

Mrs. Morgan was accused of stealing a bottle of perfume valued at $22, a $5 manicure set and a $1 pair of scissors.

She appeared unmoved in the courtroom and her only statement to Magistrate Norris was that she "took the articles because my husband was not sufficiently generous."

She was remanded in default of bail to the Woman's Jail in Jefferson Market for trial later in the Court of Special Sessions.

According to a message from Plattsburg, Mrs. Morgan is the daughter of Benton Turner, formerly a well-known lumberman of that city, who now lives in California. She has been married twice, her first husband having obtained a divorce.

SALESMEN.

The Brooklyn Edison Company is offering to commission salesmen an opportunity to secure first-class selling positions. To the right kind of men this work is continuous and therefore permanent.

Practically no other business furnishes such high-grade selling conditions. Only customers, those already using the company's services, are called upon, and the difficulty of securing live prospects is therefore almost eliminated. Customers like to take advantage of the company's easy terms.

Other features make this a real opportunity with money-making possibilities for the right kind of salesmen. Commissions are paid promptly. Applicants will be selected on a basis of integrity and personality rather than selling experience.
